Rain and Wind Cause Damage

Scattered thunder showers and high winds caused damage in Southeast Missouri last night.

Missouri Utilities Company crews worked for about four hours repairing lines severed when trees were blown down, William Proffer, manager, said today.

Crews worked until 1:30 a.m. today repairing lines in Morehouse, Matthews, Blodgett and the highway 61 north areas.

Power was not cut off.

Sikeston had one inch of rain on the longest day of the year and the first day of summer. It broke a drought.

Funnel clouds were spotted at Charleston and at Big Oak State Park, but no damage was reported.

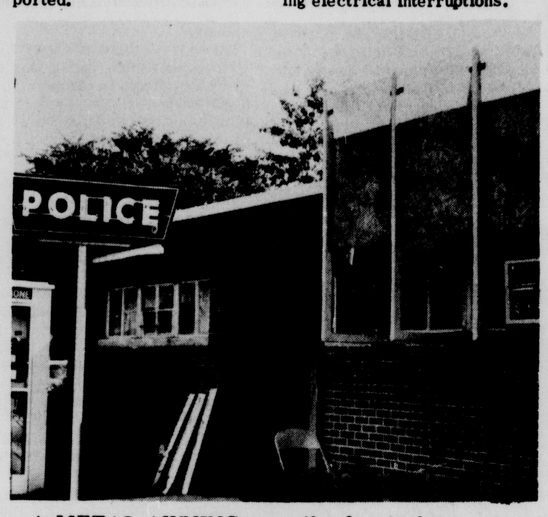

At Dexter a hangar at the airport was damaged Wednesday afternoon. Wind gusts blew one end of the hangar across a field. Damage was estimated at $1,000.

A tornado watch was in effect for Southeast Missouri, Southern Illinois and Eastern Kentucky from 8 p.m. to midnight.

Stormy weather caused power failures in all sections of Sikeston throughout last night beginning at 8 p.m. Manager Dick Inman of the light and water department reported.

A standby crew made the last repair call at 7:10 a.m. when service was restored throughout the city. It worked all night. Lines were torn down by wind and falling limbs. Some fuses were struck by lightning causing electrical interruptions.

All Going Well with Luci And Her Baby

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Luci Johnson Nugent gave her baby his first bottle of sugar and water, and doctors reported everything was going well with the President's daughter and his first grandchild.

Patrick Lyndon Nugent was reported making perfect progress in the maternity wing of Seton Hospital, where he was born Wednesday morning.

"Everybody's happy," said father Patrick J. Nugent as he gave an interview Wednesday night, 12 hours after the birth of his first child.

The baby was wheeled in his bassinet into Luci's hospital room for a first feeding of water and glucose, Nugent said.

He reported his 19-year-old wife "gay and cheerful." She had received a telegram from her father, the President, in which Nugent said Lyndon B. Johnson sent word that "his prayers were with her."

There was a continuing flow of flowers for the President's daughter at the hospital, where she and her baby were occupying the fourth-floor maternity-wing hospital rooms under Secret Service guard.

Nugent handed out cigars and candy as he announced with tears in his eyes and in a cracking voice early Wednesday that his wife had given birth to an 8-pound, 10-ounce baby boy, 21 inches long.

Toward the end of the day, Nugent confided he chose the name for his first offspring. It was a combination of his own name and that of his paternal grandfather with a middle name of Lyndon after his father-in-law, the President.

He also confided he had expected his first child to be a girl— "I don't know why."

The President and First Lady expressed their happiness and Mrs. Johnson said she was relieved as well that the birth went without a hitch.

Luci was in labor at the hospital for six hours and her delivery team of five doctors said it was a perfectly normal labor and delivery.

Family and friends were notified and Nugent said he called his brother, Gerard P. Nugent Jr., in San Diego, Calif., whose wife, Phyllis, is expecting a baby any time now.

Meanwhile things were settling into a routine at the hospital for Luci and her newborn son.

Visiting with her during the evening, Nugent decided what his wife should choose from the hospital menu. Instead of the dinner offerings, he picked hot cereal, to the surprise of the nurse on duty.

Rising River Sounds Flood Worker Call

KANSAS CITY (AP) - Calls for emergency crews were issued at several Missouri River points today as the flood waters of the Big Muddy threatened more levees.

The danger areas are all below Kansas City, where the stream rose to 25.1 feet this morning, a stage more than three feet above bankfull.

A heavy runoff from tributaries swollen by heavy rains, increased the load of the Big Muddy.

While the river fell overnight at St. Joseph, the stages were moving upward at Rulo, Nebraska City and Omaha.

A call for volunteer help went out to Carrollton and Norborne this morning as the Orville Matthews farm levee, southeast of Norborne, showed signs of being overtopped.

At Boonville, calls were out for help at two danger areas, the dike in the Overton community levee, east of Boonville, and on the Emil-Wilsmeyer levee across the river in Howard County.

Earlier St. Charles County officials asked for more volunteers to sandbag a mile-long section of a levee near the mouth of the stream.

Sheriff J. R. Stockton of Ray County reported a levee protecting the Green Top Farms near Henrietta had been broken, flooding several thousands acres of land between the river and the federal levee. He said that to the west of the area, water was now backing up and flooding land behind the main levee. Highway M13 at that point was covered with four feet of water.

U.S. Army Engineers, reporting on the latest check of damage to the Missouri River area between Rulo, Neb., and the mouth, said 480,000 acres of land had been flooded. Col W. G. Kratz, Army district engineer, said the damage was placed at $19,300,000.

The latest Missouri crest is expected at Kansas City tonight. At the same time the initual crest is expected at Hermann, Mo., with a stage of 28 feet seven feet over bankfull.

Efforts of a crew of 150 trying to save the farm levee near Henrietta proved futile. The crew went to work about 7:30 p.m. when the water was about two inches over the barrier, but abandoned the task about midnight.

Across the river at Lexington city officials urged residents to store drinking water in event the water plant was flooded. Residents said the water of the Missouri appeared as high as in the big flood of 1951.

Corning, Mo., about 125 miles northwest of Kansas City, was preparing to be surrounded by water for the second time in five days.

At Big Lake Park south of Corning, resort homes were under several feet of water. An airplane pilot reported some roofs almost covered with water.

East of Kansas City residents were evacuating the small farm communities of McBaine, southwest of Columbia; and Wakenda, 11 miles southwest of Carrollton.

War in Vietnam Blamed

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — France declared today that as long as the war in Vietnam continues there is "no chance for peace in the Middle East."

French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville, in his nation's policy statement in the General Assembly debate on the Arab-Israeli war, said that ending war in Vietnam would "require a courageous "require a courageous and fruitful decision on the part of a great state" — meaning the United States.

Should the Vietnamese war end, he said, "then new horizons would open up."

Neither Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin nor Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko was present to hear the French statement.

They were at the Soviet mission, preparing to be hosts at a luncheon to U.N Secretary-General U Thant, and perhaps waiting for a break on the possibility of a Kosygin meeting with President Johnson.

The French foreign minister's statement was mild in tone. He avoided the direct condemnation of Israel that had highlighted a statement Wednesday by President Charles de Gaulle. Ane he appealed for a negotiated settlement of the Middle East crisis, which he repeatedly called grave and dangerous to world peace.

For the Arabs, De Gaulle said Israel started the war and France does not consider any Israeli territorial gains to be final. For the Israelis, he said every Middle East state, "notably Israel," has a right to live and he condemned the Arab threat to destroy the Jewish state.

U.S. and Soviet sources indicated that Johnson and Kosygin may decide today whether to meet in the brief time left before the Soviet premier's departure.

Rolwing Declines To Tip Hand on Race

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)— The Missouri House today adopted a resolution to establish a joint interim committee on crime and law enforcement.

Before its approval on a voice vote, however, opponents charged it was part of a campaign of its sponsor, Rep. David Rolwing, D-Mississippi County, to gain public attention. They said Rolwing was trying to run for Congress from the heavily Democratic 10th District of southeastern Missouri.

Rolwing, an outspoken young man from Gov. Warren E. Hearnes' home town who does not always agree with the governor, declines to say whether he had eyes on Congress or not. The present congressman from the district, Rep. Paul C. Jones, Kennett Democrat, has announced he will not seek re-election.

Rolwing said despite studies on the national, state and local levels on the causes of crime the crime rate continues to increase and a joint legislative committee should be able to come up with some helpful answers.

Two amendments from fellow Democrats were defeated.

One would take away the committee's right to subpoena persons and records in its investigation of the cause of crime. Rep. Donald Gralike, D-Lemay, said Rolwing was just trying to build a public image.

He said it would be unfair to force honest businessmen to appear and bring their business records before a committee. His amendment was defeated 32-121.

Rep. Patrick J. Hickey, D-St. Ann, said he didn't like the provision giving the committee up to $25,000 to spend, with most of it going, he said, toward a special attorney-investigator.

His amendment was rejected 51-94.

Governor's Pay Hike Approved

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) - Substantial pay increases for the governor and other elected state officials won House approval Wednesday.

The bill now goes to the governor. The increases do not become effective until the next terms start.

The governor's pay is boosted from $25,000 to $37,500, the lieutenant governor from $12,000 to $16,000, the attorney general from $15,000 to $25,000 and he must work full time at the job, while the auditor, secretary of state and treasurer go from $15,000 to $20,000.

Still pending is a bill that would raise legislative pay from $4,800 to $7,200. It already has passed the Senate.

A bill designed to protect consumers from fraudulent merchandising was passed by both houses and sent to the governor.

It put enforcement under the attorney general instead of the local prosecuting attorneys. This provision caused a long argument in the Senate but was accepted by the House without debate.

Under the bill newspapers, radio and television stations would not be liable for fraudulent advertising unless they knew it was fraudulent.

It is aimed primarily at con men and fast buck artists who hit a community then move on but it would also cover false or misleading claims on any merchandise or services. It carries both civil and criminal penalties.

In other action Wednesday night, the Senate returned to the House a bill to provide penalties for non-licensed practitioners of optometry.

The bill was amended to strike a section which put the burden of proof on the defendent in the case.

The so-called "wheelchair bill" to force the construction of ramps and wheelchair doors on all public buildings to be constructed in the future was shelved for the third time when Sen. Richard Southern, D-Monroe City, offered a substitute bill which simplified the provisions of the measure.

Another measure was passed to allow magistrate courts to dismiss on their own motion any cases where no action has been taken after two years.

The House night session passed a Senate bill to set up an emergency fund to pay for unexpected costs between legislative sessions. It goes back to the Senate with a House amendment limiting the fund to $150,000.

Tower Seeks Reprimand But Not Censure for Dodd

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., proposed today that the Senate reprimand Sen. Thomas J. Dodd for his financial conduct, but stop short of censuring him.

Tower made his surprise move as the Senate ground toward judgment of Dodd, a Connecticut Democrat.

Tower's amendment would take a step somewhat stronger than that rejected Wednesday by the Senate— the admonition proposed by Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La.— but far less stern than the censure recommended by the Senate ethics committee.

It would also strike the committee finding that Dodd's conduct brought the Senate into dishonor and was contrary to accepted morals.

In the wake of Wednesday's 92-2 vote, Tower's amendment appeared to have little chance of adoption.

Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois said today he expects the Senate to censure Dodd on both of the two counts recommended by the ethics committee.

"On the basis of yesterday's vote, I have no reason to believe the Senate won't sustain the committee," he told reporters.

The Senate rejected 92 to 2, late Wednesday afternoon a proposal to drop a charge that Dodd misused political funds for his own benefit and to substitute an admonition that he not do anything wrong in the future.

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said once any new amendments are dealt with, he and Dirksen will propose that the Senate vote on the second count in the censure resolution— that involving double billing.

Mansfield said he expects to hold the Senate in session until the action has been completed.

"I would hope that it would be concluded in a reasonable time," he said.

He said that he expected he would remain on the floor today to vote against the ethics committee resolution. He absented himself during Wednesday's vote on the Long substitute.

The senator repeated his earlier statements that, regardless of the outcome of the censure resolution, he would remain in the Senate and seek re-election in 1970.

Asked if he had any doubts he would be re-elected, he replied, "none at all."

Debt Ceiling Reversal Eases Administration Fears

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democrats, reversing a stunning administration setback of two weeks before, pushed through a $22-billion boost in the national debt ceiling.

Sent to the Senate on a 217-196 vote was a measure to raise the debt from a temporary $336 billion to a permanent $358 billion.

Failure of Congress to reset the debt limit by July 1 would see the ceiling drop to its permanent $285-billion level. The actual debt as of Wednesday was $330.57 billion.

But while the Senate still has to act on the measure — and won't start work until it has disposed of the censure resolution against Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn. — Democrats hold a comfortable margin in that chamber and are confident of getting speedy approval for the bill.

Chairman Russell B. Long, D-La., of the Senate Finance Committee scheduled hearings on the measure for next Monday and Tuesday. Long said he hopes it can be brought to a floor debate Wednesday.

It had been another story in the House, which stunned President Johnson's administration June 7 by defeating 210 to 197 a bill to increase the borrowing ceiling to $365 billion.

Republicans voted solidly against debt ceiling increases both times, insisting Johnson provide more information on the fiscal outlook and scale down domestic spending.

The GOP's initial victory was possible through the help of Southern Democrats and a sprinkling of Northern Democratic liberals, some of whom claimed their opposition resulted from Johnson's Vietnam war policies.

But the House leadership reclaimed 14 of these votes Wednesday, splitting the dissident Southerners about in half and picking up all but a handful of the antiwar faction.

The White House said later Johnson "congratulated the House leadership for this act of fiscal responsibility."

In addition to the $358-billion ceiling provided by the new measure, a $7-billion cushion goes into effect July 1, 1968. Intended to provide for the fluctuations in income and outgo during the year, the cushion is to be renewed annually. It will expire, however, one day before the end of each fiscal year.

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways and Means Committee, argued this device would provide a brake on spending.

The bill also would allow the Treasury to issue notes with maturities up to seven years, instead of five. The notes are exempt from the 4¼ per cent interest limitation that has halted the sale of longer-term securities.

It also would include in the national debt for the first time the participation certificates, or interests in pools of government-held loans, sold to private investors. This was a point strongly pushed by Republicans, who accused the administration of using the certificates to hold down the debt.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Are the nation's ills incurable?

Fatal diseases of the human body may be painless until the terminal stage is reached. The ill person becomes adjusted to his condition and may even deny that his health is impaired. At the cost of his life, he avoids diagnosis of his condition by a medical expert.

So it may be with nations.

Arnold Toynbee, the British historian, has returned to his country from the United States. He has written a diagnosis of his nation.

He believes that the American people have lost their way. He views the nation as semi-socialist country in which the public sector of the economy is gaining ground at the expense of the private sector.

He is unquestionably correct in this deduction.

"The American taxpayer, and even the American congressmen who vote the tax money, can no longer keep track of how the money is being spent and what it is being spent on," he writes. "He no longer believes that the administration is telling the truth. He is shocked by startling revelations of an official 'hidden hand' spending the taxpayer's money being used to 'condition' the taxpayer himself. We are witnessing a struggle in America for the American people's soul, and this struggle is fateful for us all."

Indeed it is.

As late as is the hour and as far reaching as has been socialistic encroachments on the American form of government, our own optimism is unrestrained.

It isn't too late to arrest the trend and to restore the country to the fundamental principles which has brought it the greatest progress and prosperity. All Americans need to do is exercise their will power to curb inflation, curtail supergovernment and restrain welfare government, currently called the Great Society, a beguiling but inaccurate name which could be accurately defined as buy now and let the kids pay for it later.

This is a country permitting such great freedom of expression that much borderline pornography, indecent trash and sewer literature is permitted to circulate abundantly.

The public has the right to reject what it dislikes by its own free choice. We like it that way.

Comes now the National Labor Relations Board, famous for its partiality to unions and strong bias against employers, with the disposition to bludgeon freedom of information with heavy hand.

The NLRB loves union labor and adopts a paternalistic attitude toward it.

The ranks of labor, according to NLRB, are populated by simple minded men, not much more intelligent than nincompoops, who must be carefully spoon fed the most innocuous tidbits of information. Any deviation from a diet of infantile literature would throw the poor working man into an awful tail spin or disorient him completely from his normal environment.

The NLRB really has tortured the law in holding that an employer who gave his employes a book to read was guilty of coercion.

The book was written by none other than Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, a tired and true friend of organized labor.

"The Enemy Within" uncovered instances of corruption, misfeasance and general ill-doing by labor leaders years ago. Kennedy was counsel for the investigators.

It was a Massachusetts company which handed out 14 copies of the book to wire weavers, who were the object of an organizing drive by the Teamsters.

The employee spoke out against the union and mailed letters to employes before an election.

The Teamsters lost the election but appealed.

The NLRB found nothing unlawful in any single employer act but decided that it all added up to coercion.

It handed the weavers over to the Teamsters.

Here is a great deal of freedom left in this country unless you are a laboring man involved in a labor-management controversy.

At such times the NLRB steps forward as benefactor, censor and wet nurse and determines what information is sufficiently sterile for the laboring man to read. Father knows best, of course! In a pig's eye!

Mr. Ernest G. Swigert, the highly articulate head of a large heavy equipment company, has a way of discussing questions of principle with a conviction that is all too often sadly lacking in most public utterances. Recently he observed: "I don't know why it is that every generation will accept the accumulated knowledge in medicine and science and build new achievements on that foundation, but when it comes to economics they have to learn the hard way. There is always some professor or politician who has a new scheme to repeal the laws of economics; but I suspect the laws of economics are just as immutable as the laws of physics."

Should a public utility be content to rest on its laurels - depending on recognition that service to customers speaks for itself?

Or should it accept the obligation of periodically informing people about what it has done for its customers, how it is helping the community, reviewing financial and other contributions to community institutions and causes and giving a general account of its stewardship?

Associated Natural Gas meets the first specification.

It did not make any attempt to fulfill the second requirement in advance of the franchise election in which fewer than 175 citizens, less than three per cent of the city's 7,000 registered voters cast ballots.

Associated Natural has a monopoly but it is questionable whether it is in its own best interest to act like it.

A dismal turnout of voters such as the handful who requested ballots Tuesday does no credit to a democracy, to Sikeston or to the utility.

Associated Natural has an impressive story to tell. It could have presented highlights of its stewardship over 20 years, the length of the franchise to serve Sikeston which expires at the end of September.

Instead it chose to let the record speak for itself. The record did speak to 172 out of 7,000 who bothered to vote. Seven didn't approve of the record.

The city might help, too.

More citizens would have voted if the franchise election could have been combined with other issues or candidates requiring voter approval.

As it is Associated Natural Gas has only a weak mandate to continue serving Sikeston for another 10 or 20 years - an arrangement that isn't satisfactory to anyone.

Let's have fewer elections which are flops.

IT TICKLES US

At a recent coffee club session where he had taken over the counter for most of the 10-minute gathering, one of his listeners asked him if he ever thought about what he was going to say before saying it.

"Why, no," said the g.t. seriously, "How on earth could I know what I think about a thing until I've heard what I have to say on the subject?"

NEW YORK (AP) — "Life," said George Peppard, "is a piece of time as long as a gnat's blink.

"That makes it important to live it the way you feel it should be lived— to do as much good as you can and have as much fun as you can."

But when Hollywood stardom beckons to a young actor, it's hard for him to go on living the way he prefers. The big dollar makes big demands.

And some of them seem a bit inordinate to George, who rang Hollywood's golden cash register in "The Carpetbaggers" and is now completing his 15th picture, "What's So Bad About Feeling Good?"

For one thing, George, who worked hard to become a star, finds he doesn't like the public attention that success has brought. He doesn't like giving interviews, doesn't enjoy being pointed out when he goes into a restaurant.

"I realize it's part of the business, and I don't resent it," he said. "But I simply don't get any pleasure out of public attention, except so far as it applies to my work."

It isn't that the tall, handsome blond actor finds the fruits of success bitter. He just isn't the extrovert, life-of-the party type, and never has been.

He always has been something of a loner, one who likes to study others but keeps himself a bit apart.

"Sometimes I require solitude," he said, "just to read and think. That's why I enjoy going hunting or boating, or flying an airplane."

Recently George took a long step toward privacy by buying a 13,000-acre ranch in northern California, which he soon hopes to stock with 6,000 cattle.

"I'm rather practical," he remarked. "I expect the cattle to support me, rather than vice versa."

Peppard, son of a Detroit building contractor, became interested in the theater while studying engineering at Purdue. Later, after an 18-month hitch in the U.S. Marines, he won a degree in fine arts at the Carnegie Institute of Technology. He worked partime as a disk jockey and radio station engineer.

Before making his mark on Broadway, George attended the Actor's Studio here. He kept alive by employment as a bank clerk, taxi driver and motorcycle mechanic.

Those days of deprivation— even then, George valued his privacy so much he kept an unlisted telephone number— still hold a luster for him.

"I lived in a $40-a-month cold-water flat in Greenwich Village," he recalled. "When I wasn't looking for an acting job, I used to play chess in Washington Square Park. It was a great life."

Auto theft is a far more serious problem than most people realize. Many tend to have a passive and apathetic attitude about it. First, there is the common expression, "It won't happen to me." Last year half a million motorists learned otherwise. Or perhaps they say, "It is too much trouble to lock my car." The inconvenience is insignificant when compared to the inconvenience of having a car stolen. Even though about 85 per cent of stolen automobiles are ultimately returned to their owners, the average damage done to a recovered car amounts to nearly 200 dollars. A recent study revealed that up to 24 per cent of stolen cars were involved in accidents.

The Missouri State Highway Patrol notes that there is a good reason for this. The thief has no idea of what condition the car is in. He may be unfamiliar with the particular model. The young thief especially may not be as good a driver as he thinks he is. Knowing that he has a stolen car, and that the police may be looking for him, he is more apt to take dangerous chances to avoid arrest. Also, the thief has no financial interest in the car whatsoever.

These facts illustrate the threat which the stolen car poses to highway safety. A simple act of negligence -- leaving keys in the ignition or the car unlocked -- can create an opportunity for theft which may end in death or injury to innocent people.

The soldier had just returned from two years service in Korea. After an exciting reunion with his wife they went immediately to a hotel. Later that night there was a loud knock on their door and a voice shouted, "Let me in."

"Great Scott," explained the soldier, as he bolted upright in bed, "I'll bet that's your husband!"

On the pretext of securing some important contracts, the henpecked hubby had been spending the majority of his evenings away from home. When his wife discovered that he was really having secret rendezvous with a number of different lady friends, she confronted him with this accusation. Reluctantly, he admitted the truth. Then the worm started to turn. "So what?" he snarled, in a voice roughly approximating that of a B picture villain. "In fact, I have a date tonight. And you know who's gonna help me get dressed for any date? You are! And you know who's gonna shine my shoes? You are! And you know who's gonna tie my tie?"

"Yes," his wife said quietly, "the undertaker."

ANONYMOUS INSURANCE

It just happens that we don't know a single person who ever bought a used car from a salesman wearing a Halloween mask. Nor can we think of anyone we know who ever bought a refrigerator from a door-to - door salesman wearing a paste - on moustache and dark glasses. When it comes to insurance, nobody we know buys life insurance or automobile insurance from an unknown company.

And we think some similarly elementary precautions are called for when it comes to the military security of our country.

There's been a great deal of copy in the press recently about the new anti-missile system which the USSR is reportedly deploying around its major cities and industrial complexes and anti - missile system made news in this country more than two years ago, and the Congress pressed the civilian wheels in the Pentagon to get on with perfecting and deploying one in this country. Nothing happened.

Now there are persistent reports that the Soviet anti-missile complex is in place. And Congress has been pressing again. So what happens?

On November 17, in Washington, anonymous spokesmen for the administration met with newsmen and assured them that irrespective of the Soviet system, the American people can rest assured that this country, the United States, is militarily capable of penetrating that system and could, in fact, destroy any nation which might attack us, irrespective of the extent of the surprise attack.

Who gave these assurances? We repeat: anonymous spokesmen!

Here are anonymous spokesmen selling us an insurance policy for our country, but refusing to put their names or addresses on the policy. Be assured the spokesmen said, but don't print our names or addresses or titles.

The men who insure our country ought to do the same.

"Madam," was the soft reply, "I thought I had one."

H. L. Hunt Says

SERVICE TO THE UTMOST

Some observers of man at work have voiced the opinion that the average person rarely operates at more than 50 per cent of his capacity. This may be true, and if so great waste is involved.

The Congressional District Plan for reforming the Electoral College would bring forward every four years nearly 1100 men and women capable of performing notable service to the Republic. These men and women would be the 538 winning nominees for presidential elector and the 538 losing nominees, probably of equal stature. Their combining to form an unofficial committee to examine government problems and offer recommendations for their solution would give them an opportunity for service far beyond their duty of casting electoral votes for the President and Vice President.

The Congressional Distrct Plan calls for naming an elector from each of 435 congressional districts, three electors from the District of Columbia, and two electors at large from each of the 50 states. These electors would be individuals of high caliber, devoted to the principles of their respective political parties. They would have the unique distinction that half of them had been elected by the voters of their district or state and all would have been nominated for high honors.

An unofficial committee composed of these electors would have tremendous prestige in the nation. Their reports to the President on urgent government problems, their comments at press conferences and their public utterances would carry great weight. They would be serving at more - much more - than 50 per cent of their capacity, and the Republic would benefit. HLH

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON - One important factor behind Soviet oratory at the United Nations General Assembly is a political problem which congressional committees in Washington readily understand. It's the Kremlin's need to justify the huge investment of arms and aid to the Arab states, estimated by some Israeli observers as running over over $3.5 billion.

This is a tremendous amount of money for a government to plow into the Near East when Russian consumers are demanding more housing, more consumer goods and lower rents.

What the average American doesn't know is that the Russian people are just as sour on foreign aid as Sen. Allen Ellender of Louisiana or Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon. They don't like the idea of a lot of Soviet rubles being dumped abroad which could benefit their economy at home.

One of the charges against Nikita Khrushchev when he was ousted in October, 1964, was that in May, 1964, he had extended a $90 million loan to President Nasser to help complete the Aswan Dam, and that he had done so without consulting the other Kremlin leaders. Ninety million dollars is a relatively small figure compared with the subsequent military aid to the Arab states, though some money went for irrigation, airport improvement, highways and harbor construction.

While the primary reason for calling the U. N. General Assembly was to prove the Soviet is 100 per cent behind the Arabs, a secondary factor was to demonstrate to the Russian people the solid Soviet position in the Near East and focus attention away from the arms investment which the Israeli army in three days showed up as completely useless.

"REPREHENSIBLE"

SENATE EMPLOYEES

Senators who branded the conduct of the four ex-Dodd employees as reprehensible for exposing his unethical conduct should read a little history. Specifically they should read the case of their late colleague, Sen. John H. Mitchell of Oregon, who was convicted of taking fees, through his law firm, for getting Federal timber concessions for certain lumber companies.

In this famous case, which broke during the Teddy Roosevelt administration, the private secretary to Sen. Mitchell, Harry C. Robertson, gave an incriminating document to the Government which convicted Sen. Mitchell. Instead of being called reprehensible, Robertson was praised.

The case was one of the most famous in U.S. Senate history and one of only two in which a United States Senator was sent to jail. The other involved Sen. Barton of Kansas, convicted of taking a fee for getting a post office contract.

Sen. Mitchell's case has overtones similar to Dodd's; first, because private secretaries were involved as witnesses; second, because Sen. Dodd has received remuneration for taking cases against the United States Government. The Seneate Ethics committee, however, has passed the buck on to the Justice Department regarding this latter phase of Dodd's unethical conduct.

In the Mitchell case it was discovered that the law firm of Mitchell and Tanner in Oregon has been paid fees by the C.A. Smith Lumber Company in Minneapolis from 1901 through 1904 for getting federal lumber concessions. A. H. Tanner, Jr., had been the law partner of Sen. Mitchell before the latter was elected to the Senate from Oregon, and at the time of his election Sen. Mitchell wrote a clause in his partnership agreement whereby he was to receive one-half of all fees "except that for any services which may be rendered by said John H. Mitchell in the City of Washington, D.C. either in the the Supreme Court of the United States, the Court of Claims or before Congress or any of the departments, (which) shall be the individual matter and claim of said John H. Mitchell, and all fees so earned by him in either of said courts or before Congress or any of said departments . . .shall be the individual property of said John H. Mitchell, the firm shall have no interest therein."

This obviously was a violation of Section 1782 of the revised U.S. Statutes, which makes it a criminal offense for a member of Congress to collect any remuneration for any work done on behalf of clinets before the Federal Government.

"BURN THIS LETTER"

Four years later, when the U.S. attorney began digging into this, Sen. Mitchell secretly revised the agreement with his old law firm eliminating all references to fees earned for work "before Congress or any of the departments."

Sen. Mitchell also wrote a letter, February 5, 1905, to his law partner, Judge Tanner, which concluded: "Burn this without fail."

In the letter he told his law partner to "bring with you in trunk, but don't let your family or anyone know, all the company's books, day ledger, all of them, also your bank book, as I am extremely anxious to see for myself personally what the books show.

"Don't show Harry this letter or tell him anything in it. We don't let him see our books. Tell him nothing," wrote Sen. Mitchell, referring to his secretary, Harry Robertson.

Robertson, however, turned the letter over to the U.S. Government just as the ex-employees of Sen. Dodd reported on Dodd's unethical conduct. He was praised by the press and the Senate. Dodd's employees have been castigated by the Senate.

Note: Sen. Mitchell was convicted and sentenced to prison July 25, 1905, in the U.S. District court in Portland, Ore. He died six months later.

MAN AND MACHINE

Teamsters Prosper Without Hoffa; Reject His Secret Bids; Chiefs Plan Swiftly to Strip Him of All Powers

Washington, D.C.: -- For four months now, Jimmy Hoffa has learned that he is the indispensable man only at the controls of the "mattress shredder" in Lewisburg Penitentiary's main building.

Forty hours a week he feeds grimy old mattresses into the machines to make flossy new ones for 1,400 inmates of the maximum security jail and for the 250 at the freer prison camp over at nearby Allenwood, Pa., which makes stuffed furniture for the government.

His performance is good. He could earn from $10 to $25 a month for "meritorious" production. He is healthy and has not been hospitalized at all. And he has lots of time to think -- and thinks he'll quit as General President of the nation's largest union.

So he has sent confidential word to Teamsters leaders in the "outside" world that he would be willing to walk away from the Brotherhood forever if they get him out in some fashion -- legally, of course.

The reply is -- they could not care less what he thinks, says or offers. They want no deal. They need no deal. The Brotherhood is operating as coordinatedly and successfully as an Israeli air squadron.

For the first time in a generation it is accepted everywhere -- in the U.S. State Dept. circles; in Gov. Ronald Reagan's organization chart; in labor circles close to George Meany; and in this capital's "best" political milieus.

Contracts are being won. Compacts with other mass unions are being made. Conferences are being called.

There's a new chain of command. And the leaders like it.

Recently when the State Dept. learned that Frank Cousins, head of Britain's largest labor organization, the Transport and General Workers' Union, was due here, the government got the Teamsters to host a banquet for this former member of the Queen's Cabinet. About the same time, 11 visiting Russians also were wined and dined by the Brotherhood with paternal approval by the State Dept.

Not too long ago, California's Gov. Ronald Reagan appointed Teamsters Second Vice President Einar Mohn to the State Advisory Council of the State Dept. of Employment. Reagan also named Teamsters First Vice President Joe Diviny to the California Toll Bridge Authority. He is the public member!

Obviously the heat is off. Roy Siemiller's Machinists have made a new pact with the Western Conference of Teamsters. In the East, the Brotherhood fraternizes with the construction unions at some of the Rockefellers' soirees -- and joins in the merriment at Democratic fund-raising banquets. One of its leaders recently was honored by a world-famed national organization as the Labor Man of the Year.

In July there will be more coalitions in the making with their old AFL-CIO brethren -- in Boston at the Teamsters National Warehouse Conference and in Atlantic City at the Eastern Conference of Teamsters.

After almost two decades of guerilla warfare with the government in general and the local investigatory agencies in particular, the Brotherhood appreciates the cool. "Jimmy" isn't discussed much. "He did it to himself, he's virtually forgotten," says one of the new hierarchy.

"He pleaded illness to get out of prison," said this influential Teamsters chief. "That was admission of the weakness at which he always sneered. Remember how he raced up the beach at Miami to prove he had muscle after visiting a doctor there. Well, he's not ill. With this sick plea, it seems to us, Jimmy actually admits he was guilty as convicted, and not framed."

The "boys" know that the 50-year-old former 11th Vice President Anthony (Tough Tony Pro) Provenzano is seriously ill in the same penitentiary. Early in April he was rushed to the Public Service Hosptal in Baltimore for major surgery to remove an obstruction of the kidneys. But he did not yelp. He is back in prison waiting for parole on Sept. 4, 1968. But Hoffa broke the code -- he complained about ulcers and a hernia.

Now the Teamsters are set to break Hoffa. They just don't cherish the fact that he still is the $100,000-a-year "General President." They think it's time for the caretaker "General Vice President" Frank Fitzsimons to be honored and moved back to the second echelon from which he was drawn by Hoffa.

So next month in Washington, at a meeting of the Teamsters General Executive Board, a two-thirds majority is expected to move under Article 9, Section 8, to call a special convention of the Teamsters and elect new officers.

Only one technicality may defer the purge. They may decide to await a ruling on Hoffa's conviction in Chicago on charges of defrauding the $400 million central states pension fund.

But the consensus inside the Teamsters is that by the year's end there will be new officers, and they will play the returning prodigal act in AFL-CIO circles by asking for re-affiliation.

And Jimmy Hoffa will have his mattress shredder and a $2,000-a-week lifetime pension. Not a bad way to wander through obscurity.

LaDonna Parker Says Vows With Jerry R. Sullivan

EAST PRAIRIE - LaDonna Jean Parker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Paul Parker of Rochester, N.Y., and Jerry Robert Sullivan, son of Mrs. Edna Sullivan and Sam R. Sullivan of Pryor, Okla., were married at 2:30 p.m. Sunday in the First Church of God.

The Rev. J. L. Hatchel performed the double ring ceremony. The Rev. Mr. Hatchel was pastor of the Pryor congregation when Sullivan was younger and later was Miss Parker's pastor in East Prairie.

A single candelabra was in the background.

Mrs. Dolores Harvey accompanied Miss Sammie Jones as she sang, "Entreat Me Not to Leave Thee" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Parker escorted his daughter to the altar. She wore an empire styled gown. The bodice was white re-embroidered lace over white bridal satin. The bodice featured scalloped elbow-length sleeves and a scalloped neckline. Her floor-length skirt was A-line and fashioned of white satin over taffeta. Accenting the back of the gown were self-covered buttons. Attached at the back waistline was a white satin chapel-length train. A veil of white silk illusion was secured by a cluster of white silk roses.

The bridal bouquet was a cascade of white roses and baby's breath with ribbons tied in lovers' knots.

Miss Mary Ann Parker of Rochester, the bride's sister, was maid of honor. She wore a floor-length gown of powder blue nylon embossed with white and gold roses over sky blue peau de soie. Her headpiece was matching peau de soie roses with a short veil. She wore matching shoes and short white gloves.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Paula Elrod of Shawnee, Okla., the bride's sister, and Mrs. Sam Barker of Jonesboro, Ark. They wore floor-length powder blue nylon gowns embossed with white and gold roses over powder blue taffeta. The bridesmaids wore powder blue shoes, short white gloves and headdresses of powder blue taffeta roses encircled with short veils.

The attendants' gowns were styled like that of the bride. They carried nosegays of white daisies with gold ribbon.

Miss Charlotte Parker and Miss Debrah Parker, cousins of the bride, were candlelighters. Their floor-length gowns were fashioned of sky blue peau de soie with empire waistlines and sleeveless bodices. They wore peau de soie roses securing short veils. The candlelighters wore white daisy corsages with gold ribbon, white shoes and short gloves.

Martin David Combs, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lon Combs of St. Louis, was ring bearer and Miss Pamela Ann Elrod, daughter of Mrs. Paula Elrod of Shawnee, Okla., and niece of the bride, was flower girl.

The flower girl wore a floor-length sky blue peau de soie gown and a headpiece of peau de soie roses with a short veil. She carried a basket of white rose petals.

Mrs. John Griffith, the bride's aunt, presided at the guest register.

Robert Lawrence of Warsaw, Ind., was best man. Groomsmen were Don Hermansen of Long Beach, Calif., and Gale Plummer of Tulsa, Okla., the groom's brother-in-law. Ronnie Miller of Tulsa, the groom's brother-in-law, and the groomsmen were ushers.

Mrs. Parker chose for her daughter's wedding a powder blue jacquard print sheath. She wore white accessories and a white rose corsage.

Mrs. Sullivan, the groom's mother, wore a two piece celery green silk bonded lace suit with matching accessories and a white rose corsage.

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall. The bride's table was covered with an ecru lace tablecloth. A small nosegay of white daisies adorned the top of the three tiered wedding cake. The table centerpiece was a candelabra holding nine tapers with white and blue daisies entwined. Blue and white wedding bells were used in decorating the hall.

The groom's sisters, Mrs. Gale Plummer and Mrs. Ronnie Miller, both of Tulsa, served. Assisting them were Mrs. Gail Warren of St. Louis, and the bride's aunts, Mrs. Jewell Combs and Mrs. John Griffith.

The couple left for a wedding trip. For travel, Mrs. Sullivan wore a blue voile dress that featured white cuffs and collar. The couple will be at home at 614-1/2 Ruddle St., Anderson, Ind.

A 1964 graduate of East Prairie high school, Mrs. Sullivan will enter Anderson College, Anderson, Ind., this fall where she will be a senior working toward a teaching major in English. She is a member of Camarada social club, Sigma Tau Delta and on the dean's list.

Sullivan is a 1961 graduate of Pryor high school and a 1965 graduate of Anderson College with a bachelor of arts degree. He will be entering his third year at the school of theology, Anderson, where he is working toward a bachelor of divinity degree.

MARY, SIGHTING BETHLEHEM

At last I look on Bethlehem, and oh,
My heart is radiant with joy and praise,
They little matter now - the dust,
the slow
And weary journeying on rugged ways,
For soon the Child will come,
perhaps tonight,
The angel - promised Child who is to reign
In peace and holiness, a healing Light
To break the darkened fettering of sin.
Lord, help me show Him the sustaining power
Of faith and goodness, sacrifice and prayer.
And sometime, if there be a shadowed hour,
A steep and stony way that He must bear,
Oh, light His heart with strength and courage, Lord,
With vision of the gloried afterward!

In our parish Mrs. Williams tried hard to cooperate with the new methods of the school. Stephen brought a worm into the kitchen, asking, "Mother, are worms good to eat?"

"No, dear."

"But, why? There must be a reason."

"People just don't."

"Sister Rose in science class says we should prove things. Let's eat this worm and see." He cut the worm in half. "You eat half and I will, too."

She quickly gulped down the half and looked to Stephen for approval, but his eyes were welling with tears.

"You ate my half!"

Recently we moved to the country - and I am delighted that my wife has adjusted so well to the change. In the city, the sight of a bug would have sent her flying to the telephone for the exterminator. But one morning recently, a spider dropped onto her pillow just a few inches from her nose. She gasped, and then said calmly, "Well, at least it's our own spider."

It's a miracle to me the way girls from all parts of the country learn to live together in a college dormitory with a minimum of friction. As a coed, I have found their sportsmanship inspiring. It is the custom for each girl to put her name on the door and any other information, such as sorority affiliation, that she thinks pertinent. The two Negro girls living across the hall from me had the most imaginative sign of all. It read: "Welcome to the world of color."

Cards Blank Dodgers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The National League leading St. Louis Cardinals won their fourth straight game Wednesday night, 2-0, against the Dodgers in Los Angeles. It also was the seventh victory for the Cards in a 10-game road trip that ends tonight.

Ray Washburn and relievers Joe Hoerner and Nelson Briles combined to shut out the Dodgers on only four hits. Washburn allowed three before he was forced to leave in the seventh after being hit on his pitching hand by a line drive single by John Roseboro.

Hoerner kept things in check on one hit until Briles came on to get the final out in the ninth.

Curt Flood singled to drive in the Cards first run in the third inning and Tim McCarver homered in the seventh.

Washburn suffered a compound dislocation of the right thumb and a laceration, but no fracture. Cardinal spokesmen did not know how long the injury would sideline him.

St. Louis will open with Steve Carlton against the Dodgers Clause Osteen tonight.

Hire a big enough hall and you could assemble all of the 62 poor souls who've had the thankless task of pitching for the New York Mets during their 5½ adventurous seasons.

But the chairman of the meeting would have to be Jack Fisher, who's in his fourth season of that punishing job. Fisher had been at it longer than anybody else and for that he deserves to be chairman.

He hurled a brilliant two-hitter Wednesday night and beat Philadelphia 2-0 on an attack that consisted mainly of Tommy Davis getting plunked by Jim Bunning's pitches.

It was the best pitched game in the National League where Cincinnati nipped Houston 3-2, Chicago dropped Pittsburgh 6-3 and Atlanta battered San Francisco 9-2.

The only hits off Fisher were by rookie Gary Sutherland, who looped a leadoff double in the sixth and then singled in the eighth. Fisher struck out five and walked two in running his record to 5-7.

The Mets nicked Bunning for single runs in the first and third innings. Cleon Jones singled and stole second before Bunning hit Ed Kranepool and Davis in the first. Tom Reynolds' sacrifice fly delivered the run.

In the third, Davis was hit again, reached third on Rich Allen's error and then scored on a grounder.

Fisher, the workhorse of the Mets' staff, sailed through the first five innings. Sutherland's double and a pair of walks loaded the bases in the sixth but he escaped by getting Bill White on a grounder.

Like almost all their games, there was a touch of irony attached to the two-hitter for Fisher and the Mets. Sutherland, the only man to hit him safely, is the brother of a former Met pitcher.

Vada Pinson opened Cincinnati's ninth inning with a double and came around on a fly ball and a grounder for the Reds' winning run against Houston.

Pinson moved to third on Tony Perez' fly and scored on Lee May's bouncer. Perez and May accounted for Cincinnati's first two runs with solo homers. Jim Wynn hit his 17th for the Astros.

The Cubs moved into third place by beating the Pirates with Curt Simmons and Dick Radatz making an early four-run bulge stand up.

Simmons, 38, worked the first eight innings and Radatz set Pittsburgh down in the ninth as Chicago moved .001 ahead of San Francisco. Adolpho Phillips drove in two runs with a first inning single and John Boccabella chased two more across with a triple in the sixth.

Bob Uecker drove in five runs with a grand slam homer and a double as the Braves whacked the Giants.

Uecker's shot capped a seven-run Atlanta third that put it away for Pat Jarvis, who hurled a six-hitter. Denis Menke tagged three hits including a homer for the Braves.

Major League Players Go to Polls Today

NEW YORK (AP)— If outfielders were allowed to play other positions in baseball's All-Star Game, the major league players would have an easier time in making their selections.

The players went to the polls today to vote for the starting American and National League line-ups for the summer classic to be played in Anaheim, Tuesday, July 11.

Just what outfielders not to vote for was the number one problem facing the electorate.

In the National League seven outfielders are among the top 10 hitters and six are in first place in six of the seven individual categories kept by statisticians.

Six outfielders are among the top 10 hitters in the American League, and Baltimore's Frank Robinson not only is the No. 1 batter but he also leads in home runs and runs batted in as he bids for a second straight Triple Crown.

The only nonoutfielders among the first 10 NL hitters are St. Louis first baseman Orlando Cepeda, catcher Tim McCarver of St. Louis and Philadelphia third baseman Richie Allen. Cepeda, who has played the outfield, is tops in doubles.

The American League nonoutfielders who rank among the top 10 in hitting are Detroit catcher Bill Freehan, Minnesota second baseman Rod Carew, California first baseman Don Mincher and Boston shortstop Rico Petrocelli.

Outfielders Cesar Tovar of Minnesota and Rick Monday of Kansas City are not among the first 10 hitters, but Tovar leads in doubles and Monday is tied for first in triples.

The players in each league vote for three outfielders, without designating any positions, four infielders and a catcher.

The managers— Hank Bauer of Baltimore for the American League and Walt Alston of Los Angeles for the National— name the reserves and the pitching staffs.

American League President Joe Cronin named Chicago Manager Eddie Stanky and California skipper Bill Rigney as coaches Wednesday.

The AL starting lineups, except for pitchers, will be announced Tuesday and the NL on Wednesday.

PRIZE MONEY of over $37,000 has been announced for the 1967 Missouri State Fair Horse Show at Sedalia, an increase of about $10,000 over last year, Dexter Davis, commissioner of the Department of Agriculture, said. Dates of the fair are Aug. 19-27.

Although the total of 1,300 made last year a record year in the number of entries, E. F. Strickler, superintendent of the horse show, said he expects even more this year.

In addition to the prize money, the 1967 horse show will include trophies in all classes, as well as ribbons, and 18 challenge trophies.

There will be 24 classes for mules and 187 classes for horses and ponies. All show horses will have suitable divisions, Strickler said.

A total of 18 divisions will be shown, all free to the public including roadster, fine harness, walking, hackney pony, harness pony, roadster pony, three gaited horse, five-gaited horse, futurity, parade, hunters and campers, equitation, western, Appaloosa, saddle club, draft horse, mules, and registered quarter horses.

Entries must be postmarked no later than July 30, and sent to the Missouri State Fair, Box 111, Sedalia, Mo., in order to qualify.

THE PUBLIC INFORMATION program of the Missouri Department of Conservation is the best program of its kind in North America, according to judging announced here recently.

The judging was in competition sponsored by the American Association for Conservation Information (AACI). Awards are given in nine categories of informational work. In addition an overall award is also given. This award is based on points accumulated in judging in the other nine categories.

The Missouri Conservation Department won four first place awards, in the categories of conservation magazines (The Missouri CONSERVATIONIST); conservation movies ("Headwaters"); conservation publications ("Inventory 66"); and conservation exhibits (The Conservation Department's exhibit at the Missouri State Fair).

In addition, the Missouri department won second place awards in the categories of conservation news programs and conservation radio programs. Missouri also entered the categories of television and photography.

This is the third consecutive year the Missouri department has won first place awards in the magazines and publications categories.

Missouri's four firsts and two seconds, plus points for entering two other categories, assured her of overall conservation information award signifying the best information program in the competition.

Missouri won the awards in competition with conservation agencies of the states and provinces of North America, although some states and provinces did not enter exhibits in the competition. Second and third places in the overall competition went to Oklahoma and Utah.

James F. Keefe, information officer for the Missouri Department of Conservation, accepted the Missouri awards at the annual meeting of the AACI here.

NFL Teams to Meet AFL in Preseason

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Football League and the American Football League will get together to play 16 preseason games this year during the period between Aug. 5 and Sept. 3.

Regular season play between the two leagues is not expected to start until 1970. The only previous meeting of the leagues was in the Super Bowl at Los Angeles where the Green Bay Packers of the NFL defeated the Kansas City Chiefs of the AFL.

The first inter-league test will be Saturday, Aug. 5, with Detroit at Denver.

Detroit will play three AFL rivals— Denver, Buffalo and San Diego— and the Philadelphia Eagles and Los Angeles Rams each will play two AFL teams. St. Louis, Green Bay, New York and Cleveland of the NFL will not play any games with the other league this year.

Each of the other teams, except Detroit, Philadelphia and Los Angeles, will play one each.

All of the AFL teams will play NFL teams. San Diego will take on Detroit, Los Angeles and Pittsburgh. Buffalo, Boston, Kansas City, Miami and Denver each will play two and Houston, the New York Jets and Oakland one each.

Although there will be no Giant-Jets meeting of the two New York teams, there will be a Sept. 3 battle at Oakland between the San Francisco 49ers and the Oakland Raiders. An all-Texas game will be played Sept. 2 when the Dallas Cowboys invade Houston to play the Oilers.

The San Diego Chargers, who used to make Los Angeles their home, will face the Los Angeles Rams Aug. 27 at San Diego and the newest expansion teams, Miami of the AFL and New Orleans of the NFL, will meet Sept. 2 on the neutral ground of Charleston, S.C.

The NFL's preseason schedule, announced by President Art Modell, Cleveland owner, calls for a total of 51 games including the 16 with the AFL.

"The fact that nearly a third of our games are with AFL teams makes this an especially interesting prelude to the new NFL season," said Modell."

Six of the NFL games will be carried on national telecasts, starting with the Green Bay-College All-Star game at Chicago, Aug. 4 on the American Broadcasting Company. Five other nationally televised games will be carried by the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Wheat Crop Insurance Available

WASHINGTON -- All - risk wheat crop insurance will be available for the first time in the 1968 crop year to farmers in Butler, Cape Girardeau and Scott Counties, Missouri Senators Stuart Symington (D-Mo) and Edward V. Long (D-Mo) and Cong. Paul C. Jones (D-10th District) announced today.

Crop insurance is now available to farmers in 62 Missouri counties. In addition, $7.4 million in Missouri crop production expenses on more than 200,000 acres was protected by federal crop insurance in 1966. An estimated $460,000 was paid to Missouri farmers for some 1,100 losses during the 1966 crop year.

In telling of the new crop insurance Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman stated; "When crop damage from weather, insects, disease or other causes hits a rural area, it hurts everyone for miles around -- merchants, equipment dealers, bankers --- every bsuiness and profession feels the loss. When crop loss strikes, federal crop insurance payments to individual farmers bolster the economy of the whole community.

"Equally important," Secretary Freeman added, "during the good crop years, thousands of farmers can benefit from their Crop Insurance protection by using their policies as collateral for loans."

POWER ROOM CAN FIT INTO 4 X 5 SPACE

If your budget won't permit you to build on a much-needed bathroom, see if you can't find some waste space in an old closet, pantry, under a stairwell or at the end of a hall for a compact powder room that will ease the strain on existing bathroom facilities.

You can install a powder room in a space as little as 4 x 5 feet, according to the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau. Lavatories and water closets that can be installed in corners are available for rooms with unusual shapes.

Improvements Scheduled for Highway 25

MALDEN - Representatives of the Highway 25 Association have been informed that a resurfacing and improvement program in the five-year plan by the State Highway Commission.

The information was released at a hearing Thursday before the SHC in Jefferson City attended by Highway 25 Association representatives from Bernie, Malden, Clarkton and Kennett. James Spain of Bloomfield appeared at the hearing seeking improvements for the much traveled highway.

Senator Tinnin told the Highway Commission of the poor condition of Route 25, of the heavy traffic that uses it and of its vital importance to the area.

Allen Black, acting chairman of the Highway 25 Association, pointed out the industrial growth in Dexter, Bernie, Malden and Kennett and of the importance highway improvements means to the area. He cited the improvements to U.S. 60, Interstate 55 and Route 84 which virtually encircle the area and said that the citizens along Highway 25 are becoming alarmed that nothing is being done in the immediate area.

Jack Stapleton, chariman of the SHC, asked if the accident rate was still high and he was assured that it was.

Also, it was pointed out that Route 25 makes 90-degree turns in downtown Bernie and Malden and that a curve in Clarkton is virtually under water every time that it rains.

Other speaking on behalf of improvements for Route 25 were Senator Pat Patterson, Rep. R. B. King, Rep. James Spain, Rep. Vic Downing, R. B. Woods of Bernie, John Howell of Malden, and J. E. Ditto of Kennett.

Others attending the meeting were J. M. Allen of Bernie, S. H. James and Ike Brannon of Clarkton, and Randel Hardin of Kennett.

The Commission appeared much more receptive to improvements for Highway 25 than they did one year ago. They asked many questions and indicated they would give the project consideration.

PLANNED IMPROVEMENTS

The improvements for Highway 25 as now scheduled are:

1967 - 2.5 miles through Bernie.

1969 - 8.2 miles in the Cardwell area.

1972 - 7.8 miles Dexter to Bernie, widen and resurface.

1972 - 1.5 miles through Townley.

1972 - 3.4 miles through Malden.

1972 - 1.5 miles Stoddard County line to Malden.

Present plans do not include anything from McGuire south to White Oak. Members of Highway 25 Association will seek to have this strip put on future programs as soon as possible.

Congo Harbors Refugees

KINSHASA, The Congo (AP) —Spread untidily across two blocks in the heart of the Congolese capital is a camp for Angolan refugees.

Men, women and children live there among their goats and chickens in conditions that are squalid even by African standards. The red-white-yellow flag of the Angolan revolution floats overhead.

The camp is officially described as a transit center. A pink stucco building in the middle is the headquarters of the "Revolutionary Government of Angola in Exile"— GRAE. Its president, Roberto Holden, hopes one day to rule the immense Portuguese colony to the south.

Holden, a tall, bearded scholar, is saluted smartly by uniformed Angolans as he drives into his headquarters.

He presides over "cabinet meetings" and councils of war, and receives from his Congolese hosts the honors and privileges of a head of state. He operates several military training camps near the Angolan border and has jurisdiction over the 400,000 Angolans said to have fled from the guerrilla war to seek safety in the Congo.

Along the hundreds of miles of the Angolan border, new villages have sprung up where the Angolan refugees, with United Nations help, are clearing the bush and settling down for good on Congo territory. They speak the same Kikongo dialect as the local population and blend easily into their new homeland.

South of the border, many villages in Angola's mountainous interior have been abandoned by inhabitants. Western intelligence reports say nationalist activity against the Portuguese is increasing, but the rebels are too badly organized and too divided to have much hope of driving the Portuguese out of Angola soon.

The Congo supplies Holden arms it doesn't need for its own troops. Some of the rebels' small arms date to World War I. In the training camps, recruits use sticks to learn rifle drill.

From the training camps safely located on Congolese territory, the guerrillas strike deep into Angola to harass the Portuguese with ambushes and booby traps.

Holden claimed in an interview that the entire northern corner of Angola was under control of his troops. But anyone driving along the border can see that the Portuguese are still firmly installed.

The border has been theoretically closed since the Congo broke relations with Portugal last year. But twice a week, on Wednesdays and Saturdays, civilian cars are permitted to cross. Congo residents drive into Angola to stock up on potatoes, sugar, butter and rice, virtually unobtainable on the open market in the Congo.

The railroad running through Angola from Katanga to Lobito still carries most of Katanga's copper exports which provide 70 per cent of the Congo's foreign exchange earnings.

Angolan guerrilla bands recently cut the railroad line and temporarily halted Katanga's copper exports. The Congolese government condemned Holden for this action and demanded assurances that, no matter what else the rebels did against the Portuguese, the Lobito railroad would not be interfered with.

Holden said the Portuguese themselves cut the line, to embarrass him with the Congolese.

American officials, who watch developments in Angola carefully but do not intervene in any way, believe the railroad was cut by men of the Communist-inspired Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola — MPLA — the GRAE's deadly rival. MPLA, headed by Dr. Agostino Neto, is based in Brazzaville, on the opposite bank of the Congo River from Kinshasa.

Cut off by the river from direct access to Angola, the MPLA has concentrated some of its action on the Portuguese enclave of Cabinda, but has met with little enthusiasm from the population. It receives money and weapons from Red China and the Soviet bloc, but suffers from a shortage of Angolan recruits for its guerrilla forces.

Hometown Goes All out For Clown

SEDAN, Kan. (AP) - Circus clown Emmett Kelly, whose lovable, sad-faced, blundering alter ego, Weary Willie the tramp, is more familiarly known to audiences than Kelly himself, won't be on hand for his homecoming celebration Friday.

Kelly, born in Sedan and reared to boyhood in Houston, Mo., is being victimized by Willie's immense popularity.

He notified sponsors of the event Tuesday that performing commitments are keeping him too busy to come here until September.

"That kind of took the steam out of things," said Dr. M. L. Rees, one of the sponsors, "but we're going right along with plans anyway. Our entertainment is all scheduled and the museum is ready for opening."

The museum is a collection of replicas and memorabilia of Kelly's eventful life from small-town boy to manhood and fame as a bigtop performer.

Many of the mementos were supplied by Kelly himself, others by friends and admirers," and he told me he has some more that he'll bring around in September," Dr. Rees said.

"We have a parade set for 1 p.m. Friday, and the ribbon-cutting at the museum will be about 1:30 p.m.," Rees added. "We decided the best thing we can do is open the museum Friday, and then have the formal opening in September when Emmett will be available."

The museum is housed in a downtown Sedan building. A piece of the original pine flooring taken from the home, no longer standing, where Kelly was born 69 years ago will be fashioned into two keys to the city. One will be presented to Kelly, the other will remain in the museum.

Other entertainment Friday will include a hootenny, street dances, band concerts and a special screening of circus films.

Streets and businesses in Sedan, a southeast Kansas community of 1,800, are being decorated in a circus motif, and residents have been asked to wear clown costumes for the day.

Concessions will operate circus-style on Sedan streets and donate proceeds of their sales to the museum fund. Souvenirs will be sold at the museum for the same purpose.

Kelly returned in 1956 to Houston, Mo., for the first time in 37 years for the dedication of a park in his name.

NAKED TRUTH

The woman was berating her husband about the fact that their picture window had no drapes.

"Do you realize," she shouted, "that if I happened to be running around the house stark naked the neighbors could look in the window and see me? Do you?"

"Relax," said the husband calmly. "If the neighbors could see you stark naked, they'd buy the drapes."

Film Censorship All But Wiped out by Court Rulings

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Movie men tell the story of how films were censored in Kansas in the old days.

The State Board of Review was in Kansas City, Kan., near film distributors, and the only space to be found for showings was in the Fire Department headquarters.

Firemen and off-duty police were invited to watch. When their whoops and catcalls reached a certain pitch, board members decided that the scene should be censored.

Censoring was just as haphazard in other areas. Memphis, which had the strictest censorship of any American city, once banned "The Southerner" because it painted an uncomplimentary picture of the South. Chicago deleted the birth of a buffalo from Walt Disney's "The Vanishing Prairie."

All that has changed. An Associated Press survey discloses that local and state censorship of movies has all but vanished.

Almost from the beginning of the movie medium, censors were in evidence. The first important story film was "The Great Train Robbery." A flood of films about crime followed, moving a Chicago judge to comment: "Those nickelodeons indirectly or directly caused more juvenile crimes coming into this court than all other causes combined."

Depictions of crime, sex and dope stirred moralists to seek controls over movies. By the mid-1920s, scores of cities and eight states— Pennsylvania, New York, Illinois, Virginia, Kansas, Maryland, Massachusetts, Ohio— had film censorship boards. A major reason film makers formed a producers association was to prevent the proliferation of censor boards.

"You have eight state censor boards now; some day you may have 48," warned film czar Will Hays. To help forestall such, he instituted the industry's self-censorship code.

Hays and his successor, Eric Johnston, strove to keep local censorship at a minimum. Then the U.S. Supreme Court came to the rescue.

New York State censors had banned "The Miracle" because it was "sacriligious." In 1952, the Supreme Court unanimously overturned the ban and issued a sweeping decree that motion pictures are "included within the free speech and free press guaranty of the First and Fourteenth amendments."

In case after case, the courts have since nullified censorship boards. This month a federal court struck down the board in Fort Worth, Tex. Here is a survey of other cities and states, as reported by Associated Press bureaus:

MILWAUKEE — Mayor-appointed Motion Picture Commission screens films and recommends cuts. The commission has no enforcement powers but exhibitors tend to comply.

NEW ORLEANS — No official censorship.

BOSTON — The haven of censorship retains a censor in the chief of licensing division. Action isn't taken until a complaint is received. Review board includes members of the police vice squad, member of the City Law Department and sometimes the licensing chief. Exhibitors of offending films often withdraw them voluntarily; if not, court action is sought.

ATLANTA — No official censorship.

MEMPHIS — There has been no censorship since the city's long-time censor board was abolished by the courts.

DALLAS — A classification board labels films as "adult" or "general public." Adult films must be so advertised in newspapers and in front of the theater.

OKLAHOMA — The state has no official board of censors. The current legislature passed an obscenity law which could be applied to films, although it was aimed at the stag-reel type.

PORTLAND, Ore. — No censorship since the city's film review board was declared unconstitutional in "The Lovers" case. District attorney has twice taken cases to grand jury under state obscenity law.

MARYLAND — The only state censorship board left in the country is headed by Egbert Quinn, 82. All films must get licenses from a three-man board, which must act in 15 days or the applicant can be shown in the state.

KANSAS — The State Board of Review, which had oparated since 1917, was ruled unconstitutional by the Supreme Court last year.

DETROIT — The Police Department reviews films and recommends cuts through the obscenity detail of the Liquor License Bureau. "We never ban a film outright," says an officer. Sometimes the tag "recommended for adult patronage only" is suggested.

WASHINGTON, D.C. — No censorship.

CHICAGO — Five mayor-appointed civilians form a film review board, which was upheld by the Supreme Court in 1961. The board may restrict patronage to 18 or older, recommend cuts or reject a film entirely. If rejected, the film can be appealed to a board consisting of civilians from arts, sciences, etc. Last recourse is to the courts.

NEW YORK — No state or local censorship. The state's censor board went out of business in 1965 after court decisions riddled the censorship law.

SEATTLE — A review board has power to recommend cuts and to label films in age classifications. However, the ordinances empowering the board have been attacked in the courts, and a Supreme Court decision is awaited.

CHEYENNE — No censorship.

While local and state censorship has virtually been quelled in the United States, occasional outcry for control of film content remains. A longtime advocate of censorship has been Justice Michael A. Musmanno of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court.

He argues: "The time has come for Congress and the state legislatures to take up this subject seriously. It used to be that one could go into almost any motion picture theater and see something clean, wholesome and entertaining. Now no family-loving man dares to take his children into a cinema house without first sending out a scout to find out if the picture therein is fit for the eyes of youth.

"We are willing to have water filtured, butter examined, meat inspected, drugs checked. Why should we not have supervision over what is being poured into the minds of young people?

"The poison which enters their minds and souls in some of the motion picture theaters today can do, and is doing, more harm than narcotics and marijuana cigarettes."

THIS I KNOW

There are so many things
I may not understand--
The words a wild wind sings,
The changing sea and land.

How in some tiny sphere
A moment, short for me,
To unknown lives appear
A full eternity.

How can I judge what's a big?
How can I say what's small?
What lives at end of twig?
This is so, and this I know,
God planned and loves them all.

FREUDIAN COINCIDENCE

When I was a young man, our country church held very spirited revival meetings in the summer months. The sermons were often long, loud and repetitious.

One sultry evening in July the visiting revivalist had been preaching a fiery sermon against drinking. "Liquor is the downfall of man," he repeated several times, "and it should all be poured in the rivers."

After the sermon, he asked someone to direct a song. On this evening I had been dozing and, naturally, he called on me. The first thing that popped in my mind was to sing a familiar song. I called out the number of the page of a song and turned to it.

Hearnes Lists Home And Farm Property

By JACK FLACH
Globe-Democrat Political Editor

JEFFERSON CITY, MO. --- Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, who helped push through the state conflict of interest law two years ago, Wednesday filed his first disclosure report listing his holdings.

The statement, filed in the Senate and House, was brief. It listed only his new home and contents at Charleston and one-half interest in the "Hearnes Brothers Farm Inc. property in Mississippi County," as substantial holdings.

Hearnes told The Globe - Democrat he doubted if there would be any bills this session he would act on that would conflict with his substantial holdings but that he filed to be on the safe side.

Although figures are not listed in his statement, his newly-built fashionable house in his home town of Charleston in southeast Missouri is in the $65,000 class. The Governor said he has a $20,000 mortgage on the home.

The only other thing he owns of "substantial interest" under the law is a partnership in some 200 acres of valuable land in the Missouri Bootheel, he said. There is also about a $20,000 mortage on the property.

He told The Globe - Democrat he disposed of his shares in the Citizens Bank of Charleston when he took office in 1965 to avoid any conflict with his duties as Governor. He also resigned from the board of directors.

The conflict of interest legislation requires the governor, lieutenant governor and legislators to file disclosure statements of holdings of substantial interest if there is a conflict between these holdings and their state jobs.

To date, all of the senate members and all but 45 of the 163 house members have filed such disclosure statements.

Lt. Gov. Thomas F. Eagleton was one of the first to file at the start of the session in January. As president pro tem of the Senate, he rules on many bills and also refers bills to committees.

Eagleton's holdings consist of stock in Radio Corp. of America, General Tire and Rubber Corp., Teledyne Inc., Automatic Sprinkler Corp., Buckbee Mears Co., Denver Chemical Corp., Litton Industries, Missouri Pipe Fittings Co., and Smith - Scharff Paper Co.

He also listed his home at 268 Woodbourne, Dr., St. Louis, his practive of civil law at 818 Olive St., and fees for legal service by the law firm of Eagleton and Eagleton received from Anheuser - Busch Inc. and its subsidaries.

A FEW INTERESTING FACTS

Here are some little known facts about the Union of South Africa:

...In 1965 the United States exported to South Africa $438 million worth of goods, and imported only $225 million worth from that country, showing a favorable trade balance to our country of $213 million.

...With only six percent of Africa's population, the Union of South Africa turned out about 40 percent of the industrial production of the continent.

...South Africa produced 80 percent of Africa's steel, 90 percent of its gold, and 60 percent of its electricity.

...During the last five years the wages of native South Africans rose nearly 40 percent. Their skills are improving, their standards of living rising, their fields of employment and occupation widening.

...Over 12,000 black people own their own businesses, some bank as much as $3,000 a day. Three are reputed to be millionaires.

...No youth who can pass the matriculation examination need miss a university education if he wants it - regardless of his race or color.

...There are more than 2,800 native South Africans who are university graduates.

...In the Union of South Africa, 83 percent of the black children are in school. This is much higher than in any other African country.

...Virtually every black child is within walking distance of a primary school ....Nowhere in independent Africa do people, regardless of race or color, have as high a standard of living, education and health services, as in South Africa . . . About one million foreign black Africans work in South Africa. With great difficulty other millions are prevented from crossing the borders in search of the benefits to be found from living and working in South Africa. We Americans should keep in mind these facts about the Union of South Africa as we evaluate our nation's policies toward that country.

Interest Rates Defy Downward Pressure

NEW YORK (AP) — Intricate plans of the administration and the Federal Reserve Board to press down interest rates from their record highs of last summer are meeting with some success, lots of frustration and even outright failure.

This mixed picture is therefore causing concern among the nation's public and private money managers who remember with horror how rates got completely out of hand last year and rose to 40-year highs. These rates still are not in check.

This week some of last summer's highs were topped. Amazing as it may sound, long-term rates have been going opposite to hopes, efforts and forecasts. They are rising.

The simplest explanation is that these forecasts and efforts were based on the assumption that human beings would act and react in predictable ways. They haven't. Borrowing habits changed after last year's experience.

This failure of some federal money policies is illustrated by the whopping 6.10 per cent that a New Jersey utility with a very high credit rating, Public Service Electric & Gas Co., had to pay to borrow $75 million.

This rate is slightly higher than another utility paid at the peak of last year's money crisis. But since then the Federal Reserve has pumped plenty of funds into the market. Why should it be so expensive to borrow?

The answer lies in a change of viewpoint by many businessmen. Having been caught short last year, they are vowing it won't happen again. They are hoarding credit. They are anticipating distant needs. They are borrowing for long terms.

With some of these funds so acquired, the borrowers are doing something just as unusual. They are paying off their low-cost, short-term debts. They are, therefore, choosing a more expensive type of borrowing for the security of knowing they'll have the funds when they need them.

The short-term market, therefore, is in better shape. Money is plentiful, and rates are low. Savings banks have, in fact, been reinvesting much of their new funds in corporate bonds—in the long—term market.

Frustrations appear again, however, in the home mortgage market. Rates have been dropping somewhat and are under 6.40 per cent on a national average. But some analysts feel they might not go much lower for a while.

The housing market has been of great concern to the money men. Throughout this year the administration and the Federal Reserve have shown they are acutely aware that the high cost of mortgage money last year was the chief cause of a depression in the housing industry. And so they pumped in money to bring down rates.

Now that they have met with some success, they find their efforts have been offset to a degree by higher prices for houses. The result: forecasts of a housing boom remain forecasts. The boom has not begun.

Selecting Those Spuds

Size is one of the most important points to remember when selecting potatoes. It can make a difference in how long the potato takes to cook, how best to cook it, and how much it takes to make one serving.

The smaller the potato, the shorter the cooking time, of course. But when cooking spuds whole, all should be about the same size, so they will be done at the same time.

All sizes have certain favored uses. Large potatoes usually are preferred for baking, small ones for boiling whole. In both cases, with the skins left on, potatoes retain more of their good food value.

Medium-sized spuds are liked for all 'round use. One of these is generally considered one serving, which makes meal planning easier. And they are easy to handle when preparing.

The size of spuds makes a difference in how much you have to serve after cooking. U.S. Department of Agriculture home economists say a pound (or about 3 medium-sized potatoes will yield about 3 servings of boiled, baked, roasted, or steamed whole potatoes. If mashed, creamed, or hash-borwned, a pound of potatoes will give 3 to 4 servings. Or the same amount of raw spuds will make 4 servings of French fries.

This year's potato crop is particularly plentiful, according to USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service. So, shoppers have plenty of spuds to select from.

POTATO PLATTERS:

SPLIT PEA CHOWDER

Chunks of salt pork and diced potatoes in creamy split pea soup. Flavor with just a bit of garlic. Garnish with cooked frozen green peas.

POTATOES
ON THE HALF SHELL

Scoop out baked potatoes, being careful not to damage shell. Mash potatoes with butter, hot milk, and peanut butter. Season to taste. Fold in stiffly-beaten egg whites. Refill shells. Sprinkle with grated cheese, and bake in hot oven until golden brown.

PORK AND 'TATER SCALLOP

Uncooked sliced potatoes in onion-flavored white sauce. Top with inch-thick pork chops. Bake in covered casserole for about 45 minutes. Remove cover and continue baking until chops brown. Serve in casserole with sliced tomato garnish.

HOT POTATO SALAD

Create a mayonnaise white sauce. Combine with diced cooked potatoes, celery, green pepper, onions, and pimento. Place in casserole. Bake in moderate oven until thoroughly heated.

CREAMED POTATOES

Diced, sliced, or whole tiny potatoes, cooked. Combine with medium-thick white sauce. Add garlic bud. Heat. Remove garlic before serving.

LUCKY DOGS

TIRED OF WATER SHORTAGES? HOW ABOUT YOUR WELL?

"Drought continues. No relief in sight."

"Lawn sprinkling and car washing banned during water shortage. Violators will be fined."

"Water pollution endangers public health. Solution imperative, experts warn."

Do these headlines sound familiar? We see them regularly. Does this mean that America, the land of plenty, is running out of water? No, the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau says. There's plenty, but too often it's "mismanaged." Now, steps are being taken to reclaim polluted surface waters and enact laws to prevent further pollution.

More than 97 percent of the world's fresh water supply is underground, according to the Ground Water Resources Institute. More and more municipalities will turn to ground water Resources Institute. More water to augment their dwindling supplies in 1967. But that isn't all. Individual homeowners are having wells drilled to supplement the water they get from municipal systems and make them independent of the latter should water shortage hit.

At least 50,000 supplemental wells will be drilled in 1967. This is in addition to the nearly half-million individual water systems that will be installed for families that depend 100 percent on well water. In all, there are about 10 million such systems in the U.S. serving about one-fourth of the population. The complete home water system consists of the well, an electric pump, controls and a water tank.

For more information on having your own well, write to the Ground Water Resources Institute, 205 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. 60606. Send 15 cents in coin and ask for "How Water Wells Help You Solve Your Water Problems - Easily and Economically!"

PLAN NEW BATHROOM WITH CARE

If your summer remodeling plans call for updating an old bathroom or adding a new one, visit a plumbing contractor's showroom before you begin. Ask him to show you the latest products and to explain the differences in product quality to you. Better quality fixtures are stain and acid-resistant, retain their luster longer, are more efficient.

You can get ideas for arranging fixtures from a booklet titled "Modern Bathroom Plans" that includes 34 different layouts. It's available for 25 cents from the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau, 35 E. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. 60601.

WATER IN THE BEDROOM IS MAKING STRONG COMEBACK

Great grandmother had water in her bedroom and performed her morning toilet with the aid of a china bowl and pitcher. Then came the bathroom, and water moved out of the bedroom.

Now it's making a strong comeback, the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau points out, as bedroom vanity lavatories are growing increasingly popular, especially with mothers and their teenage daughters.

Manufacturers are making vanity cabinets to fit in with any bedroom decor. Countertops come in stain-resistant simulated wood or marble or in dozens of other finishes. The bowls themselves can be virtually any color or decorated with flower, fruit or other designs. Faucets are veritable jewels - shiny chrome, acrylic that sparkles like cut-crystal, even gold-plated. Shapes vary from high-style modern to dolphins, swans, merrimaids or what you will.

It's predicted that in a few years, the bedroom vanity lavatory will grow more and more elaborate, enhanced by such accessories as specially framed mirrors and lights. It will be the focal point of the bedroom, with the rest of the room planned around it.

HOOVER DAM

Stimulated into solving large-scale material and distribution problems by the nation's outstanding production record during World War I, American minds in the 1920s turned to finishing the job to be done at home. So that the Southwest region could develop economically through flood and silt control, irrigation, and power generation (and could thus support a larger population). President Hoover in 1928 authorized the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation to construct a giant dam in narrow Boulder Canyon separating Nevada and Arizona -- for the purpose of taming for the first time since the dawn of history the surging waters of the often unpredictable Colorado River. It took eight years to complete the building of the record-breaking 726-ft.-high dam, which is almost as high as the Woolworth Building. The structure was built with 3,245,612 cubic yards of concrete in the form of a graceful curve so that it could resist the water pressure behind it by its action as an arch, with the steep side walls of the gorge serving as abutments to carry the unprecedented thrust.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — With state and local censorship virtually wiped out by court rulings, responsibility for determining the taste of movie entertainment in the United States rests largely in one man.

He is Liverpool-born Geoffrey Shurlock, 72, who administers the production code for the Motion Picture Association. Between 90 and 95 per cent of the movies seen in American theaters pass through his office. There they are measured for compliance with the industry's self-censorship code.

Shurlock, a brisk, smallish man, insists that "I'm just a paid employee, trying to apply the code which the producers have created."

Yet his power is undeniable. Rarely are his decisions disputed or appealed.

With films turning more and more to realism in language and treatment of sex, Shurlock finds his office under continuing fire from industry and public critics.

"I think we are doing a good job of reflecting the taste of the American public," he says. "After all, the people are the final judges. They will generally accept what is reasonable and reject what is in bad taste. We watch very closely the reaction of the public to what appears on the screens.

"After all, what other good judgment is there except the general good sense of the public?"

Shurlock points proudly to the fact that the United States is the only country "in which censoring is entirely in the hands of those who make the films."

"In all other countries censorship is done to a greater or lesser degree by the government," he said. "Only England comes close to our system, but the government has some control because it subsidizes the film industry. Ours is the only unsubsidized film industry in the world."

Hollywood's self-censorship stemmed from scandals in the 1920s, when moralists assailed the industry and threatened to create censor boards in every state and city. A strict code of morality was created and enforced. Only last year was the code reduced to basic, generalized statements.

That was something Shurlock had been advocating for years. He also had advocated a classification system for age groups, as is done in most other countries. In the past year 14 movies have been passed by the code administration with the label, "suggested for mature audiences."

Shurlock and his assistants are available for consultations with producers over troublesome scenes.

Fur can fly when the final film is presented for approval. Sometimes producers refuse to make suggested cuts. Then they can appeal to the directors of the Producers Association, joined by six theater operators and four independent producers. That is the court of last resort.

Outside Counseling Can Patch Up Marriages

Dear Ann Landers: What can I do to get my mother to forgive my father? For five years my father was unfaithful but he has told Mom that he never loved the other woman, and he will not see her any more. Mom has asked Dad for a divorce, not because she doesn't love him, but because she thinks he would be happier if he were free. She blames herself for his unfaithfulness --- says if she had been the right kind of wife he wouldn't have strayed.

I don't think Dad really understands how Mom feels. Should I suggest that he be more affectionate and take her out more? Would that help?

We kids love both Mom and Dad and we hate to think of our family being busted up. Several of our friends have divorced parents and it is just rotten --- summers with one, weekends split up and nobody happy.

Please print some suggestions for children of parents who are having trouble. We need your help. --- IN A PANIC

Dear In: It's a sad state of affairs when kids have to act as mediators for battling parents.

If you feel that either or both Mom or Dad would be receptive to your advice, by all means offer it. In the meantime I am printing your letter so squabbling parents can see how they appear in the eyes of their children. I am adding my own plea that they get some outside counseling and learn how to live together.

Dear Ann Landers: I have been a reader of your column ever since I learned how to read. I am 13 years old now and I need your advice.

A schoolmate died last week and everyone was very sad about it. Several of us girls went to the funeral home to pay our last respects. One of the girls in the group took a camera along and made several pictures of the classmate in the casket. She has asked me if she should give a few of the pictures to the parents of the deceased. I don't know what to tell her. Please help. --- MISS M.D.

Dear Miss: My immediate reaction is a strongly negative one, but much to my surprise, in the past, I have received such a variety of opinions about photographing deceased people in caskets that I hesitate to say no. The girl who took the pictures should ask the parents if they would like the photographs.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 26, the mother of three children. It just so happens that I do not like coffee or tea. It's not a matter of religious conviction, I simply prefer milk or a glass of cold water.

It seems that whenever I go to a luncheon or a dinner, someone makes a point of my not drinking coffee or tea, and I end up looking like a freak. Yesterday I attended a church social and when I refused coffee and asked for milk or water, the woman said, "Any person who cannot enjoy a hot cup of coffee after a meal must be mentally disturbed."

How can I defend myself? --- PERSECUTED

Dear Pers: No one needs to give a reason for declining any beverage or food. Just ignore the clods and forgive them for their bad manners.

Do you feel ill at ease . . .out of it? Is everybody having a good time but you? Write for Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity," enclosing with your request 35¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

If You Were the Judge

Police Duty Bound to Protect Citizens' Property

BY Jack Strass L.L.D.

THE CASE OF THE VANISHING MANSION

McFuddle owned a once proud mansion that was vacated by its tenants. Shortly after they departed, the mansion began to depart also, piece by piece. Radiators disappeared, doors were removed and even bath tubs were cleaned out. Soon, the building was a broken-down shell of its former self. And, to add to poor McFuddle's befuddlement, he was given a summons for maintaining a public hazard, to wit: an abandoned and decrepit old building.

"You can't blame me for the condition of the building," McFuddle pleaded in court. "Trying to maintain it is like trying to swat a mosquito when you're sleeping. It's impossible. In fact, every time I find something missing I report it to the police but they can't find the culprits or do anything about it either. Soon the walls will walk away."

"Good!" answered the district attorney. "Then there won't be any more building and no more problem. But, in the meantime, the building belongs to McFuddle and he's responsible for the hazard."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you convict McFuddle of maintaining a public hazard?

This is how the judge ruled: No! The judge held that a city, through its police department, is duty bound to protect property; that, in this case, although the city's police department had all the ultramodern scientific crime detecting paraphernalia at its disposal, it was unable to find the reason for, or to prevent, the disappearance of so seemingly stable an object as a house Since the condition of McFuddle's building was due to the ineffectiveness of its own police department, concluded the judge, the city could not hold McFuddle responsible for the consequences of its own shortcomings.

Referee Rules Against Poultry Farmer Boycott

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Agriculture Department referee has recommended that three major poultry broiler concerns in Arkansas be ordered to desist from allegedly boycotting poultry farmers working to organize farmers for better prices.

The proposed order grew out of a formal complaint filed by the department against the three firms in 1965 under provisions of the Packers and Stockyards Act.

The three are Arkansas Valley Poultries Inc., of Little Rock; Ralston Purina Co., of St. Louis, Mo., and Tyson's Foods Inc., of Springdale, Ark.

A controversy over the complaint has been pending nearly two years and had found its way briefly into federal district court. Its ultimate conclusion could have widespread impact on farmers' efforts to strengthen their bargaining power through producer organizations.

The department contended, in its complaint, that the three concerns boycotted and blacklisted broiler producers active in producer organizational work. It claimed that the firms refused to continue to enter into producer agreements with these farmers.

Under the agreements, farmers furnished the land, brooder houses, utilities and other equipment for the production of broilers. The companies, it said, agreed to supply feed and other essentials and purchased the broilers for their own processing plants or for sale to other processors.

The controversy was aired at hearings which opened June 23, 1965, at Fort Smith, Ark., and ended Oct. 13, 1966, after interruptions. The recommended order was signed by the hearing referee, John J. Curry. It will be reviewed by the department's judicial officer, Thomas J. Flavin, before being issued finally.

The alleged discrimination cited by the department and testified to by farmers at the hearing figures in pressure for legislation now pending in Congress which would clearly outline farmers' rights to organize to negotiate for better prices and sales conditions without interference by processors and other buyers. This legislation has broad support of all major farm organizations and of the administration.

The Packers and Stockyards Act directs the department to police livestock and poultry markets against unfair, discriminatory and other practices which operate against the interests of producers.

PLANNING A NEW SCHOOL? MAKE SURE PLUMBING IS TOPS

New schools are going up all over the country at an unprecedented rate. If your district is planning one this summer, don't gloss over the importance of adequate piping and enough plumbing fixtures of top quality.

This advice comes from the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau, which points out that school plumbing takes a lot of hard wear, so you're really practicing economy when you buy the best.

Consider the installation of off-the-floor washroom equipment, the Bureau advises. It probably will cost more to install but will mean long-term savings in maintenance, since floors can be cleaned faster and more thoroughly. In these days of high-priced maintenance personnel, this is a factor that cannot be ignored, the Bureau notes.

In the General Assembly Wednesday, Israel quickly rejected Britain's warning not to claim all of Jerusalem as a prize of war.

British Foreign Secretary George Brown declared Israel would isolate itself from world opinion if it held onto Old Jerusalem wrested from Jordan. Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban replied that his government had expressed determination to see that Jerusalem would never again become a divided city and a war arena.

Flint Gets Skinned

NEW YORK (AP) — Actor James Coburn—known to movie buffs as Our Man Flint, the karate chopping nemesis of enemy spies—stands ready for his scene. Lights! Camera! Action!

Flint takes off up McDougal Street in Greenwich Village as the cameras grind and two Chinese agents pound in pursuit. The only question is how our hero will befuddle his foes.

Or is it? Enter Patrolmen Melvin Schwartz and David Mahan, unaware that the fleeing Flint is only filming a scene. Schwartz reaches out an arm and—CRASH! Cut! Cut! Cut!

A police sergeant assigned to the film scene Wednesday night rushes up with the city's apologies to Coburn. The startled Schwartz had assumed he was stopping some mischief.

Coburn, 39, suffered two small cuts on his face, and a Paramount Pictures spokesman said the filming probably would be delayed a day to let the star's wounds heal.

Redistricting Plan Soundly Defeated

Only eight Democrats voted for it as it went down 8-26.

They were: Young, Earl R. Blackwell of Hillsboro, Jasper Brancato of Kansas City, John E. Downs of St. Joseph, John J. Johnson of Sappington, Lawrence Lee of St. Louis, Edward Linehan of St. Louis and John P. Ryan of Kansas City.

Young said his bill was very similar to the original Senate committee version. He predicted if it were approved, a House-Senate conference committee would have no trouble in achieving the 431,981 population norm and still protect all 10 incumbent congressmen.

Redistricting was the first bill brought up by Sen. Omer H. Avery, D-Troy, Senate reapportionment chairman.

As soon as Young's plan was defeated the Senate turned to a battle over a rule change which in the future would prevent the offering of a substitute bill such as Young's to a House-amended bill.

His tentative bill would split Negro wards and precincts among the three St. Louis and St. Louis County Districts and put his own Airport Township back into the Democratic 1st District instead of the Republican 2nd, as in the House bill.

It would also give Rep. Richard Ichord, D-Houston, more St. Louis county Republican votes in his 8th District of south central Missouri.

Other outstate districts would be unchanged from the House version, which made the 6th of northwestern Missouri and the 8th District "Swing" districts in a Republican year.

Rain and Wind Cause Damage

Missouri Utilities Company crews worked for about four hours repairing lines severed when trees were blown down, William Proffer, manager, said today.

Crews worked until 1:30 a.m. today repairing lines in Morehouse, Matthews, Blodgett and the highway 61 north areas.

Power was not cut off.

Sikeston had one inch of rain on the longest day of the year and the first day of summer. It broke a drought.

Funnel clouds were spotted at Charleston and at Big Oak State Park, but no damage was reported.

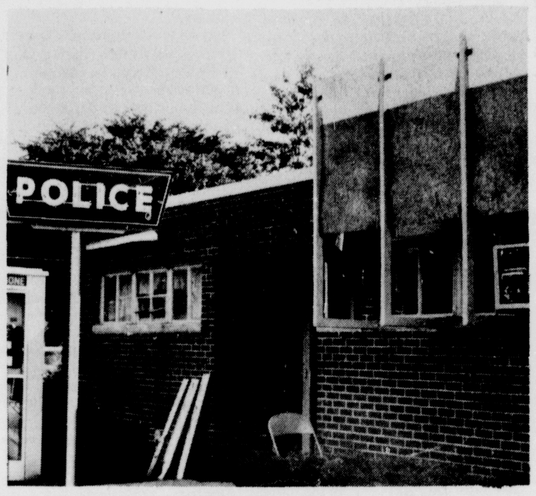

At Dexter a hangar at the airport was damaged Wednesday afternoon. Wind gusts blew one end of the hangar across a field. Damage was estimated at $1,000.

A tornado watch was in effect for Southeast Missouri, Southern Illinois and Eastern Kentucky from 8 p.m. to midnight.

Stormy weather caused power failures in all sections of Sikeston throughout last night beginning at 8 p.m. Manager Dick Inman of the light and water department reported.

A standby crew made the last repair call at 7:10 a.m. when service was restored throughout the city. It worked all night. Lines were torn down by wind and falling limbs. Some fuses were struck by lightning causing electrical interruptions.

All Going Well with Luci And Her Baby

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Luci Johnson Nugent gave her baby his first bottle of sugar and water, and doctors reported everything was going well with the President's daughter and his first grandchild.

Patrick Lyndon Nugent was reported making perfect progress in the maternity wing of Seton Hospital, where he was born Wednesday morning.

"Everybody's happy," said father Patrick J. Nugent as he gave an interview Wednesday night, 12 hours after the birth of his first child.

The baby was wheeled in his bassinet into Luci's hospital room for a first feeding of water and glucose, Nugent said.

He reported his 19-year-old wife "gay and cheerful." She had received a telegram from her father, the President, in which Nugent said Lyndon B. Johnson sent word that "his prayers were with her."

There was a continuing flow of flowers for the President's daughter at the hospital, where she and her baby were occupying the fourth-floor maternity-wing hospital rooms under Secret Service guard.

Nugent handed out cigars and candy as he announced with tears in his eyes and in a cracking voice early Wednesday that his wife had given birth to an 8-pound, 10-ounce baby boy, 21 inches long.

Toward the end of the day, Nugent confided he chose the name for his first offspring. It was a combination of his own name and that of his paternal grandfather with a middle name of Lyndon after his father-in-law, the President.

He also confided he had expected his first child to be a girl— "I don't know why."

The President and First Lady expressed their happiness and Mrs. Johnson said she was relieved as well that the birth went without a hitch.

Luci was in labor at the hospital for six hours and her delivery team of five doctors said it was a perfectly normal labor and delivery.

Family and friends were notified and Nugent said he called his brother, Gerard P. Nugent Jr., in San Diego, Calif., whose wife, Phyllis, is expecting a baby any time now.

Meanwhile things were settling into a routine at the hospital for Luci and her newborn son.

Visiting with her during the evening, Nugent decided what his wife should choose from the hospital menu. Instead of the dinner offerings, he picked hot cereal, to the surprise of the nurse on duty.

Rising River Sounds Flood Worker Call

KANSAS CITY (AP) - Calls for emergency crews were issued at several Missouri River points today as the flood waters of the Big Muddy threatened more levees.

The danger areas are all below Kansas City, where the stream rose to 25.1 feet this morning, a stage more than three feet above bankfull.

A heavy runoff from tributaries swollen by heavy rains, increased the load of the Big Muddy.

While the river fell overnight at St. Joseph, the stages were moving upward at Rulo, Nebraska City and Omaha.

A call for volunteer help went out to Carrollton and Norborne this morning as the Orville Matthews farm levee, southeast of Norborne, showed signs of being overtopped.

At Boonville, calls were out for help at two danger areas, the dike in the Overton community levee, east of Boonville, and on the Emil-Wilsmeyer levee across the river in Howard County.

Earlier St. Charles County officials asked for more volunteers to sandbag a mile-long section of a levee near the mouth of the stream.

Sheriff J. R. Stockton of Ray County reported a levee protecting the Green Top Farms near Henrietta had been broken, flooding several thousands acres of land between the river and the federal levee. He said that to the west of the area, water was now backing up and flooding land behind the main levee. Highway M13 at that point was covered with four feet of water.

U.S. Army Engineers, reporting on the latest check of damage to the Missouri River area between Rulo, Neb., and the mouth, said 480,000 acres of land had been flooded. Col W. G. Kratz, Army district engineer, said the damage was placed at $19,300,000.

The latest Missouri crest is expected at Kansas City tonight. At the same time the initual crest is expected at Hermann, Mo., with a stage of 28 feet seven feet over bankfull.

Efforts of a crew of 150 trying to save the farm levee near Henrietta proved futile. The crew went to work about 7:30 p.m. when the water was about two inches over the barrier, but abandoned the task about midnight.

Across the river at Lexington city officials urged residents to store drinking water in event the water plant was flooded. Residents said the water of the Missouri appeared as high as in the big flood of 1951.

Corning, Mo., about 125 miles northwest of Kansas City, was preparing to be surrounded by water for the second time in five days.

At Big Lake Park south of Corning, resort homes were under several feet of water. An airplane pilot reported some roofs almost covered with water.

East of Kansas City residents were evacuating the small farm communities of McBaine, southwest of Columbia; and Wakenda, 11 miles southwest of Carrollton.

War in Vietnam Blamed

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — France declared today that as long as the war in Vietnam continues there is "no chance for peace in the Middle East."

French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville, in his nation's policy statement in the General Assembly debate on the Arab-Israeli war, said that ending war in Vietnam would "require a courageous "require a courageous and fruitful decision on the part of a great state" — meaning the United States.

Should the Vietnamese war end, he said, "then new horizons would open up."

They were at the Soviet mission, preparing to be hosts at a luncheon to U.N Secretary-General U Thant, and perhaps waiting for a break on the possibility of a Kosygin meeting with President Johnson.

The French foreign minister's statement was mild in tone. He avoided the direct condemnation of Israel that had highlighted a statement Wednesday by President Charles de Gaulle. Ane he appealed for a negotiated settlement of the Middle East crisis, which he repeatedly called grave and dangerous to world peace.

For the Arabs, De Gaulle said Israel started the war and France does not consider any Israeli territorial gains to be final. For the Israelis, he said every Middle East state, "notably Israel," has a right to live and he condemned the Arab threat to destroy the Jewish state.

U.S. and Soviet sources indicated that Johnson and Kosygin may decide today whether to meet in the brief time left before the Soviet premier's departure.

Rolwing Declines To Tip Hand on Race

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)— The Missouri House today adopted a resolution to establish a joint interim committee on crime and law enforcement.

Before its approval on a voice vote, however, opponents charged it was part of a campaign of its sponsor, Rep. David Rolwing, D-Mississippi County, to gain public attention. They said Rolwing was trying to run for Congress from the heavily Democratic 10th District of southeastern Missouri.

Rolwing, an outspoken young man from Gov. Warren E. Hearnes' home town who does not always agree with the governor, declines to say whether he had eyes on Congress or not. The present congressman from the district, Rep. Paul C. Jones, Kennett Democrat, has announced he will not seek re-election.

Rolwing said despite studies on the national, state and local levels on the causes of crime the crime rate continues to increase and a joint legislative committee should be able to come up with some helpful answers.

Two amendments from fellow Democrats were defeated.

One would take away the committee's right to subpoena persons and records in its investigation of the cause of crime. Rep. Donald Gralike, D-Lemay, said Rolwing was just trying to build a public image.

He said it would be unfair to force honest businessmen to appear and bring their business records before a committee. His amendment was defeated 32-121.

Rep. Patrick J. Hickey, D-St. Ann, said he didn't like the provision giving the committee up to $25,000 to spend, with most of it going, he said, toward a special attorney-investigator.

His amendment was rejected 51-94.

Governor's Pay Hike Approved

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) - Substantial pay increases for the governor and other elected state officials won House approval Wednesday.

The bill now goes to the governor. The increases do not become effective until the next terms start.

The governor's pay is boosted from $25,000 to $37,500, the lieutenant governor from $12,000 to $16,000, the attorney general from $15,000 to $25,000 and he must work full time at the job, while the auditor, secretary of state and treasurer go from $15,000 to $20,000.

Still pending is a bill that would raise legislative pay from $4,800 to $7,200. It already has passed the Senate.

A bill designed to protect consumers from fraudulent merchandising was passed by both houses and sent to the governor.

It put enforcement under the attorney general instead of the local prosecuting attorneys. This provision caused a long argument in the Senate but was accepted by the House without debate.

Under the bill newspapers, radio and television stations would not be liable for fraudulent advertising unless they knew it was fraudulent.

It is aimed primarily at con men and fast buck artists who hit a community then move on but it would also cover false or misleading claims on any merchandise or services. It carries both civil and criminal penalties.

In other action Wednesday night, the Senate returned to the House a bill to provide penalties for non-licensed practitioners of optometry.

The bill was amended to strike a section which put the burden of proof on the defendent in the case.

The so-called "wheelchair bill" to force the construction of ramps and wheelchair doors on all public buildings to be constructed in the future was shelved for the third time when Sen. Richard Southern, D-Monroe City, offered a substitute bill which simplified the provisions of the measure.

Another measure was passed to allow magistrate courts to dismiss on their own motion any cases where no action has been taken after two years.

The House night session passed a Senate bill to set up an emergency fund to pay for unexpected costs between legislative sessions. It goes back to the Senate with a House amendment limiting the fund to $150,000.

Tower Seeks Reprimand But Not Censure for Dodd

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., proposed today that the Senate reprimand Sen. Thomas J. Dodd for his financial conduct, but stop short of censuring him.

Tower made his surprise move as the Senate ground toward judgment of Dodd, a Connecticut Democrat.

Tower's amendment would take a step somewhat stronger than that rejected Wednesday by the Senate— the admonition proposed by Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La.— but far less stern than the censure recommended by the Senate ethics committee.

It would also strike the committee finding that Dodd's conduct brought the Senate into dishonor and was contrary to accepted morals.

In the wake of Wednesday's 92-2 vote, Tower's amendment appeared to have little chance of adoption.

Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois said today he expects the Senate to censure Dodd on both of the two counts recommended by the ethics committee.

"On the basis of yesterday's vote, I have no reason to believe the Senate won't sustain the committee," he told reporters.

The Senate rejected 92 to 2, late Wednesday afternoon a proposal to drop a charge that Dodd misused political funds for his own benefit and to substitute an admonition that he not do anything wrong in the future.

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said once any new amendments are dealt with, he and Dirksen will propose that the Senate vote on the second count in the censure resolution— that involving double billing.

Mansfield said he expects to hold the Senate in session until the action has been completed.

"I would hope that it would be concluded in a reasonable time," he said.

He said that he expected he would remain on the floor today to vote against the ethics committee resolution. He absented himself during Wednesday's vote on the Long substitute.

The senator repeated his earlier statements that, regardless of the outcome of the censure resolution, he would remain in the Senate and seek re-election in 1970.

Asked if he had any doubts he would be re-elected, he replied, "none at all."

Debt Ceiling Reversal Eases Administration Fears

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democrats, reversing a stunning administration setback of two weeks before, pushed through a $22-billion boost in the national debt ceiling.

Sent to the Senate on a 217-196 vote was a measure to raise the debt from a temporary $336 billion to a permanent $358 billion.

Failure of Congress to reset the debt limit by July 1 would see the ceiling drop to its permanent $285-billion level. The actual debt as of Wednesday was $330.57 billion.

But while the Senate still has to act on the measure — and won't start work until it has disposed of the censure resolution against Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn. — Democrats hold a comfortable margin in that chamber and are confident of getting speedy approval for the bill.

Chairman Russell B. Long, D-La., of the Senate Finance Committee scheduled hearings on the measure for next Monday and Tuesday. Long said he hopes it can be brought to a floor debate Wednesday.

It had been another story in the House, which stunned President Johnson's administration June 7 by defeating 210 to 197 a bill to increase the borrowing ceiling to $365 billion.

Republicans voted solidly against debt ceiling increases both times, insisting Johnson provide more information on the fiscal outlook and scale down domestic spending.

The GOP's initial victory was possible through the help of Southern Democrats and a sprinkling of Northern Democratic liberals, some of whom claimed their opposition resulted from Johnson's Vietnam war policies.

But the House leadership reclaimed 14 of these votes Wednesday, splitting the dissident Southerners about in half and picking up all but a handful of the antiwar faction.

The White House said later Johnson "congratulated the House leadership for this act of fiscal responsibility."

In addition to the $358-billion ceiling provided by the new measure, a $7-billion cushion goes into effect July 1, 1968. Intended to provide for the fluctuations in income and outgo during the year, the cushion is to be renewed annually. It will expire, however, one day before the end of each fiscal year.

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways and Means Committee, argued this device would provide a brake on spending.

The bill also would allow the Treasury to issue notes with maturities up to seven years, instead of five. The notes are exempt from the 4¼ per cent interest limitation that has halted the sale of longer-term securities.

It also would include in the national debt for the first time the participation certificates, or interests in pools of government-held loans, sold to private investors. This was a point strongly pushed by Republicans, who accused the administration of using the certificates to hold down the debt.

Rain and Wind Cause Damage

Missouri Utilities Company crews worked for about four hours repairing lines severed when trees were blown down, William Proffer, manager, said today.

Crews worked until 1:30 a.m. today repairing lines in Morehouse, Matthews, Blodgett and the highway 61 north areas.

Power was not cut off.

Sikeston had one inch of rain on the longest day of the year and the first day of summer. It broke a drought.

Funnel clouds were spotted at Charleston and at Big Oak State Park, but no damage was reported.

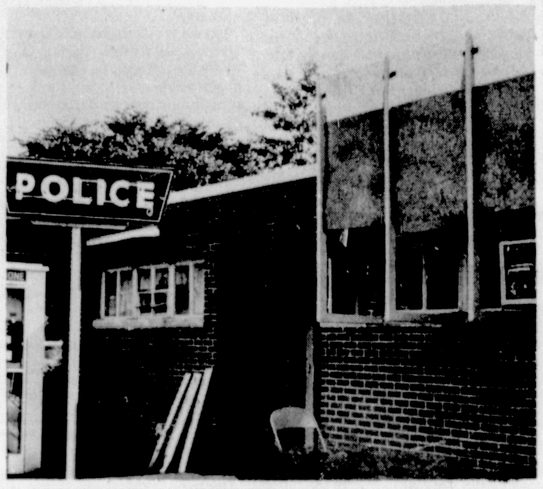

At Dexter a hangar at the airport was damaged Wednesday afternoon. Wind gusts blew one end of the hangar across a field. Damage was estimated at $1,000.

A tornado watch was in effect for Southeast Missouri, Southern Illinois and Eastern Kentucky from 8 p.m. to midnight.

Stormy weather caused power failures in all sections of Sikeston throughout last night beginning at 8 p.m. Manager Dick Inman of the light and water department reported.

A standby crew made the last repair call at 7:10 a.m. when service was restored throughout the city. It worked all night. Lines were torn down by wind and falling limbs. Some fuses were struck by lightning causing electrical interruptions.

All Going Well with Luci And Her Baby

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Luci Johnson Nugent gave her baby his first bottle of sugar and water, and doctors reported everything was going well with the President's daughter and his first grandchild.

Patrick Lyndon Nugent was reported making perfect progress in the maternity wing of Seton Hospital, where he was born Wednesday morning.

"Everybody's happy," said father Patrick J. Nugent as he gave an interview Wednesday night, 12 hours after the birth of his first child.

The baby was wheeled in his bassinet into Luci's hospital room for a first feeding of water and glucose, Nugent said.

He reported his 19-year-old wife "gay and cheerful." She had received a telegram from her father, the President, in which Nugent said Lyndon B. Johnson sent word that "his prayers were with her."

There was a continuing flow of flowers for the President's daughter at the hospital, where she and her baby were occupying the fourth-floor maternity-wing hospital rooms under Secret Service guard.

Nugent handed out cigars and candy as he announced with tears in his eyes and in a cracking voice early Wednesday that his wife had given birth to an 8-pound, 10-ounce baby boy, 21 inches long.

Toward the end of the day, Nugent confided he chose the name for his first offspring. It was a combination of his own name and that of his paternal grandfather with a middle name of Lyndon after his father-in-law, the President.

He also confided he had expected his first child to be a girl— "I don't know why."

The President and First Lady expressed their happiness and Mrs. Johnson said she was relieved as well that the birth went without a hitch.

Luci was in labor at the hospital for six hours and her delivery team of five doctors said it was a perfectly normal labor and delivery.

Family and friends were notified and Nugent said he called his brother, Gerard P. Nugent Jr., in San Diego, Calif., whose wife, Phyllis, is expecting a baby any time now.

Meanwhile things were settling into a routine at the hospital for Luci and her newborn son.

Visiting with her during the evening, Nugent decided what his wife should choose from the hospital menu. Instead of the dinner offerings, he picked hot cereal, to the surprise of the nurse on duty.

Rising River Sounds Flood Worker Call

KANSAS CITY (AP) - Calls for emergency crews were issued at several Missouri River points today as the flood waters of the Big Muddy threatened more levees.

The danger areas are all below Kansas City, where the stream rose to 25.1 feet this morning, a stage more than three feet above bankfull.

A heavy runoff from tributaries swollen by heavy rains, increased the load of the Big Muddy.

While the river fell overnight at St. Joseph, the stages were moving upward at Rulo, Nebraska City and Omaha.

A call for volunteer help went out to Carrollton and Norborne this morning as the Orville Matthews farm levee, southeast of Norborne, showed signs of being overtopped.

At Boonville, calls were out for help at two danger areas, the dike in the Overton community levee, east of Boonville, and on the Emil-Wilsmeyer levee across the river in Howard County.

Earlier St. Charles County officials asked for more volunteers to sandbag a mile-long section of a levee near the mouth of the stream.

Sheriff J. R. Stockton of Ray County reported a levee protecting the Green Top Farms near Henrietta had been broken, flooding several thousands acres of land between the river and the federal levee. He said that to the west of the area, water was now backing up and flooding land behind the main levee. Highway M13 at that point was covered with four feet of water.

U.S. Army Engineers, reporting on the latest check of damage to the Missouri River area between Rulo, Neb., and the mouth, said 480,000 acres of land had been flooded. Col W. G. Kratz, Army district engineer, said the damage was placed at $19,300,000.

The latest Missouri crest is expected at Kansas City tonight. At the same time the initial crest is expected at Hermann, Mo., with a stage of 28 feet seven feet over bankfull.

Efforts of a crew of 150 trying to save the farm levee near Henrietta proved futile. The crew went to work about 7:30 p.m. when the water was about two inches over the barrier, but abandoned the task about midnight.

Across the river at Lexington city officials urged residents to store drinking water in event the water plant was flooded. Residents said the water of the Missouri appeared as high as in the big flood of 1951.

Corning, Mo., about 125 miles northwest of Kansas City, was preparing to be surrounded by water for the second time in five days.

At Big Lake Park south of Corning, resort homes were under several feet of water. An airplane pilot reported some roofs almost covered with water.

East of Kansas City residents were evacuating the small farm communities of McBaine, southwest of Columbia; and Wakenda, 11 miles southwest of Carrollton.

War in Vietnam Blamed

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — France declared today that as long as the war in Vietnam continues there is "no chance for peace in the Middle East."

French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville, in his nation's policy statement in the General Assembly debate on the Arab-Israeli war, said that ending war in Vietnam would "require a courageous "require a courageous and fruitful decision on the part of a great state" — meaning the United States.

Should the Vietnamese war end, he said, "then new horizons would open up."

They were at the Soviet mission, preparing to be hosts at a luncheon to U.N Secretary-General U Thant, and perhaps waiting for a break on the possibility of a Kosygin meeting with President Johnson.

The French foreign minister's statement was mild in tone. He avoided the direct condemnation of Israel that had highlighted a statement Wednesday by President Charles de Gaulle. Ane he appealed for a negotiated settlement of the Middle East crisis, which he repeatedly called grave and dangerous to world peace.

For the Arabs, De Gaulle said Israel started the war and France does not consider any Israeli territorial gains to be final. For the Israelis, he said every Middle East state, "notably Israel," has a right to live and he condemned the Arab threat to destroy the Jewish state.

U.S. and Soviet sources indicated that Johnson and Kosygin may decide today whether to meet in the brief time left before the Soviet premier's departure.

Rolwing Declines To Tip Hand on Race

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)— The Missouri House today adopted a resolution to establish a joint interim committee on crime and law enforcement.

Before its approval on a voice vote, however, opponents charged it was part of a campaign of its sponsor, Rep. David Rolwing, D-Mississippi County, to gain public attention. They said Rolwing was trying to run for Congress from the heavily Democratic 10th District of southeastern Missouri.

Rolwing, an outspoken young man from Gov. Warren E. Hearnes' home town who does not always agree with the governor, declines to say whether he had eyes on Congress or not. The present congressman from the district, Rep. Paul C. Jones, Kennett Democrat, has announced he will not seek re-election.

Rolwing said despite studies on the national, state and local levels on the causes of crime the crime rate continues to increase and a joint legislative committee should be able to come up with some helpful answers.

Two amendments from fellow Democrats were defeated.

One would take away the committee's right to subpoena persons and records in its investigation of the cause of crime. Rep. Donald Gralike, D-Lemay, said Rolwing was just trying to build a public image.

He said it would be unfair to force honest businessmen to appear and bring their business records before a committee. His amendment was defeated 32-121.

Rep. Patrick J. Hickey, D-St. Ann, said he didn't like the provision giving the committee up to $25,000 to spend, with most of it going, he said, toward a special attorney-investigator.

His amendment was rejected 51-94.

Governor's Pay Hike Approved

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) - Substantial pay increases for the governor and other elected state officials won House approval Wednesday.

The bill now goes to the governor. The increases do not become effective until the next terms start.

The governor's pay is boosted from $25,000 to $37,500, the lieutenant governor from $12,000 to $16,000, the attorney general from $15,000 to $25,000 and he must work full time at the job, while the auditor, secretary of state and treasurer go from $15,000 to $20,000.

Still pending is a bill that would raise legislative pay from $4,800 to $7,200. It already has passed the Senate.

A bill designed to protect consumers from fraudulent merchandising was passed by both houses and sent to the governor.

It put enforcement under the attorney general instead of the local prosecuting attorneys. This provision caused a long argument in the Senate but was accepted by the House without debate.

Under the bill newspapers, radio and television stations would not be liable for fraudulent advertising unless they knew it was fraudulent.

It is aimed primarily at con men and fast buck artists who hit a community then move on but it would also cover false or misleading claims on any merchandise or services. It carries both civil and criminal penalties.

In other action Wednesday night, the Senate returned to the House a bill to provide penalties for non-licensed practitioners of optometry.

The bill was amended to strike a section which put the burden of proof on the defendent in the case.

The so-called "wheelchair bill" to force the construction of ramps and wheelchair doors on all public buildings to be constructed in the future was shelved for the third time when Sen. Richard Southern, D-Monroe City, offered a substitute bill which simplified the provisions of the measure.

Another measure was passed to allow magistrate courts to dismiss on their own motion any cases where no action has been taken after two years.

The House night session passed a Senate bill to set up an emergency fund to pay for unexpected costs between legislative sessions. It goes back to the Senate with a House amendment limiting the fund to $150,000.

Tower Seeks Reprimand But Not Censure for Dodd

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., proposed today that the Senate reprimand Sen. Thomas J. Dodd for his financial conduct, but stop short of censuring him.

Tower made his surprise move as the Senate ground toward judgment of Dodd, a Connecticut Democrat.

Tower's amendment would take a step somewhat stronger than that rejected Wednesday by the Senate— the admonition proposed by Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La.— but far less stern than the censure recommended by the Senate ethics committee.

It would also strike the committee finding that Dodd's conduct brought the Senate into dishonor and was contrary to accepted morals.

In the wake of Wednesday's 92-2 vote, Tower's amendment appeared to have little chance of adoption.

Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois said today he expects the Senate to censure Dodd on both of the two counts recommended by the ethics committee.

"On the basis of yesterday's vote, I have no reason to believe the Senate won't sustain the committee," he told reporters.

The Senate rejected 92 to 2, late Wednesday afternoon a proposal to drop a charge that Dodd misused political funds for his own benefit and to substitute an admonition that he not do anything wrong in the future.

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said once any new amendments are dealt with, he and Dirksen will propose that the Senate vote on the second count in the censure resolution— that involving double billing.

Mansfield said he expects to hold the Senate in session until the action has been completed.

"I would hope that it would be concluded in a reasonable time," he said.

He said that he expected he would remain on the floor today to vote against the ethics committee resolution. He absented himself during Wednesday's vote on the Long substitute.

The senator repeated his earlier statements that, regardless of the outcome of the censure resolution, he would remain in the Senate and seek re-election in 1970.

Asked if he had any doubts he would be re-elected, he replied, "none at all."

Debt Ceiling Reversal Eases Administration Fears

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democrats, reversing a stunning administration setback of two weeks before, pushed through a $22-billion boost in the national debt ceiling.

Sent to the Senate on a 217-196 vote was a measure to raise the debt from a temporary $336 billion to a permanent $358 billion.

Failure of Congress to reset the debt limit by July 1 would see the ceiling drop to its permanent $285-billion level. The actual debt as of Wednesday was $330.57 billion.

But while the Senate still has to act on the measure — and won't start work until it has disposed of the censure resolution against Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn. — Democrats hold a comfortable margin in that chamber and are confident of getting speedy approval for the bill.

Chairman Russell B. Long, D-La., of the Senate Finance Committee scheduled hearings on the measure for next Monday and Tuesday. Long said he hopes it can be brought to a floor debate Wednesday.

It had been another story in the House, which stunned President Johnson's administration June 7 by defeating 210 to 197 a bill to increase the borrowing ceiling to $365 billion.

Republicans voted solidly against debt ceiling increases both times, insisting Johnson provide more information on the fiscal outlook and scale down domestic spending.

The GOP's initial victory was possible through the help of Southern Democrats and a sprinkling of Northern Democratic liberals, some of whom claimed their opposition resulted from Johnson's Vietnam war policies.

But the House leadership reclaimed 14 of these votes Wednesday, splitting the dissident Southerners about in half and picking up all but a handful of the antiwar faction.

The White House said later Johnson "congratulated the House leadership for this act of fiscal responsibility."

In addition to the $358-billion ceiling provided by the new measure, a $7-billion cushion goes into effect July 1, 1968. Intended to provide for the fluctuations in income and outgo during the year, the cushion is to be renewed annually. It will expire, however, one day before the end of each fiscal year.

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways and Means Committee, argued this device would provide a brake on spending.

The bill also would allow the Treasury to issue notes with maturities up to seven years, instead of five. The notes are exempt from the 4¼ per cent interest limitation that has halted the sale of longer-term securities.

It also would include in the national debt for the first time the participation certificates, or interests in pools of government-held loans, sold to private investors. This was a point strongly pushed by Republicans, who accused the administration of using the certificates to hold down the debt.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Are the nation's ills incurable?

Fatal diseases of the human body may be painless until the terminal stage is reached. The ill person becomes adjusted to his condition and may even deny that his health is impaired. At the cost of his life, he avoids diagnosis of his condition by a medical expert.

So it may be with nations.

Arnold Toynbee, the British historian, has returned to his country from the United States. He has written a diagnosis of his nation.

He believes that the American people have lost their way. He views the nation as semi-socialist country in which the public sector of the economy is gaining ground at the expense of the private sector.

He is unquestionably correct in this deduction.

"The American taxpayer, and even the American congressmen who vote the tax money, can no longer keep track of how the money is being spent and what it is being spent on," he writes. "He no longer believes that the administration is telling the truth. He is shocked by startling revelations of an official 'hidden hand' spending the taxpayer's money being used to 'condition' the taxpayer himself. We are witnessing a struggle in America for the American people's soul, and this struggle is fateful for us all."

Indeed it is.

As late as is the hour and as far reaching as has been socialistic encroachments on the American form of government, our own optimism is unrestrained.

It isn't too late to arrest the trend and to restore the country to the fundamental principles which has brought it the greatest progress and prosperity. All Americans need to do is exercise their will power to curb inflation, curtail supergovernment and restrain welfare government, currently called the Great Society, a beguiling but inaccurate name which could be accurately defined as buy now and let the kids pay for it later.

This is a country permitting such great freedom of expression that much borderline pornography, indecent trash and sewer literature is permitted to circulate abundantly.

The public has the right to reject what it dislikes by its own free choice. We like it that way.

Comes now the National Labor Relations Board, famous for its partiality to unions and strong bias against employers, with the disposition to bludgeon freedom of information with heavy hand.

The NLRB loves union labor and adopts a paternalistic attitude toward it.

The ranks of labor, according to NLRB, are populated by simple minded men, not much more intelligent than nincompoops, who must be carefully spoon fed the most innocuous tidbits of information. Any deviation from a diet of infantile literature would throw the poor working man into an awful tail spin or disorient him completely from his normal environment.

The NLRB really has tortured the law in holding that an employer who gave his employes a book to read was guilty of coercion.

The book was written by none other than Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, a tired and true friend of organized labor.

"The Enemy Within" uncovered instances of corruption, misfeasance and general ill-doing by labor leaders years ago. Kennedy was counsel for the investigators.

It was a Massachusetts company which handed out 14 copies of the book to wire weavers, who were the object of an organizing drive by the Teamsters.

The employee spoke out against the union and mailed letters to employes before an election.

The Teamsters lost the election but appealed.

The NLRB found nothing unlawful in any single employer act but decided that it all added up to coercion.

It handed the weavers over to the Teamsters.

Here is a great deal of freedom left in this country unless you are a laboring man involved in a labor-management controversy.

At such times the NLRB steps forward as benefactor, censor and wet nurse and determines what information is sufficiently sterile for the laboring man to read. Father knows best, of course! In a pig's eye!

Mr. Ernest G. Swigert, the highly articulate head of a large heavy equipment company, has a way of discussing questions of principle with a conviction that is all too often sadly lacking in most public utterances. Recently he observed: "I don't know why it is that every generation will accept the accumulated knowledge in medicine and science and build new achievements on that foundation, but when it comes to economics they have to learn the hard way. There is always some professor or politician who has a new scheme to repeal the laws of economics; but I suspect the laws of economics are just as immutable as the laws of physics."

Should a public utility be content to rest on its laurels - depending on recognition that service to customers speaks for itself?

Or should it accept the obligation of periodically informing people about what it has done for its customers, how it is helping the community, reviewing financial and other contributions to community institutions and causes and giving a general account of its stewardship?

Associated Natural Gas meets the first specification.

It did not make any attempt to fulfill the second requirement in advance of the franchise election in which fewer than 175 citizens, less than three per cent of the city's 7,000 registered voters cast ballots.

Associated Natural has a monopoly but it is questionable whether it is in its own best interest to act like it.

A dismal turnout of voters such as the handful who requested ballots Tuesday does no credit to a democracy, to Sikeston or to the utility.

Associated Natural has an impressive story to tell. It could have presented highlights of its stewardship over 20 years, the length of the franchise to serve Sikeston which expires at the end of September.

Instead it chose to let the record speak for itself. The record did speak to 172 out of 7,000 who bothered to vote. Seven didn't approve of the record.

The city might help, too.

More citizens would have voted if the franchise election could have been combined with other issues or candidates requiring voter approval.

As it is Associated Natural Gas has only a weak mandate to continue serving Sikeston for another 10 or 20 years - an arrangement that isn't satisfactory to anyone.

Let's have fewer elections which are flops.

NEW YORK (AP) — "Life," said George Peppard, "is a piece of time as long as a gnat's blink.

"That makes it important to live it the way you feel it should be lived— to do as much good as you can and have as much fun as you can."

But when Hollywood stardom beckons to a young actor, it's hard for him to go on living the way he prefers. The big dollar makes big demands.

And some of them seem a bit inordinate to George, who rang Hollywood's golden cash register in "The Carpetbaggers" and is now completing his 15th picture, "What's So Bad About Feeling Good?"

For one thing, George, who worked hard to become a star, finds he doesn't like the public attention that success has brought. He doesn't like giving interviews, doesn't enjoy being pointed out when he goes into a restaurant.

"I realize it's part of the business, and I don't resent it," he said. "But I simply don't get any pleasure out of public attention, except so far as it applies to my work."

It isn't that the tall, handsome blond actor finds the fruits of success bitter. He just isn't the extrovert, life-of-the party type, and never has been.

He always has been something of a loner, one who likes to study others but keeps himself a bit apart.

"Sometimes I require solitude," he said, "just to read and think. That's why I enjoy going hunting or boating, or flying an airplane."

Recently George took a long step toward privacy by buying a 13,000-acre ranch in northern California, which he soon hopes to stock with 6,000 cattle.

"I'm rather practical," he remarked. "I expect the cattle to support me, rather than vice versa."

Peppard, son of a Detroit building contractor, became interested in the theater while studying engineering at Purdue. Later, after an 18-month hitch in the U.S. Marines, he won a degree in fine arts at the Carnegie Institute of Technology. He worked partime as a disk jockey and radio station engineer.

Before making his mark on Broadway, George attended the Actor's Studio here. He kept alive by employment as a bank clerk, taxi driver and motorcycle mechanic.

Those days of deprivation— even then, George valued his privacy so much he kept an unlisted telephone number— still hold a luster for him.

"I lived in a $40-a-month cold-water flat in Greenwich Village," he recalled. "When I wasn't looking for an acting job, I used to play chess in Washington Square Park. It was a great life."

Auto theft is a far more serious problem than most people realize. Many tend to have a passive and apathetic attitude about it. First, there is the common expression, "It won't happen to me." Last year half a million motorists learned otherwise. Or perhaps they say, "It is too much trouble to lock my car." The inconvenience is insignificant when compared to the inconvenience of having a car stolen. Even though about 85 per cent of stolen automobiles are ultimately returned to their owners, the average damage done to a recovered car amounts to nearly 200 dollars. A recent study revealed that up to 24 per cent of stolen cars were involved in accidents.

The Missouri State Highway Patrol notes that there is a good reason for this. The thief has no idea of what condition the car is in. He may be unfamiliar with the particular model. The young thief especially may not be as good a driver as he thinks he is. Knowing that he has a stolen car, and that the police may be looking for him, he is more apt to take dangerous chances to avoid arrest. Also, the thief has no financial interest in the car whatsoever.

These facts illustrate the threat which the stolen car poses to highway safety. A simple act of negligence -- leaving keys in the ignition or the car unlocked -- can create an opportunity for theft which may end in death or injury to innocent people.

ANONYMOUS INSURANCE

It just happens that we don't know a single person who ever bought a used car from a salesman wearing a Halloween mask. Nor can we think of anyone we know who ever bought a refrigerator from a door-to - door salesman wearing a paste - on moustache and dark glasses. When it comes to insurance, nobody we know buys life insurance or automobile insurance from an unknown company.

And we think some similarly elementary precautions are called for when it comes to the military security of our country.

There's been a great deal of copy in the press recently about the new anti-missile system which the USSR is reportedly deploying around its major cities and industrial complexes and anti - missile system made news in this country more than two years ago, and the Congress pressed the civilian wheels in the Pentagon to get on with perfecting and deploying one in this country. Nothing happened.

Now there are persistent reports that the Soviet anti-missile complex is in place. And Congress has been pressing again. So what happens?

On November 17, in Washington, anonymous spokesmen for the administration met with newsmen and assured them that irrespective of the Soviet system, the American people can rest assured that this country, the United States, is militarily capable of penetrating that system and could, in fact, destroy any nation which might attack us, irrespective of the extent of the surprise attack.

Who gave these assurances? We repeat: anonymous spokesmen!

SERVICE TO THE UTMOST

Some observers of man at work have voiced the opinion that the average person rarely operates at more than 50 per cent of his capacity. This may be true, and if so great waste is involved.

The Congressional District Plan for reforming the Electoral College would bring forward every four years nearly 1100 men and women capable of performing notable service to the Republic. These men and women would be the 538 winning nominees for presidential elector and the 538 losing nominees, probably of equal stature. Their combining to form an unofficial committee to examine government problems and offer recommendations for their solution would give them an opportunity for service far beyond their duty of casting electoral votes for the President and Vice President.

The Congressional Distrct Plan calls for naming an elector from each of 435 congressional districts, three electors from the District of Columbia, and two electors at large from each of the 50 states. These electors would be individuals of high caliber, devoted to the principles of their respective political parties. They would have the unique distinction that half of them had been elected by the voters of their district or state and all would have been nominated for high honors.

An unofficial committee composed of these electors would have tremendous prestige in the nation. Their reports to the President on urgent government problems, their comments at press conferences and their public utterances would carry great weight. They would be serving at more - much more - than 50 per cent of their capacity, and the Republic would benefit. HLH

WASHINGTON - One important factor behind Soviet oratory at the United Nations General Assembly is a political problem which congressional committees in Washington readily understand. It's the Kremlin's need to justify the huge investment of arms and aid to the Arab states, estimated by some Israeli observers as running over over $3.5 billion.

This is a tremendous amount of money for a government to plow into the Near East when Russian consumers are demanding more housing, more consumer goods and lower rents.

What the average American doesn't know is that the Russian people are just as sour on foreign aid as Sen. Allen Ellender of Louisiana or Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon. They don't like the idea of a lot of Soviet rubles being dumped abroad which could benefit their economy at home.

One of the charges against Nikita Khrushchev when he was ousted in October, 1964, was that in May, 1964, he had extended a $90 million loan to President Nasser to help complete the Aswan Dam, and that he had done so without consulting the other Kremlin leaders. Ninety million dollars is a relatively small figure compared with the subsequent military aid to the Arab states, though some money went for irrigation, airport improvement, highways and harbor construction.

While the primary reason for calling the U. N. General Assembly was to prove the Soviet is 100 per cent behind the Arabs, a secondary factor was to demonstrate to the Russian people the solid Soviet position in the Near East and focus attention away from the arms investment which the Israeli army in three days showed up as completely useless.

"REPREHENSIBLE" SENATE EMPLOYEES

Senators who branded the conduct of the four ex-Dodd employees as reprehensible for exposing his unethical conduct should read a little history. Specifically they should read the case of their late colleague, Sen. John H. Mitchell of Oregon, who was convicted of taking fees, through his law firm, for getting Federal timber concessions for certain lumber companies.

In this famous case, which broke during the Teddy Roosevelt administration, the private secretary to Sen. Mitchell, Harry C. Robertson, gave an incriminating document to the Government which convicted Sen. Mitchell. Instead of being called reprehensible, Robertson was praised.

The case was one of the most famous in U.S. Senate history and one of only two in which a United States Senator was sent to jail. The other involved Sen. Barton of Kansas, convicted of taking a fee for getting a post office contract.

Sen. Mitchell's case has overtones similar to Dodd's; first, because private secretaries were involved as witnesses; second, because Sen. Dodd has received remuneration for taking cases against the United States Government. The Seneate Ethics committee, however, has passed the buck on to the Justice Department regarding this latter phase of Dodd's unethical conduct.

In the Mitchell case it was discovered that the law firm of Mitchell and Tanner in Oregon has been paid fees by the C.A. Smith Lumber Company in Minneapolis from 1901 through 1904 for getting federal lumber concessions. A. H. Tanner, Jr., had been the law partner of Sen. Mitchell before the latter was elected to the Senate from Oregon, and at the time of his election Sen. Mitchell wrote a clause in his partnership agreement whereby he was to receive one-half of all fees "except that for any services which may be rendered by said John H. Mitchell in the City of Washington, D.C. either in the the Supreme Court of the United States, the Court of Claims or before Congress or any of the departments, (which) shall be the individual matter and claim of said John H. Mitchell, and all fees so earned by him in either of said courts or before Congress or any of said departments . . .shall be the individual property of said John H. Mitchell, the firm shall have no interest therein."

This obviously was a violation of Section 1782 of the revised U.S. Statutes, which makes it a criminal offense for a member of Congress to collect any remuneration for any work done on behalf of clinets before the Federal Government.

"BURN THIS LETTER"

Four years later, when the U.S. attorney began digging into this, Sen. Mitchell secretly revised the agreement with his old law firm eliminating all references to fees earned for work "before Congress or any of the departments."

Sen. Mitchell also wrote a letter, February 5, 1905, to his law partner, Judge Tanner, which concluded: "Burn this without fail."

In the letter he told his law partner to "bring with you in trunk, but don't let your family or anyone know, all the company's books, day ledger, all of them, also your bank book, as I am extremely anxious to see for myself personally what the books show.

"Don't show Harry this letter or tell him anything in it. We don't let him see our books. Tell him nothing," wrote Sen. Mitchell, referring to his secretary, Harry Robertson.

Robertson, however, turned the letter over to the U.S. Government just as the ex-employees of Sen. Dodd reported on Dodd's unethical conduct. He was praised by the press and the Senate. Dodd's employees have been castigated by the Senate.

Note: Sen. Mitchell was convicted and sentenced to prison July 25, 1905, in the U.S. District court in Portland, Ore. He died six months later.

MAN AND MACHINE

Teamsters Prosper Without Hoffa; Reject His Secret Bids; Chiefs Plan Swiftly to Strip Him of All Powers

Washington, D.C.: -- For four months now, Jimmy Hoffa has learned that he is the indispensable man only at the controls of the "mattress shredder" in Lewisburg Penitentiary's main building.

Forty hours a week he feeds grimy old mattresses into the machines to make flossy new ones for 1,400 inmates of the maximum security jail and for the 250 at the freer prison camp over at nearby Allenwood, Pa., which makes stuffed furniture for the government.

His performance is good. He could earn from $10 to $25 a month for "meritorious" production. He is healthy and has not been hospitalized at all. And he has lots of time to think -- and thinks he'll quit as General President of the nation's largest union.

So he has sent confidential word to Teamsters leaders in the "outside" world that he would be willing to walk away from the Brotherhood forever if they get him out in some fashion -- legally, of course.

The reply is -- they could not care less what he thinks, says or offers. They want no deal. They need no deal. The Brotherhood is operating as coordinatedly and successfully as an Israeli air squadron.

For the first time in a generation it is accepted everywhere -- in the U.S. State Dept. circles; in Gov. Ronald Reagan's organization chart; in labor circles close to George Meany; and in this capital's "best" political milieus.

Contracts are being won. Compacts with other mass unions are being made. Conferences are being called.

There's a new chain of command. And the leaders like it.

Recently when the State Dept. learned that Frank Cousins, head of Britain's largest labor organization, the Transport and General Workers' Union, was due here, the government got the Teamsters to host a banquet for this former member of the Queen's Cabinet. About the same time, 11 visiting Russians also were wined and dined by the Brotherhood with paternal approval by the State Dept.

Not too long ago, California's Gov. Ronald Reagan appointed Teamsters Second Vice President Einar Mohn to the State Advisory Council of the State Dept. of Employment. Reagan also named Teamsters First Vice President Joe Diviny to the California Toll Bridge Authority. He is the public member!

Obviously the heat is off. Roy Siemiller's Machinists have made a new pact with the Western Conference of Teamsters. In the East, the Brotherhood fraternizes with the construction unions at some of the Rockefellers' soirees -- and joins in the merriment at Democratic fund-raising banquets. One of its leaders recently was honored by a world-famed national organization as the Labor Man of the Year.

In July there will be more coalitions in the making with their old AFL-CIO brethren -- in Boston at the Teamsters National Warehouse Conference and in Atlantic City at the Eastern Conference of Teamsters.

After almost two decades of guerilla warfare with the government in general and the local investigatory agencies in particular, the Brotherhood appreciates the cool. "Jimmy" isn't discussed much. "He did it to himself, he's virtually forgotten," says one of the new hierarchy.

"He pleaded illness to get out of prison," said this influential Teamsters chief. "That was admission of the weakness at which he always sneered. Remember how he raced up the beach at Miami to prove he had muscle after visiting a doctor there. Well, he's not ill. With this sick plea, it seems to us, Jimmy actually admits he was guilty as convicted, and not framed."

The "boys" know that the 50-year-old former 11th Vice President Anthony (Tough Tony Pro) Provenzano is seriously ill in the same penitentiary. Early in April he was rushed to the Public Service Hospital in Baltimore for major surgery to remove an obstruction of the kidneys. But he did not yelp. He is back in prison waiting for parole on Sept. 4, 1968. But Hoffa broke the code -- he complained about ulcers and a hernia.

Now the Teamsters are set to break Hoffa. They just don't cherish the fact that he still is the $100,000-a-year "General President." They think it's time for the caretaker "General Vice President" Frank Fitzsimmons to be honored and moved back to the second echelon from which he was drawn by Hoffa.

So next month in Washington, at a meeting of the Teamsters General Executive Board, a two-thirds majority is expected to move under Article 9, Section 8, to call a special convention of the Teamsters and elect new officers.

Only one technicality may defer the purge. They may decide to await a ruling on Hoffa's conviction in Chicago on charges of defrauding the $400 million central states pension fund.

But the consensus inside the Teamsters is that by the year's end there will be new officers, and they will play the returning prodigal act in AFL-CIO circles by asking for re-affiliation.

And Jimmy Hoffa will have his mattress shredder and a $2,000-a-week lifetime pension. Not a bad way to wander through obscurity.

This is a country permitting such great freedom of expression that much borderline pornography, indecent trash and sewer literature is permitted to circulate abundantly.

The public has the right to reject what it dislikes by its own free choice. We like it that way.

Comes now the National Labor Relations Board, famous for its partiality to unions and strong bias against employers, with the disposition to bludgeon freedom of information with heavy hand.

The NLRB loves union labor and adopts a paternalistic attitude toward it.

The ranks of labor, according to NLRB, are populated by simple minded men, not much more intelligent than nincompoops, who must be carefully spoon fed the most innocuous tidbits of information. Any deviation from a diet of infantile literature would throw the poor working man into an awful tail spin or disorient him completely from his normal environment.

The NLRB really has tortured the law in holding that an employer who gave his employes a book to read was guilty of coercion.

The book was written by none other than Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, a tired and true friend of organized labor.

"The Enemy Within" uncovered instances of corruption, misfeasance and general ill-doing by labor leaders years ago. Kennedy was counsel for the investigators.

It was a Massachusetts company which handed out 14 copies of the book to wire weavers, who were the object of an organizing drive by the Teamsters.

The employee spoke out against the union and mailed letters to employes before an election.

The Teamsters lost the election but appealed.

The NLRB found nothing unlawful in any single employer act but decided that it all added up to coercion.

It handed the weavers over to the Teamsters.

Here is a great deal of freedom left in this country unless you are a laboring man involved in a labor-management controversy.

At such times the NLRB steps forward as benefactor, censor and wet nurse and determines what information is sufficiently sterile for the laboring man to read. Father knows best, of course! In a pig's eye!

Mr. Ernest G. Swigert, the highly articulate head of a large heavy equipment company, has a way of discussing questions of principle with a conviction that is all too often sadly lacking in most public utterances. Recently he observed: "I don't know why it is that every generation will accept the accumulated knowledge in medicine and science and build new achievements on that foundation, but when it comes to economics they have to learn the hard way. There is always some professor or politician who has a new scheme to repeal the laws of economics; but I suspect the laws of economics are just as immutable as the laws of physics."

Should a public utility be content to rest on its laurels - depending on recognition that service to customers speaks for itself?

Or should it accept the obligation of periodically informing people about what it has done for its customers, how it is helping the community, reviewing financial and other contributions to community institutions and causes and giving a general account of its stewardship?

Associated Natural Gas meets the first specification.

It did not make any attempt to fulfill the second requirement in advance of the franchise election in which fewer than 175 citizens, less than three per cent of the city's 7,000 registered voters cast ballots.

Associated Natural has a monopoly but it is questionable whether it is in its own best interest to act like it.

A dismal turnout of voters such as the handful who requested ballots Tuesday does no credit to a democracy, to Sikeston or to the utility.

Associated Natural has an impressive story to tell. It could have presented highlights of its stewardship over 20 years, the length of the franchise to serve Sikeston which expires at the end of September.

Instead it chose to let the record speak for itself. The record did speak to 172 out of 7,000 who bothered to vote. Seven didn't approve of the record.

The city might help, too.

More citizens would have voted if the franchise election could have been combined with other issues or candidates requiring voter approval.

As it is Associated Natural Gas has only a weak mandate to continue serving Sikeston for another 10 or 20 years - an arrangement that isn't satisfactory to anyone.

Let's have fewer elections which are flops.

IT TICKLES US

At a recent coffee club session where he had taken over the counter for most of the 10-minute gathering, one of his listeners asked him if he ever thought about what he was going to say before saying it.

"Why, no," said the g.t. seriously, "How on earth could I know what I think about a thing until I've heard what I have to say on the subject?"

NEW YORK (AP) — "Life," said George Peppard, "is a piece of time as long as a gnat's blink.

"That makes it important to live it the way you feel it should be lived— to do as much good as you can and have as much fun as you can."

But when Hollywood stardom beckons to a young actor, it's hard for him to go on living the way he prefers. The big dollar makes big demands.

And some of them seem a bit inordinate to George, who rang Hollywood's golden cash register in "The Carpetbaggers" and is now completing his 15th picture, "What's So Bad About Feeling Good?"

For one thing, George, who worked hard to become a star, finds he doesn't like the public attention that success has brought. He doesn't like giving interviews, doesn't enjoy being pointed out when he goes into a restaurant.

"I realize it's part of the business, and I don't resent it," he said. "But I simply don't get any pleasure out of public attention, except so far as it applies to my work."

It isn't that the tall, handsome blond actor finds the fruits of success bitter. He just isn't the extrovert, life-of-the party type, and never has been.

He always has been something of a loner, one who likes to study others but keeps himself a bit apart.

"Sometimes I require solitude," he said, "just to read and think. That's why I enjoy going hunting or boating, or flying an airplane."

Recently George took a long step toward privacy by buying a 13,000-acre ranch in northern California, which he soon hopes to stock with 6,000 cattle.

"I'm rather practical," he remarked. "I expect the cattle to support me, rather than vice versa."

Peppard, son of a Detroit building contractor, became interested in the theater while studying engineering at Purdue. Later, after an 18-month hitch in the U.S. Marines, he won a degree in fine arts at the Carnegie Institute of Technology. He worked partime as a disk jockey and radio station engineer.

Before making his mark on Broadway, George attended the Actor's Studio here. He kept alive by employment as a bank clerk, taxi driver and motorcycle mechanic.

Those days of deprivation— even then, George valued his privacy so much he kept an unlisted telephone number— still hold a luster for him.

"I lived in a $40-a-month coldwater flat in Greenwich Village," he recalled. "When I wasn't looking for an acting job, I used to play chess in Washington Square Park. It was a great life."

Auto theft is a far more serious problem than most people realize. Many tend to have a passive and apathetic attitude about it. First, there is the common expression, "It won't happen to me." Last year half a million motorists learned otherwise. Or perhaps they say, "It is too much trouble to lock my car." The inconvenience is insignificant when compared to the inconvenience of having a car stolen. Even though about 85 per cent of stolen automobiles are ultimately returned to their owners, the average damage done to a recovered car amounts to nearly 200 dollars. A recent study revealed that up to 24 per cent of stolen cars were involved in accidents.

The Missouri State Highway Patrol notes that there is a good reason for this. The thief has no idea of what condition the car is in. He may be unfamiliar with the particular model. The young thief especially may not be as good a driver as he thinks he is. Knowing that he has a stolen car, and that the police may be looking for him, he is more apt to take dangerous chances to avoid arrest. Also, the thief has no financial interest in the car whatsoever.

These facts illustrate the threat which the stolen car poses to highway safety. A simple act of negligence -- leaving keys in the ignition or the car unlocked -- can create an opportunity for theft which may end in death or injury to innocent people.

ANONYMOUS INSURANCE

It just happens that we don't know a single person who ever bought a used car from a salesman wearing a Halloween mask. Nor can we think of anyone we know who ever bought a refrigerator from a door-to - door salesman wearing a paste - on moustache and dark glasses. When it comes to insurance, nobody we know buys life insurance or automobile insurance from an unknown company.

And we think some similarly elementary precautions are called for when it comes to the military security of our country.

There's been a great deal of copy in the press recently about the new anti-missile system which the USSR is reportedly deploying around its major cities and industrial complexes and anti - missile system made news in this country more than two years ago, and the Congress pressed the civilian wheels in the Pentagon to get on with perfecting and deploying one in this country. Nothing happened.

Now there are persistent reports that the Soviet anti-missile complex is in place. And Congress has been pressing again. So what happens?

On November 17, in Washington, anonymous spokesmen for the administration met with newsmen and assured them that irrespective of the Soviet system, the American people can rest assured that this country, the United States, is militarily capable of penetrating that system and could, in fact, destroy any nation which might attack us, irrespective of the extent of the surprise attack.

Who gave these assurances? We repeat: anonymous spokesmen!

Here are anonymous spokesmen selling us an insurance policy for our country, but refusing to put their names or addresses on the policy. Be assured the spokesmen said, but don't print our names or addresses or titles.

H. L. Hunt Says

SERVICE TO THE UTMOST

Some observers of man at work have voiced the opinion that the average person rarely operates at more than 50 per cent of his capacity. This may be true, and if so great waste is involved.

The Congressional District Plan for reforming the Electoral College would bring forward every four years nearly 1100 men and women capable of performing notable service to the Republic. These men and women would be the 538 winning nominees for presidential elector and the 538 losing nominees, probably of equal stature. Their combining to form an unofficial committee to examine government problems and offer recommendations for their solution would give them an opportunity for service far beyond their duty of casting electoral votes for the President and Vice President.

The Congressional Distrct Plan calls for naming an elector from each of 435 congressional districts, three electors from the District of Columbia, and two electors at large from each of the 50 states. These electors would be individuals of high caliber, devoted to the principles of their respective political parties. They would have the unique distinction that half of them had been elected by the voters of their district or state and all would have been nominated for high honors.

An unofficial committee composed of these electors would have tremendous prestige in the nation. Their reports to the President on urgent government problems, their comments at press conferences and their public utterances would carry great weight. They would be serving at more - much more - than 50 per cent of their capacity, and the Republic would benefit. HLH

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON - One important factor behind Soviet oratory at the United Nations General Assembly is a political problem which congressional committees in Washington readily understand. It's the Kremlin's need to justify the huge investment of arms and aid to the Arab states, estimated by some Israeli observers as running over over $3.5 billion.

This is a tremendous amount of money for a government to plow into the Near East when Russian consumers are demanding more housing, more consumer goods and lower rents.

What the average American doesn't know is that the Russian people are just as sour on foreign aid as Sen. Allen Ellender of Louisiana or Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon. They don't like the idea of a lot of Soviet rubles being dumped abroad which could benefit their economy at home.

One of the charges against Nikita Khrushchev when he was ousted in October, 1964, was that in May, 1964, he had extended a $90 million loan to President Nasser to help complete the Aswan Dam, and that he had done so without consulting the other Kremlin leaders. Ninety million dollars is a relatively small figure compared with the subsequent military aid to the Arab states, though some money went for irrigation, airport improvement, highways and harbor construction.

While the primary reason for calling the U. N. General Assembly was to prove the Soviet is 100 per cent behind the Arabs, a secondary factor was to demonstrate to the Russian people the solid Soviet position in the Near East and focus attention away from the arms investment which the Israeli army in three days showed up as completely useless.

"REPREHENSIBLE"

SENATE EMPLOYEES

Senators who branded the conduct of the four ex-Dodd employees as reprehensible for exposing his unethical conduct should read a little history. Specifically they should read the case of their late colleague, Sen. John H. Mitchell of Oregon, who was convicted of taking fees, through his law firm, for getting Federal timber concessions for certain lumber companies.

In this famous case, which broke during the Teddy Roosevelt administration, the private secretary to Sen. Mitchell, Harry C. Robertson, gave an incriminating document to the Government which convicted Sen. Mitchell. Instead of being called reprehensible, Robertson was praised.

The case was one of the most famous in U.S. Senate history and one of only two in which a United States Senator was sent to jail. The other involved Sen. Barton of Kansas, convicted of taking a fee for getting a post office contract.

Sen. Mitchell's case has overtones similar to Dodd's; first, because private secretaries were involved as witnesses; second, because Sen. Dodd has received remuneration for taking cases against the United States Government. The Seneate Ethics committee, however, has passed the buck on to the Justice Department regarding this latter phase of Dodd's unethical conduct.

In the Mitchell case it was discovered that the law firm of Mitchell and Tanner in Oregon has been paid fees by the C.A. Smith Lumber Company in Minneapolis from 1901 through 1904 for getting federal lumber concessions. A. H. Tanner, Jr., had been the law partner of Sen. Mitchell before the latter was elected to the Senate from Oregon, and at the time of his election Sen. Mitchell wrote a clause in his partnership agreement whereby he was to receive one-half of all fees "except that for any services which may be rendered by said John H. Mitchell in the City of Washington, D.C. either in the the Supreme Court of the United States, the Court of Claims or before Congress or any of the departments, (which) shall be the individual matter and claim of said John H. Mitchell, and all fees so earned by him in either of said courts or before Congress or any of said departments . . .shall be the individual property of said John H. Mitchell, the firm shall have no interest therein."

This obviously was a violation of Section 1782 of the revised U.S. Statutes, which makes it a criminal offense for a member of Congress to collect any remuneration for any work done on behalf of clinets before the Federal Government.

"BURN THIS LETTER"

Four years later, when the U.S. attorney began digging into this, Sen. Mitchell secretly revised the agreement with his old law firm eliminating all references to fees earned for work "before Congress or any of the departments."

Sen. Mitchell also wrote a letter, February 5, 1905, to his law partner, Judge Tanner, which concluded: "Burn this without fail."

In the letter he told his law partner to "bring with you in trunk, but don't let your family or anyone know, all the company's books, day ledger, all of them, also your bank book, as I am extremely anxious to see for myself personally what the books show.

"Don't show Harry this letter or tell him anything in it. We don't let him see our books. Tell him nothing," wrote Sen. Mitchell, referring to his secretary, Harry Robertson.

Robertson, however, turned the letter over to the U.S. Government just as the ex-employees of Sen. Dodd reported on Dodd's unethical conduct. He was praised by the press and the Senate. Dodd's employees have been castigated by the Senate.

Note: Sen. Mitchell was convicted and sentenced to prison July 25, 1905, in the U.S. District court in Portland, Ore. He died six months later.

MAN AND MACHINE

Teamsters Prosper Without Hoffa; Reject His Secret Bids; Chiefs Plan Swiftly to Strip Him of All Powers

Washington, D.C.: -- For four months now, Jimmy Hoffa has learned that he is the indispensable man only at the controls of the "mattress shredder" in Lewisburg Penitentiary's main building.

Forty hours a week he feeds grimy old mattresses into the machines to make flossy new ones for 1,400 inmates of the maximum security jail and for the 250 at the freer prison camp over at nearby Allenwood, Pa., which makes stuffed furniture for the government.

His performance is good. He could earn from $10 to $25 a month for "meritorious" production. He is healthy and has not been hospitalized at all. And he has lots of time to think -- and thinks he'll quit as General President of the nation's largest union.

So he has sent confidential word to Teamsters leaders in the "outside" world that he would be willing to walk away from the Brotherhood forever if they get him out in some fashion -- legally, of course.

The reply is -- they could not care less what he thinks, says or offers. They want no deal. They need no deal. The Brotherhood is operating as coordinatedly and successfully as an Israeli air squadron.

For the first time in a generation it is accepted everywhere -- in the U.S. State Dept. circles; in Gov. Ronald Reagan's organization chart; in labor circles close to George Meany; and in this capital's "best" political milieus.

Contracts are being won. Compacts with other mass unions are being made. Conferences are being called.

There's a new chain of command. And the leaders like it.

Recently when the State Dept. learned that Frank Cousins, head of Britain's largest labor organization, the Transport and General Workers' Union, was due here, the government got the Teamsters to host a banquet for this former member of the Queen's Cabinet. About the same time, 11 visiting Russians also were wined and dined by the Brotherhood with paternal approval by the State Dept.

Not too long ago, California's Gov. Ronald Reagan appointed Teamsters Second Vice President Einar Mohn to the State Advisory Council of the State Dept. of Employment. Reagan also named Teamsters First Vice President Joe Diviny to the California Toll Bridge Authority. He is the public member!

Obviously the heat is off. Roy Siemiller's Machinists have made a new pact with the Western Conference of Teamsters. In the East, the Brotherhood fraternizes with the construction unions at some of the Rockefellers' soirees -- and joins in the merriment at Democratic fund-raising banquets. One of its leaders recently was honored by a world-famed national organization as the Labor Man of the Year.

In July there will be more coalitions in the making with their old AFL-CIO brethren -- in Boston at the Teamsters National Warehouse Conference and in Atlantic City at the Eastern Conference of Teamsters.

After almost two decades of guerilla warfare with the government in general and the local investigatory agencies in particular, the Brotherhood appreciates the cool. "Jimmy" isn't discussed much. "He did it to himself, he's virtually forgotten," says one of the new hierarchy.

"He pleaded illness to get out of prison," said this influential Teamsters chief. "That was admission of the weakness at which he always sneered. Remember how he raced up the beach at Miami to prove he had muscle after visiting a doctor there. Well, he's not ill. With this sick plea, it seems to us, Jimmy actually admits he was guilty as convicted, and not framed."

The "boys" know that the 50-year-old former 11th Vice President Anthony (Tough Tony Pro) Provenzano is seriously ill in the same penitentiary. Early in April he was rushed to the Public Service Hospital in Baltimore for major surgery to remove an obstruction of the kidneys. But he did not yelp. He is back in prison waiting for parole on Sept. 4, 1968. But Hoffa broke the code -- he complained about ulcers and a hernia.

Now the Teamsters are set to break Hoffa. They just don't cherish the fact that he still is the $100,000-a-year "General President." They think it's time for the caretaker "General Vice President" Frank Fitzsimmons to be honored and moved back to the second echelon from which he was drawn by Hoffa.

So next month in Washington, at a meeting of the Teamsters General Executive Board, a two-thirds majority is expected to move under Article 9, Section 8, to call a special convention of the Teamsters and elect new officers.

Only one technicality may defer the purge. They may decide to await a ruling on Hoffa's conviction in Chicago on charges of defrauding the $400 million central states pension fund.

But the consensus inside the Teamsters is that by the year's end there will be new officers, and they will play the returning prodigal act in AFL-CIO circles by asking for re-affiliation.

And Jimmy Hoffa will have his mattress shredder and a $2,000-a-week lifetime pension. Not a bad way to wander through obscurity

LaDonna Parker Says Vows With Jerry R. Sullivan

EAST PRAIRIE - LaDonna Jean Parker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Paul Parker of Rochester, N.Y., and Jerry Robert Sullivan, son of Mrs. Edna Sullivan and Sam R. Sullivan of Pryor, Oka., were married at 2:30 p.m. Sunday in the First Church of God.

The Rev. J. L. Hatchel performed the double ring ceremony. The Rev. Mr. Hatchel was pastor of the Pryor congregation when Sullivan was younger and later was Miss Parker's pastor in East Prairie.

A single candelabra was in the background.

Mrs. Dolores Harvey accompanied Miss Sammie Jones as she sang, "Entreat Me Not to Leave Thee" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Parker escorted his daughter to the altar. She wore an empire styled gown. The bodice was white re-embroidered lace over white bridal satin. The bodice featured scalloped elbow-length sleeves and a scalloped neckline. Her floor-length skirt was A-line and fashioned of white satin over taffeta. Accenting the back of the gown were self-covered buttons. Attached at the back waistline was a white satin chapel-length train. A veil of white silk illusion was secured by a cluster of white silk roses.

The bridal bouquet was a cascade of white roses and baby's breath with ribbons tied in lovers' knots.

Miss Mary Ann Parker of Rochester, the bride's sister, was maid of honor. She wore a floor-length gown of powder blue nylon embossed with white and gold roses over sky blue peau de soie. Her headpiece was matching peau de soie roses with a short veil. She wore matching shoes and short white gloves.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Paula Elrod of Shawnee, Okla., the bride's sister, and Mrs. Sam Barker of Jonesboro, Ark. They wore floor-length powder blue nylon gowns embossed with white and gold roses over powder blue taffeta. The bridesmaids wore powder blue shoes, short white gloves and headdresses of powder blue taffeta roses encircled with short veils.

The attendants' gowns were styled like that of the bride. They carried nosegays of white daisies with gold ribbon.

Miss Charlotte Parker and Miss Debrah Parker, cousins of the bride, were candlelighters. Their floor-length gowns were fashioned of sky blue peau de soie with empire waistlines and sleeveless bodices. They wore peau de soie roses securing short veils. The candlelighters wore white daisy corsages with gold ribbon, white shoes and short gloves.

Martin David Combs, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lon Combs of St. Louis, was ring bearer and Miss Pamela Ann Elrod, daughter of Mrs. Paula Elrod of Shawnee, Okla., and niece of the bride, was flower girl.

The ring bearer wore a white coat, black trousers and a white boutonniere. He carried the rings on a white satin heart-shaped pillow with white ribbon streamers tied in lovers' knots.

In our parish Mrs. Williams tried hard to cooperate with the new methods of the school. Stephen brought a worm into the kitchen, asking, "Mother, are worms good to eat?"

"No, dear."

"But, why? There must be a reason."

"People just don't."

"Sister Rose in science class says we should prove things. Let's eat this worm and see." He cut the worm in half. "You eat half and I will, too."

She quickly gulped down the half and looked to Stephen for apporval, but his eyes were welling with tears.

"You ate my half!"

In our parish one of our youngsters was hanging his head as if in silent prayer after the rest of the family had finished saying Grace at the table.

Recently we moved to the country - and I am delighted that my wife has adjusted so well to the change. In the city, the sight of a bug would have sent her flying to the telephone for the exterminator. But one morning recently, a spider dropped onto her pillow just a few inches from her nose. She gasped, and then said calmly, "Well, at least it's our own spider."

It's a miracle to me the way girls from all parts of the country learn to live together in a college dormitory with a minimum of friction. As a coed, I have found their sportsmanship inspiring. It is the custom for each girl to put her name on the door and any other information, such as sorority affiliation, that she thinks pertinent. The two Negro girls living across the hall from me had the most imaginative sign of all. It read: "Welcome to the world of color."

The National League leading St. Louis Cardinals won their fourth straight game Wednesday night, 2-0, against the Dodgers in Los Angeles. It also was the seventh victory for the Cards in a 10-game road trip that ends tonight.

Ray Washburn and relievers Joe Hoerner and Nelson Briles combined to shut out the Dodgers on only four hits. Washburn allowed three before he was forced to leave in the seventh after being hit on his pitching hand by a line drive single by John Roseboro.

Curt Flood singled to drive in the Cards first run in the third inning and Tim McCarver homered in the seventh.

Washburn suffered a compound dislocation of the right thumb and a laceration, but no fracture. Cardinal spokesmen did not know how long the injury would sideline him.

St. Louis will open with Steve Carlton against the Dodgers Clause Osteen tonight.

Hire a big enough hall and you could assemble all of the 62 poor souls who've had the thankless task of pitching for the New York Mets during their 5½ adventurous seasons.

But the chairman of the meeting would have to be Jack Fisher, who's in his fourth season of that punishing job. Fisher had been at it longer than anybody else and for that he deserves to be chairman.

He hurled a brilliant two-hitter Wednesday night and beat Philadelphia 2-0 on an attack that consisted mainly of Tommy Davis getting plunked by Jim Bunning's pitches.

It was the best pitched game in the National League where Cincinnati nipped Houston 3-2, Chicago dropped Pittsburgh 6-3 and Atlanta battered San Francisco 9-2.

The only hits off Fisher were by rookie Gary Sutherland, who looped a leadoff double in the sixth and then singled in the eighth. Fisher struck out five and walked two in running his record to 5-7.

The Mets nicked Bunning for single runs in the first and third innings. Cleon Jones singled and stole second before Bunning hit Ed Kranepool and Davis in the first. Tom Reynolds' sacrifice fly delivered the run.

In the third, Davis was hit again, reached third on Rich Allen's error and then scored on a grounder.

Fisher, the workhorse of the Mets' staff, sailed through the first five innings. Sutherland's double and a pair of walks loaded the bases in the sixth but he escaped by getting Bill White on a grounder.

Like almost all their games, there was a touch of irony attached to the two-hitter for Fisher and the Mets. Sutherland, the only man to hit him safely, is the brother of a former Met pitcher.

Vada Pinson opened Cincinnati's ninth inning with a double and came around on a fly ball and a grounder for the Reds' winning run against Houston.

Pinson moved to third on Tony Perez' fly and scored on Lee May's bouncer. Perez and May accounted for Cincinnati's first two runs with solo homers. Jim Wynn hit his 17th for the Astros.

The Cubs moved into third place by beating the Pirates with Curt Simmons and Dick Radatz making an early four-run bulge stand up.

Simmons, 38, worked the first eight innings and Radatz set Pittsburgh down in the ninth as Chicago moved .001 ahead of San Francisco. Adolpho Phillips drove in two runs with a first inning single and John Boccabella chased two more across with a triple in the sixth.

Uecker's shot capped a seven-run Atlanta third that put it away for Pat Jarvis, who hurled a six-hitter. Denis Menke tagged three hits including a homer for the Braves.

PRIZE MONEY of over $37,000 has been announced for the 1967 Missouri State Fair Horse Show at Sedalia, an increase of about $10,000 over last year, Dexter Davis, commissioner of the Department of Agriculture, said. Dates of the fair are Aug. 19-27.

Although the total of 1,300 made last year a record year in the number of entries, E. F. Strickler, superintendent of the horse show, said he expects even more this year.

In addition to the prize money, the 1967 horse show will include trophies in all classes, as well as ribbons, and 18 challenge trophies.

There will be 24 classes for mules and 187 classes for horses and ponies. All show horses will have suitable divisions, Strickler said.

A total of 18 divisions will be shown, all free to the public including roadster, fine harness, walking, hackney pony, harness pony, roadster pony, three gaited horse, five-gaited horse, futurity, parade, hunters and campers, equitation, western, Appaloosa, saddle club, draft horse, mules, and registered quarter horses.

Entries must be postmarked no later than July 30, and sent to the Missouri State Fair, Box 111, Sedalia, Mo., in order to qualify.

THE PUBLIC INFORMATION program of the Missouri Department of Conservation is the best program of its kind in North America, according to judging announced here recently.

The judging was in competition sponsored by the American Association for Conservation Information (AACI). Awards are given in nine categories of informational work. In addition an overall award is also given. This award is based on points accumulated in judging in the other nine categories.

The Missouri Conservation Department won four first place awards, in the categories of conservation magazines (The Missouri CONSERVATIONIST); conservation movies ("Headwaters"); conservation publications ("Inventory 66"); and conservation exhibits (The Conservation Department's exhibit at the Missouri State Fair).

In addition, the Missouri department won second place awards in the categories of conservation news programs and conservation radio programs. Missouri also entered the categories of television and photography.

This is the third consecutive year the Missouri department has won first place awards in the magazines and publications categories.

Missouri's four firsts and two seconds, plus points for entering two other categories, assured her of overall conservation information award signifying the best information program in the competition.

Missouri won the awards in competition with conservation agencies of the states and provinces of North America, although some states and provinces did not enter exhibits in the competition. Second and third places in the overall competition went to Oklahoma and Utah.

James F. Keefe, information officer for the Missouri Department of Conservation, accepted the Missouri awards at the annual meeting of the AACI here.

NFL Teams to Meet AFL in Preseason

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Football League and the American Football League will get together to play 16 preseason games this year during the period between Aug. 5 and Sept. 3.

Regular season play between the two leagues is not expected to start until 1970. The only previous meeting of the leagues was in the Super Bowl at Los Angeles where the Green Bay Packers of the NFL defeated the Kansas City Chiefs of the AFL.

The first inter-league test will be Saturday, Aug. 5, with Detroit at Denver.

Detroit will play three AFL rivals—Denver, Buffalo and San Diego—and the Philadelphia Eagles and Los Angeles Rams each will play two AFL teams. St. Louis, Green Bay, New York and Cleveland of the NFL will not play any games with the other league this year.

Each of the other teams, except Detroit, Philadelphia and Los Angeles, will play one each.

All of the AFL teams will play NFL teams. San Diego will take on Detroit, Los Angeles and Pittsburgh. Buffalo, Boston, Kansas City, Miami and Denver each will play two and Houston, the New York Jets and Oakland one each.

Although there will be no Giant-Jets meeting of the two New York teams, there will be a Sept. 3 battle at Oakland between the San Francisco 49ers and the Oakland Raiders. An all-Texas game will be played Sept. 2 when the Dallas Cowboys invade Houston to play the Oilers.

The San Diego Chargers, who used to make Los Angeles their home, will face the Los Angeles Rams Aug. 27 at San Diego and the newest expansion teams, Miami of the AFL and New Orleans of the NFL, will meet Sept. 2 on the neutral ground of Charleston, S.C.

The NFL's preseason schedule, announced by President Art Modell, Cleveland owner, calls for a total of 51 games including the 16 with the AFL.

"The fact that nearly a third of our games are with AFL teams makes this an especially interesting prelude to the new NFL season," said Modell."

Six of the NFL games will be carried on national telecasts, starting with the Green Bay-College All-Star game at Chicago, Aug. 4 on the American Broadcasting Company. Five other nationally televised games will be carried by the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Major League Players Go to Polls Today

NEW YORK (AP)— If outfielders were allowed to play other positions in baseball's All-Star Game, the major league players would have an easier time in making their selections.

The players went to the polls today to vote for the starting American and National League line-ups for the summer classic to be played in Anaheim, Tuesday, July 11.

Just what outfielders not to vote for was the number one problem facing the electorate.

In the National League seven outfielders are among the top 10 hitters and six are in first place in six of the seven individual categories kept by statisticians.

Six outfielders are among the top 10 hitters in the American League, and Baltimore's Frank Robinson not only is the No. 1 batter but he also leads in home runs and runs batted in as he bids for a second straight Triple Crown.

The only nonoutfielders among the first 10 NL hitters are St. Louis first baseman Orlando Cepeda, catcher Tim McCarver of St. Louis and Philadelphia third baseman Richie Allen. Cepeda, who has played the outfield, is tops in doubles.

The American League nonoutfielders who rank among the top 10 in hitting are Detroit catcher Bill Freehan, Minnesota second baseman Rod Carew, California first baseman Don Mincher and Boston shortstop Rico Petrocelli.

Outfielders Cesar Tovar of Minnesota and Rick Monday of Kansas City are not among the first 10 hitters, but Tovar leads in doubles and Monday is tied for first in triples.

The players in each league vote for three outfielders, without designating any positions, four infielders and a catcher.

The managers— Hank Bauer of Baltimore for the American League and Walt Alston of Los Angeles for the National—name the reserves and the pitching staffs.

American League President Joe Cronin named Chicago Manager Eddie Stanky and California skipper Bill Rigney as coaches Wednesday.

The AL starting lineups, except for pitchers, will be announced Tuesday and the NL on Wednesday.

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Twenty standardbred yearlings, including two by Adios, the leading all-time pacing sire, were destroyed in a barn fire at Walnut Hall Farm Wednesday night.

Farm Owner Harold W. Nichols of Cincinnati, estimated the loss at $300,000 for the horses, and another $50,000 for the barn which was apparently struck by lightning.

The yearlings by Adios were a colt out of Meadow Gloria and a filly out of Nila Mite. A colt and a filly, both by Star's Pride, also were destroyed.

"No, dear."

"But, why? There must be a reason."

"Sister Rose in science class says we should prove things. Let's eat this worm and see." He cut the worm in half. "You eat half and I will, too."

Recently we moved to the country - and I am delighted that my wife has adjusted so well to the change. In the city, the sight of a bug would have sent her flying to the telephone for the exterminator. But one morning recently, a spider dropped onto her pillow just a few inches from her nose. She gasped, and then said calmly, "Well, at least it's our own spider."

It's a miracle to me the way girls from all parts of the country learn to live together in a college dormitory with a minimum of friction. As a coed, I have found their sportsmanship inspiring. It is the custom for each girl to put her name on the door and any other information, such as sorority affiliation, that she thinks pertinent. The two Negro girls living across the hall from me had the most imaginative sign of all. It read: "Welcome to the world of color."

PRIZE MONEY of over $37,000 has been announced for the 1967 Missouri State Fair Horse Show at Sedalia, an increase of about $10,000 over last year, Dexter Davis, commissioner of the Department of Agriculture, said. Dates of the fair are Aug. 19-27.

Although the total of 1,300 made last year a record year in the number of entries, E. F. Strickler, superintendent of the horse show, said he expects even more this year.

In addition to the prize money, the 1967 horse show will include trophies in all classes, as well as ribbons, and 18 challenge trophies.

There will be 24 classes for mules and 187 classes for horses and ponies. All show horses will have suitable divisions, Strickler said.

A total of 18 divisions will be shown, all free to the public including roadster, fine harness, walking, hackney pony, harness pony, roadster pony, three gaited horse, five-gaited horse, futurity, parade, hunters and campers, equitation, western, Appaloosa, saddle club, draft horse, mules, and registered quarter horses.

Entries must be postmarked no later than July 30, and sent to the Missouri State Fair, Box 111, Sedalia, Mo., in order to qualify.

THE PUBLIC INFORMATION program of the Missouri Department of Conservation is the best program of its kind in North America, according to judging announced here recently.

The judging was in competition sponsored by the American Association for Conservation Information (AACI). Awards are given in nine categories of informational work. In addition an overall award is also given. This award is based on points accumulated in judging in the other nine categories.

The Missouri Conservation Department won four first place awards, in the categories of conservation magazines (The Missouri CONSERVATIONIST); conservation movies ("Headwaters"); conservation publications ("Inventory 66"); and conservation exhibits (The Conservation Department's exhibit at the Missouri State Fair).

In addition, the Missouri department won second place awards in the categories of conservation news programs and conservation radio programs. Missouri also entered the categories of television and photography.

This is the third consecutive year the Missouri department has won first place awards in the magazines and publications categories.

Missouri's four firsts and two seconds, plus points for entering two other categories, assured her of overall conservation information award signifying the best information program in the competition.

Missouri won the awards in competition with conservation agencies of the states and provinces of North America, although some states and provinces did not enter exhibits in the competition. Second and third places in the overall competition went to Oklahoma and Utah.

James F. Keefe, information officer for the Missouri Department of Conservation, accepted the Missouri awards at the annual meeting of the AACI here.

NFL Teams to Meet AFL in Preseason

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Football League and the American Football League will get together to play 16 preseason games this year during the period between Aug. 5 and Sept. 3.

Regular season play between the two leagues is not expected to start until 1970. The only previous meeting of the leagues was in the Super Bowl at Los Angeles where the Green Bay Packers of the NFL defeated the Kansas City Chiefs of the AFL.

The first inter-league test will be Saturday, Aug. 5, with Detroit at Denver.

Detroit will play three AFL rivals—Denver, Buffalo and San Diego—and the Philadelphia Eagles and Los Angeles Rams each will play two AFL teams. St. Louis, Green Bay, New York and Cleveland of the NFL will not play any games with the other league this year.

Each of the other teams, except Detroit, Philadelphia and Los Angeles, will play one each.

All of the AFL teams will play NFL teams. San Diego will take on Detroit, Los Angeles and Pittsburgh. Buffalo, Boston, Kansas City, Miami and Denver each will play two and Houston, the New York Jets and Oakland one each.

Although there will be no Giant-Jets meeting of the two New York teams, there will be a Sept. 3 battle at Oakland between the San Francisco 49ers and the Oakland Raiders. An all-Texas game will be played Sept. 2 when the Dallas Cowboys invade Houston to play the Oilers.

The San Diego Chargers, who used to make Los Angeles their home, will face the Los Angeles Rams Aug. 27 at San Diego and the newest expansion teams, Miami of the AFL and New Orleans of the NFL, will meet Sept. 2 on the neutral ground of Charleston, S.C.

The NFL's preseason schedule, announced by President Art Modell, Cleveland owner, calls for a total of 51 games including the 16 with the AFL.

"The fact that nearly a third of our games are with AFL teams makes this an especially interesting prelude to the new NFL season," said Modell."

Six of the NFL games will be carried on national telecasts, starting with the Green Bay-College All-Star game at Chicago, Aug. 4 on the American Broadcasting Company. Five other nationally televised games will be carried by the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Major League Players Go to Polls Today

NEW YORK (AP)— If outfielders were allowed to play other positions in baseball's All-Star Game, the major league players would have an easier time in making their selections.

The players went to the polls today to vote for the starting American and National League line-ups for the summer classic to be played in Anaheim, Tuesday, July 11.

Just what outfielders not to vote for was the number one problem facing the electorate.

In the National League seven outfielders are among the top 10 hitters and six are in first place in six of the seven individual categories kept by statisticians.

Six outfielders are among the top 10 hitters in the American League, and Baltimore's Frank Robinson not only is the No. 1 batter but he also leads in home runs and runs batted in as he bids for a second straight Triple Crown.

The only nonoutfielders among the first 10 NL hitters are St. Louis first baseman Orlando Cepeda, catcher Tim McCarver of St. Louis and Philadelphia third baseman Richie Allen. Cepeda, who has played the outfield, is tops in doubles.

The American League nonoutfielders who rank among the top 10 in hitting are Detroit catcher Bill Freehan, Minnesota second baseman Rod Carew, California first baseman Don Mincher and Boston shortstop Rico Petrocelli.

Outfielders Cesar Tovar of Minnesota and Rick Monday of Kansas City are not among the first 10 hitters, but Tovar leads in doubles and Monday is tied for first in triples.

The players in each league vote for three outfielders, without designating any positions, four infielders and a catcher.

The managers— Hank Bauer of Baltimore for the American League and Walt Alston of Los Angeles for the National—name the reserves and the pitching staffs.

American League President Joe Cronin named Chicago Manager Eddie Stanky and California skipper Bill Rigney as coaches Wednesday.

The AL starting lineups, except for pitchers, will be announced Tuesday and the NL on Wednesday.

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Twenty standardbred yearlings, including two by Adios, the leading all-time pacing sire, were destroyed in a barn fire at Walnut Hall Farm Wednesday night.

Farm Owner Harold W. Nichols of Cincinnati, estimated the loss at $300,000 for the horses, and another $50,000 for the barn which was apparently struck by lightning.

The yearlings by Adios were a colt out of Meadow Gloria and a filly out of Nila Mite. A colt and a filly, both by Star's Pride, also were destroyed.

Wheat Crop Insurance Available

WASHINGTON -- All - risk wheat crop insurance will be available for the first time in the 1968 crop year to farmers in Butler, Cape Girardeau and Scott Counties, Missouri Senators Stuart Symington (D-Mo) and Edward V. Long (D-Mo) and Cong. Paul C. Jones (D-10th District) announced today.

Crop insurance is now available to farmers in 62 Missouri counties. In addition, $7.4 million in Missouri crop production expenses on more than 200,000 acres was protected by federal crop insurance in 1966. An estimated $460,000 was paid to Missouri farmers for some 1,100 losses during the 1966 crop year.

In telling of the new crop insurance Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman stated: "When crop damage from weather, insects, disease or other causes hits a rural area, it hurts everyone for miles around -- merchants, equipment dealers, bankers --- every bsuiness and profession feels the loss. When crop loss strikes, federal crop insurance payments to individual farmers bolster the economy of the whole community.

"Equally important," Secretary Freeman added, "during the good crop years, thousands of farmers can benefit from their Crop Insurance protection by using their policies as collateral for loans."

Improvements Scheduled for Highway 25

MALDEN - Representatives of the Highway 25 Association have been informed that a resurfacing and improvement program in the five-year plan by the State Highway Commission.

The information was released at a hearing Thursday before the SHC in Jefferson City attended by Highway 25 Association representatives from Bernie, Malden, Clarkton and Kennett. In addition State Senator Nelson B. Tinnin of Hornersville, Senator Pat Patterson of Caruthersville, Rep. R. B. King of Malden, Rep. Vic Downing of Bragg City and Rep. James Spain of Bloomfield appeared at the hearing seeking improvements for the much traveled highway.

Senator Tinnin told the Highway Commission of the poor condition of Route 25, of the heavy traffic that uses it and of its vital importance to the area.

Allen Black, acting chairman of the Highway 25 Association, pointed out the industrial growth in Dexter, Bernie, Malden and Kennett and of the importance highway improvements means to the area. He cited the improvements to U.S. 60, Interstate 55 and Route 84 which virtually encircle the area and said that the citizens along Highway 25 are becoming alarmed that nothing is being done in the immediate area.

Jack Stapleton, chariman of the SHC, asked if the accident rate was still high and he was assured that it was.

Also, it was pointed out that Route 25 makes 90-degree turns in downtown Bernie and Malden and that a curve in Clarkton is virtually under water every time that it rains.

Other speaking on behalf of improvements for Route 25 were Senator Pat Patterson, Rep. R. B. King, Rep. James Spain, Rep. Vic Downing, R. B. Woods of Bernie, John Howell of Malden, and J. E. Ditto of Kennett.

Others attending the meeting were J. M. Allen of Bernie, S. H. James and Ike Brannon of Clarkton, and Randel Hardin of Kennett.

The Commission appeared much more receptive to improvements for Highway 25 than they did one year ago. They asked many questions and indicated they would give the project consideration.

PLANNED IMPROVEMENTS

The improvements for Highway 25 as now scheduled are:

1967 - 2.5 miles through Bernie.

1969 - 8.2 miles in the Cardwell area.

1972 - 7.8 miles Dexter to Bernie, widen and resurface.

1972 - 1.5 miles through Townley.

1972 - 3.4 miles through Malden.

1972 - 1.5 miles Stoddard County line to Malden.

Present plans do not include anything from McGuire south to White Oak. Members of Highway 25 Association will seek to have this strip put on future programs as soon as possible.

Congo Harbors Refugees

KINSHASA, The Congo (AP) —Spread untidily across two blocks in the heart of the Congolese capital is a camp for Angolan refugees.

Men, women and children live there among their goats and chickens in conditions that are squalid even by African standards. The red-white-yellow flag of the Angolan revolution floats overhead.

The camp is officially described as a transit center. A pink stucco building in the middle is the headquarters of the "Revolutionary Government of Angola in Exile"— GRAE. Its president, Roberto Holden, hopes one day to rule the immense Portuguese colony to the south.

Holden, a tall, bearded scholar, is saluted smartly by uniformed Angolans as he drives into his headquarters.

He presides over "cabinet meetings" and councils of war, and receives from his Congolese hosts the honors and privileges of a head of state. He operates several military training camps near the Angolan border and has jurisdiction over the 400,000 Angolans said to have fled from the guerrilla war to seek safety in the Congo.

Along the hundreds of miles of the Angolan border, new villages have sprung up where the Angolan refugees, with United Nations help, are clearing the bush and settling down for good on Congo territory. They speak the same Kikongo dialect as the local population and blend easily into their new homeland.

South of the border, many villages in Angola's mountainous interior have been abandoned by inhabitants. Western intelligence reports say nationalist activity against the Portuguese is increasing, but the rebels are too badly organized and too divided to have much hope of driving the Portuguese out of Angola soon.

The Congo supplies Holden arms it doesn't need for its own troops. Some of the rebels' small arms date to World War I. In the training camps, recruits use sticks to learn rifle drill.

From the training camps safely located on Congolese territory, the guerrillas strike deep into Angola to harass the Portuguese with ambushes and booby traps.

Holden claimed in an interview that the entire northern corner of Angola was under control of his troops. But anyone driving along the border can see that the Portuguese are still firmly installed.

The border has been theoretically closed since the Congo broke relations with Portugal last year. But twice a week, on Wednesdays and Saturdays, civilian cars are permitted to cross. Congo residents drive into Angola to stock up on potatoes, sugar, butter and rice, virtually unobtainable on the open market in the Congo.

The railroad running through Angola from Katanga to Lobito still carries most of Katanga's copper exports which provide 70 per cent of the Congo's foreign exchange earnings.

Angolan guerrilla bands recently cut the railroad line and temporarily halted Katanga's copper exports. The Congolese government condemned Holden for this action and demanded assurances that, no matter what else the rebels did against the Portuguese, the Lobito railroad would not be interfered with.

Holden said the Portuguese themselves cut the line, to embarrass him with the Congolese.

American officials, who watch developments in Angola carefully but do not intervene in any way, believe the railroad was cut by men of the Communist-inspired Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola — MPLA — the GRAE's deadly rival. MPLA, headed by Dr. Agostino Neto, is based in Brazzaville, on the opposite bank of the Congo River from Kinshasa.

Cut off by the river from direct access to Angola, the MPLA has concentrated some of its action on the Portuguese enclave of Cabinda, but has met with little enthusiasm from the population. It receives money and weapons from Red China and the Soviet bloc, but suffers from a shortage of Angolan recruits for its guerrilla forces.

Hometown Goes All out For Clown

SEDAN, Kan. (AP) - Circus clown Emmett Kelly, whose lovable, sad-faced, blundering alter ego, Weary Willie the tramp, is more familiarly known to audiences than Kelly himself, won't be on hand for his homecoming celebration Friday.

Kelly, born in Sedan and reared to boyhood in Houston, Mo., is being victimized by Willie's immense popularity.

He notified sponsors of the event Tuesday that performing commitments are keeping him too busy to come here until September.

"That kind of took the steam out of things," said Dr. M. L. Rees, one of the sponsors, "but we're going right along with plans anyway. Our entertainment is all scheduled and the museum is ready for opening."

The museum is a collection of replicas and memorabilia of Kelly's eventful life from small-town boy to manhood and fame as a bigtop performer.

Many of the mementos were supplied by Kelly himself, others by friends and admirers," and he told me he has some more that he'll bring around in September," Dr. Rees said.

"We have a parade set for 1 p.m. Friday, and the ribbon-cutting at the museum will be about 1:30 p.m.," Rees added. "We decided the best thing we can do is open the museum Friday, and then have the formal opening in September when Emmett will be available."

The museum is housed in a downtown Sedan building. A piece of the original pine flooring taken from the home, no longer standing, where Kelly was born 69 years ago will be fashioned into two keys to the city. One will be presented to Kelly, the other will remain in the museum.

Other entertainment Friday will include a hootenny, street dances, band concerts and a special screening of circus films.

Streets and businesses in Sedan, a southeast Kansas community of 1,800, are being decorated in a circus motif, and residents have been asked to wear clown costumes for the day.

Concessions will operate circus-style on Sedan streets and donate proceeds of their sales to the museum fund. Souvenirs will be sold at the museum for the same purpose.

Kelly returned in 1956 to Houston, Mo., for the first time in 37 years for the dedication of a park in his name.

"Do you realize," she shouted, "that if I happened to be running around the house stark naked the neighbors could look in the window and see me? Do you?"

"Relax," said the husband calmly. "If the neighbors could see you stark naked, they'd buy the drapes."

Film Censorship All But Wiped out by Court Rulings

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Movie men tell the story of how films were censored in Kansas in the old days.

The State Board of Review was in Kansas City, Kan., near film distributors, and the only space to be found for showings was in the Fire Department headquarters.

Firemen and off-duty police were invited to watch. When their whoops and catcalls reached a certain pitch, board members decided that the scene should be censored.

Censoring was just as haphazard in other areas. Memphis, which had the strictest censorship of any American city, once banned "The Southerner" because it painted an uncomplimentary picture of the South. Chicago deleted the birth of a buffalo from Walt Disney's "The Vanishing Prairie."

All that has changed. An Associated Press survey discloses that local and state censorship of movies has all but vanished.

Almost from the beginning of the movie medium, censors were in evidence. The first important story film was "The Great Train Robbery." A flood of films about crime followed, moving a Chicago judge to comment: "Those nickelodeons indirectly or directly caused more juvenile crimes coming into this court than all other causes combined."

Depictions of crime, sex and dope stirred moralists to seek controls over movies. By the mid-1920s, scores of cities and eight states— Pennsylvania, New York, Illinois, Virginia, Kansas, Maryland, Massachusetts, Ohio— had film censorship boards. A major reason film makers formed a producers association was to prevent the proliferation of censor boards.

"You have eight state censor boards now; some day you may have 48," warned film czar Will Hays. To help forestall such, he instituted the industry's self-censorship code.

Hays and his successor, Eric Johnston, strove to keep local censorship at a minimum. Then the U.S. Supreme Court came to the rescue.

New York State censors had banned "The Miracle" because it was "sacriligious." In 1952, the Supreme Court unanimously overturned the ban and issued a sweeping decree that motion pictures are "included within the free speech and free press guaranty of the First and Fourteenth amendments."

In case after case, the courts have since nullified censorship boards. This month a federal court struck down the board in Fort Worth, Tex. Here is a survey of other cities and states, as reported by Associated Press bureaus:

MILWAUKEE — Mayor-appointed Motion Picture Commission screens films and recommends cuts. The commission has no enforcement powers but exhibitors tend to comply.

NEW ORLEANS — No official censorship.

BOSTON — The haven of censorship retains a censor in the chief of licensing division. Action isn't taken until a complaint is received. Review board includes members of the police vice squad, member of the City Law Department and sometimes the licensing chief. Exhibitors of offending films often withdraw them voluntarily; if not, court action is sought.

ATLANTA — No official censorship.

MEMPHIS — There has been no censorship since the city's long-time censor board was abolished by the courts.

DALLAS — A classification board labels films as "adult" or "general public." Adult films must be so advertised in newspapers and in front of the theater.

OKLAHOMA — The state has no official board of censors. The current legislature passed an obscenity law which could be applied to films, although it was aimed at the stag-reel type.

PORTLAND, Ore. — No censorship since the city's film review board was declared unconstitutional in "The Lovers" case. District attorney has twice taken cases to grand jury under state obscenity law.

MARYLAND — The only state censorship board left in the country is headed by Egbert Quinn, 82. All films must get licenses from a three-man board, which must act in 15 days or the applicant can be shown in the state.

KANSAS — The State Board of Review, which had oparated since 1917, was ruled unconstitutional by the Supreme Court last year.

DETROIT — The Police Department reviews films and recommends cuts through the obscenity detail of the Liquor License Bureau. "We never ban a film outright," says an officer. Sometimes the tag "recommended for adult patronage only" is suggested.

WASHINGTON, D.C. — No censorship.

CHICAGO — Five mayor-appointed civilians form a film review board, which was upheld by the Supreme Court in 1961. The board may restrict patronage to 18 or older, recommend cuts or reject a film entirely. If rejected, the film can be appealed to a board consisting of civilians from arts, sciences, etc. Last recourse is to the courts.

NEW YORK — No state or local censorship. The state's censor board went out of business in 1965 after court decisions riddled the censorship law.

SEATTLE — A review board has power to recommend cuts and to label films in age classifications. However, the ordinances empowering the board have been attacked in the courts, and a Supreme Court decision is awaited.

CHEYENNE — No censorship.

While local and state censorship has virtually been quelled in the United States, occasional outcry for control of film content remains. A longtime advocate of censorship has been Justice Michael A. Musmanno of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court.

He argues: "The time has come for Congress and the state legislatures to take up this subject seriously. It used to be that one could go into almost any motion picture theater and see something clean, wholesome and entertaining. Now no family-loving man dares to take his children into a cinema house without first sending out a scout to find out if the picture therein is fit for the eyes of youth.

"We are willing to have water filtured, butter examined, meat inspected, drugs checked. Why should we not have supervision over what is being poured into the minds of young people?

"The poison which enters their minds and souls in some of the motion picture theaters today can do, and is doing, more harm than narcotics and marijuana cigarettes."

THIS I KNOW

There are so many things
I may not understand--
The words a wild wind sings,
The changing sea and land.

How in some tiny sphere
A moment, short for me,
To unknown lives appear
A full eternity.

How can I judge what's a big?
How can I say what's small?
What lives at end of twig?
This is so, and this I know,
God planned and loves them all.

FREUDIAN COINCIDENCE

When I was a young man, our country church held very spirited revival meetings in the summer months. The sermons were often long, loud and repetitious.

One sultry evening in July the visiting revivalist had been preaching a fiery sermon against drinking. "Liquor is the downfall of man," he repeated several times, "and it should all be poured in the rivers."

After the sermon, he asked someone to direct a song. On this evening I had been dozing and, naturally, he called on me. The first thing that popped in my mind was to sing a familiar song. I called out the number of the page of a song and turned to it.

Wheat Crop Insurance Available

WASHINGTON -- All - risk wheat crop insurance will be available for the first time in the 1968 crop year to farmers in Butler, Cape Girardeau and Scott Counties, Missouri Senators Stuart Symington (D-Mo) and Edward V. Long (D-Mo) and Cong. Paul C. Jones (D-10th District) announced today.

Crop insurance is now available to farmers in 62 Missouri counties. In addition, $7.4 million in Missouri crop production expenses on more than 200,000 acres was protected by federal crop insurance in 1966. An estimated $460,000 was paid to Missouri farmers for some 1,100 losses during the 1966 crop year.

In telling of the new crop insurance Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman stated: "When crop damage from weather, insects, disease or other causes hits a rural area, it hurts everyone for miles around -- merchants, equipment dealers, bankers --- every bsuiness and profession feels the loss. When crop loss strikes, federal crop insurance payments to individual farmers bolster the economy of the whole community.

"Equally important," Secretary Freeman added, "during the good crop years, thousands of farmers can benefit from their Crop Insurance protection by using their policies as collateral for loans."

POWER ROOM CAN FIT INTO 4 X 5 SPACE

If your budget won't permit you to build on a much-needed bathroom, see if you can't find some waste space in an old closet, pantry, under a stairwell or at the end of a hall for a compact powder room that will ease the strain on existing bathroom facilities.

You can install a powder room in a space as little as 4 x 5 feet, according to the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau. Lavatories and water closets that can be installed in corners are available for rooms with unusual shapes.

Improvements Scheduled for Highway 25

MALDEN - Representatives of the Highway 25 Association have been informed that a resurfacing and improvement program in the five-year plan by the State Highway Commission.

The information was released at a hearing Thursday before the SHC in Jefferson City attended by Highway 25 Association representatives from Bernie, Malden, Clarkton and Kennett. In addition State Senator Nelson B. Tinnin of Hornersville, Senator Pat Patterson of Caruthersville, Rep. R. B. King of Malden, Rep. Vic Downing of Bragg City and Rep. James Spain of Bloomfield appeared at the hearing seeking improvements for the much traveled highway.

Senator Tinnin told the Highway Commission of the poor condition of Route 25, of the heavy traffic that uses it and of its vital importance to the area.

Allen Black, acting chairman of the Highway 25 Association, pointed out the industrial growth in Dexter, Bernie, Malden and Kennett and of the importance highway improvements means to the area. He cited the improvements to U.S. 60, Interstate 55 and Route 84 which virtually encircle the area and said that the citizens along Highway 25 are becoming alarmed that nothing is being done in the immediate area.

Jack Stapleton, chariman of the SHC, asked if the accident rate was still high and he was assured that it was.

Also, it was pointed out that Route 25 makes 90-degree turns in downtown Bernie and Malden and that a curve in Clarkton is virtually under water every time that it rains.

Other speaking on behalf of improvements for Route 25 were Senator Pat Patterson, Rep. R. B. King, Rep. James Spain, Rep. Vic Downing, R. B. Woods of Bernie, John Howell of Malden, and J. E. Ditto of Kennett.

Others attending the meeting were J. M. Allen of Bernie, S. H. James and Ike Brannon of Clarkton, and Randel Hardin of Kennett.

The Commission appeared much more receptive to improvements for Highway 25 than they did one year ago. They asked many questions and indicated they would give the project consideration.

PLANNED IMPROVEMENTS

The improvements for Highway 25 as now scheduled are:

1967 - 2.5 miles through Bernie.

1969 - 8.2 miles in the Cardwell area.

1972 - 7.8 miles Dexter to Bernie, widen and resurface.

1972 - 1.5 miles through Townley.

1972 - 3.4 miles through Malden.

1972 - 1.5 miles Stoddard County line to Malden.

Present plans do not include anything from McGuire south to White Oak. Members of Highway 25 Association will seek to have this strip put on future programs as soon as possible.

Congo Harbors Refugees

KINSHASA, The Congo (AP) —Spread untidily across two blocks in the heart of the Congolese capital is a camp for Angolan refugees.

Men, women and children live there among their goats and chickens in conditions that are squalid even by African standards. The red-white-yellow flag of the Angolan revolution floats overhead.

The camp is officially described as a transit center. A pink stucco building in the middle is the headquarters of the "Revolutionary Government of Angola in Exile"— GRAE. Its president, Roberto Holden, hopes one day to rule the immense Portuguese colony to the south.

He presides over "cabinet meetings" and councils of war, and receives from his Congolese hosts the honors and privileges of a head of state. He operates several military training camps near the Angolan border and has jurisdiction over the 400,000 Angolans said to have fled from the guerrilla war to seek safety in the Congo.

Along the hundreds of miles of the Angolan border, new villages have sprung up where the Angolan refugees, with United Nations help, are clearing the bush and settling down for good on Congo territory. They speak the same Kikongo dialect as the local population and blend easily into their new homeland.

South of the border, many villages in Angola's mountainous interior have been abandoned by inhabitants. Western intelligence reports say nationalist activity against the Portuguese is increasing, but the rebels are too badly organized and too divided to have much hope of driving the Portuguese out of Angola soon.

The Congo supplies Holden arms it doesn't need for its own troops. Some of the rebels' small arms date to World War I. In the training camps, recruits use sticks to learn rifle drill.

From the training camps safely located on Congolese territory, the guerrillas strike deep into Angola to harass the Portuguese with ambushes and booby traps.

Holden claimed in an interview that the entire northern corner of Angola was under control of his troops. But anyone driving along the border can see that the Portuguese are still firmly installed.

The border has been theoretically closed since the Congo broke relations with Portugal last year. But twice a week, on Wednesdays and Saturdays, civilian cars are permitted to cross. Congo residents drive into Angola to stock up on potatoes, sugar, butter and rice, virtually unobtainable on the open market in the Congo.

The railroad running through Angola from Katanga to Lobito still carries most of Katanga's copper exports which provide 70 per cent of the Congo's foreign exchange earnings.

Angolan guerrilla bands recently cut the railroad line and temporarily halted Katanga's copper exports. The Congolese government condemned Holden for this action and demanded assurances that, no matter what else the rebels did against the Portuguese, the Lobito railroad would not be interfered with.

Holden said the Portuguese themselves cut the line, to embarrass him with the Congolese.

American officials, who watch developments in Angola carefully but do not intervene in any way, believe the railroad was cut by men of the Communist-inspired Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola — MPLA — the GRAE's deadly rival. MPLA, headed by Dr. Agostino Neto, is based in Brazzaville, on the opposite bank of the Congo River from Kinshasa.

Cut off by the river from direct access to Angola, the MPLA has concentrated some of its action on the Portuguese enclave of Cabinda, but has met with little enthusiasm from the population. It receives money and weapons from Red China and the Soviet bloc, but suffers from a shortage of Angolan recruits for its guerrilla forces.

Hometown Goes All out For Clown

SEDAN, Kan. (AP) - Circus clown Emmett Kelly, whose lovable, sad-faced, blundering alter ego, Weary Willie the tramp, is more familiarly known to audiences than Kelly himself, won't be on hand for his homecoming celebration Friday.

Kelly, born in Sedan and reared to boyhood in Houston, Mo., is being victimized by Willie's immense popularity.

He notified sponsors of the event Tuesday that performing commitments are keeping him too busy to come here until September.

"That kind of took the steam out of things," said Dr. M. L. Rees, one of the sponsors, "but we're going right along with plans anyway. Our entertainment is all scheduled and the museum is ready for opening."

The museum is a collection of replicas and memorabilia of Kelly's eventful life from small-town boy to manhood and fame as a bigtop performer.

Many of the mementos were supplied by Kelly himself, others by friends and admirers," and he told me he has some more that he'll bring around in September," Dr. Rees said.

"We have a parade set for 1 p.m. Friday, and the ribbon-cutting at the museum will be about 1:30 p.m.," Rees added. "We decided the best thing we can do is open the museum Friday, and then have the formal opening in September when Emmett will be available."

The museum is housed in a downtown Sedan building. A piece of the original pine flooring taken from the home, no longer standing, where Kelly was born 69 years ago will be fashioned into two keys to the city. One will be presented to Kelly, the other will remain in the museum.

Streets and businesses in Sedan, a southeast Kansas community of 1,800, are being decorated in a circus motif, and residents have been asked to wear clown costumes for the day.

Concessions will operate circus-style on Sedan streets and donate proceeds of their sales to the museum fund. Souvenirs will be sold at the museum for the same purpose.

Kelly returned in 1956 to Houston, Mo., for the first time in 37 years for the dedication of a park in his name.

"Do you realize," she shouted, "that if I happened to be running around the house stark naked the neighbors could look in the window and see me? Do you?"

Film Censorship All But Wiped out by Court Rulings

By BOB THOMAS

The State Board of Review was in Kansas City, Kan., near film distributors, and the only space to be found for showings was in the Fire Department headquarters.

Firemen and off-duty police were invited to watch. When their whoops and catcalls reached a certain pitch, board members decided that the scene should be censored.

Censoring was just as haphazard in other areas. Memphis, which had the strictest censorship of any American city, once banned "The Southerner" because it painted an uncomplimentary picture of the South. Chicago deleted the birth of a buffalo from Walt Disney's "The Vanishing Prairie."

All that has changed. An Associated Press survey discloses that local and state censorship of movies has all but vanished.

Almost from the beginning of the movie medium, censors were in evidence. The first important story film was "The Great Train Robbery." A flood of films about crime followed, moving a Chicago judge to comment: "Those nickelodeons indirectly or directly caused more juvenile crimes coming into this court than all other causes combined."

Depictions of crime, sex and dope stirred moralists to seek controls over movies. By the mid-1920s, scores of cities and eight states— Pennsylvania, New York, Illinois, Virginia, Kansas, Maryland, Massachusetts, Ohio— had film censorship boards. A major reason film makers formed a producers association was to prevent the proliferation of censor boards.

"You have eight state censor boards now; some day you may have 48," warned film czar Will Hays. To help forestall such, he instituted the industry's self-censorship code.

Hays and his successor, Eric Johnston, strove to keep local censorship at a minimum. Then the U.S. Supreme Court came to the rescue.

New York State censors had banned "The Miracle" because it was "sacriligious." In 1952, the Supreme Court unanimously overturned the ban and issued a sweeping decree that motion pictures are "included within the free speech and free press guaranty of the First and Fourteenth amendments."

In case after case, the courts have since nullified censorship boards. This month a federal court struck down the board in Fort Worth, Tex. Here is a survey of other cities and states, as reported by Associated Press bureaus:

MILWAUKEE — Mayor-appointed Motion Picture Commission screens films and recommends cuts. The commission has no enforcement powers but exhibitors tend to comply.

NEW ORLEANS — No official censorship.

BOSTON — The haven of censorship retains a censor in the chief of licensing division. Action isn't taken until a complaint is received. Review board includes members of the police vice squad, member of the City Law Department and sometimes the licensing chief. Exhibitors of offending films often withdraw them voluntarily; if not, court action is sought.

ATLANTA — No official censorship.

MEMPHIS — There has been no censorship since the city's long-time censor board was abolished by the courts.

DALLAS — A classification board labels films as "adult" or "general public." Adult films must be so advertised in newspapers and in front of the theater.

OKLAHOMA — The state has no official board of censors. The current legislature passed an obscenity law which could be applied to films, although it was aimed at the stag-reel type.

PORTLAND, Ore. — No censorship since the city's film review board was declared unconstitutional in "The Lovers" case. District attorney has twice taken cases to grand jury under state obscenity law.

MARYLAND — The only state censorship board left in the country is headed by Egbert Quinn, 82. All films must get licenses from a three-man board, which must act in 15 days or the applicant can be shown in the state.

KANSAS — The State Board of Review, which had oparated since 1917, was ruled unconstitutional by the Supreme Court last year.

DETROIT — The Police Department reviews films and recommends cuts through the obscenity detail of the Liquor License Bureau. "We never ban a film outright," says an officer. Sometimes the tag "recommended for adult patronage only" is suggested.

WASHINGTON, D.C. — No censorship.

CHICAGO — Five mayor-appointed civilians form a film review board, which was upheld by the Supreme Court in 1961. The board may restrict patronage to 18 or older, recommend cuts or reject a film entirely. If rejected, the film can be appealed to a board consisting of civilians from arts, sciences, etc. Last recourse is to the courts.

NEW YORK — No state or local censorship. The state's censor board went out of business in 1965 after court decisions riddled the censorship law.

SEATTLE — A review board has power to recommend cuts and to label films in age classifications. However, the ordinances empowering the board have been attacked in the courts, and a Supreme Court decision is awaited.

CHEYENNE — No censorship.

While local and state censorship has virtually been quelled in the United States, occasional outcry for control of film content remains. A longtime advocate of censorship has been Justice Michael A. Musmanno of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court.

He argues: "The time has come for Congress and the state legislatures to take up this subject seriously. It used to be that one could go into almost any motion picture theater and see something clean, wholesome and entertaining. Now no family-loving man dares to take his children into a cinema house without first sending out a scout to find out if the picture therein is fit for the eyes of youth.

"We are willing to have water filtured, butter examined, meat inspected, drugs checked. Why should we not have supervision over what is being poured into the minds of young people?

"The poison which enters their minds and souls in some of the motion picture theaters today can do, and is doing, more harm than narcotics and marijuana cigarettes."

THIS I KNOW

There are so many things
I may not understand--
The words a wild wind sings,
The changing sea and land.

How in some tiny sphere
A moment, short for me,
To unknown lives appear
A full eternity.

How can I judge what's a big?
How can I say what's small?
What lives at end of twig?
This is so, and this I know,
God planned and loves them all.

FREUDIAN COINCIDENCE

When I was a young man, our country church held very spirited revival meetings in the summer months. The sermons were often long, loud and repetitious.

One sultry evening in July the visiting revivalist had been preaching a fiery sermon against drinking. "Liquor is the downfall of man," he repeated several times, "and it should all be poured in the rivers."

After the sermon, he asked someone to direct a song. On this evening I had been dozing and, naturally, he called on me. The first thing that popped in my mind was to sing a familiar song. I called out the number of the page of a song and turned to it.

Hearnes Lists Home And Farm Property

By JACK FLACH
Globe-Democrat Political Editor

JEFFERSON CITY, MO. --- Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, who helped push through the state conflict of interest law two years ago, Wednesday filed his first disclosure report listing his holdings.

The statement, filed in the Senate and House, was brief. It listed only his new home and contents at Charleston and one-half interest in the "Hearnes Brothers Farm Inc. property in Mississippi County," as substantial holdings.

Hearnes told The Globe - Democrat he doubted if there would be any bills this session he would act on that would conflict with his substantial holdings but that he filed to be on the safe side.

Although figures are not listed in his statement, his newly-built fashionable house in his home town of Charleston in southeast Missouri is in the $65,000 class. The Governor said he has a $20,000 mortgage on the home.

The only other thing he owns of "substantial interest" under the law is a partnership in some 200 acres of valuable land in the Missouri Bootheel, he said. There is also about a $20,000 mortage on the property.

He told The Globe - Democrat he disposed of his shares in the Citizens Bank of Charleston when he took office in 1965 to avoid any conflict with his duties as Governor. He also resigned from the board of directors.

The conflict of interest legislation requires the governor, lieutenant governor and legislators to file disclosure statements of holdings of substantial interest if there is a conflict between these holdings and their state jobs.

To date, all of the senate members and all but 45 of the 163 house members have filed such disclosure statements.

Lt. Gov. Thomas F. Eagleton was one of the first to file at the start of the session in January. As president pro tem of the Senate, he rules on many bills and also refers bills to committees.

Eagleton's holdings consist of stock in Radio Corp. of America, General Tire and Rubber Corp., Teledyne Inc., Automatic Sprinkler Corp., Buckbee Mears Co., Denver Chemical Corp., Litton Industries, Missouri Pipe Fittings Co., and Smith - Scharff Paper Co.

He also listed his home at 268 Woodbourne, Dr., St. Louis, his practive of civil law at 818 Olive St., and fees for legal service by the law firm of Eagleton and Eagleton received from Anheuser - Busch Inc. and its subsidaries.

A FEW INTERESTING FACTS

...In 1965 the United States exported to South Africa $438 million worth of goods, and imported only $225 million worth from that country, showing a favorable trade balance to our country of $213 million.

...With only six percent of Africa's population, the Union of South Africa turned out about 40 percent of the industrial production of the continent.

...South Africa produced 80 percent of Africa's steel, 90 percent of its gold, and 60 percent of its electricity.

...During the last five years the wages of native South Africans rose nearly 40 percent. Their skills are improving, their standards of living rising, their fields of employment and occupation widening.

...Over 12,000 black people own their own businesses, some bank as much as $3,000 a day. Three are reputed to be millionaires.

...No youth who can pass the matriculation examination need miss a university education if he wants it - regardless of his race or color.

...There are more than 2,800 native South Africans who are university graduates.

...In the Union of South Africa, 83 percent of the black children are in school. This is much higher than in any other African country.

...Virtually every black child is within walking distance of a primary school ....Nowhere in independent Africa do people, regardless of race or color, have as high a standard of living, education and health services, as in South Africa . . . About one million foreign black Africans work in South Africa. With great difficulty other millions are prevented from crossing the borders in search of the benefits to be found from living and working in South Africa. We Americans should keep in mind these facts about the Union of South Africa as we evaluate our nation's policies toward that country.

Hearnes Lists Home And Farm Property

By JACK FLACH
Globe-Democrat Political Editor

JEFFERSON CITY, MO. --- Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, who helped push through the state conflict of interest law two years ago, Wednesday filed his first disclosure report listing his holdings.

The statement, filed in the Senate and House, was brief. It listed only his new home and contents at Charleston and one-half interest in the "Hearnes Brothers Farm Inc. property in Mississippi County," as substantial holdings.

Hearnes told The Globe - Democrat he doubted if there would be any bills this session he would act on that would conflict with his substantial holdings but that he filed to be on the safe side.

Although figures are not listed in his statement, his newly-built fashionable house in his home town of Charleston in southeast Missouri is in the $65,000 class. The Governor said he has a $20,000 mortgage on the home.

The only other thing he owns of "substantial interest" under the law is a partnership in some 200 acres of valuable land in the Missouri Bootheel, he said. There is also about a $20,000 mortage on the property.

He told The Globe - Democrat he disposed of his shares in the Citizens Bank of Charleston when he took office in 1965 to avoid any conflict with his duties as Governor. He also resigned from the board of directors.

The conflict of interest legislation requires the governor, lieutenant governor and legislators to file disclosure statements of holdings of substantial interest if there is a conflict between these holdings and their state jobs.

To date, all of the senate members and all but 45 of the 163 house members have filed such disclosure statements.

Lt. Gov. Thomas F. Eagleton was one of the first to file at the start of the session in January. As president pro tem of the Senate, he rules on many bills and also refers bills to committees.

Eagleton's holdings consist of stock in Radio Corp. of America, General Tire and Rubber Corp., Teledyne Inc., Automatic Sprinkler Corp., Buckbee Mears Co., Denver Chemical Corp., Litton Industries, Missouri Pipe Fittings Co., and Smith - Scharff Paper Co.

He also listed his home at 268 Woodbourne, Dr., St. Louis, his practive of civil law at 818 Olive St., and fees for legal service by the law firm of Eagleton and Eagleton received from Anheuser - Busch Inc. and its subsidaries.

A FEW INTERESTING FACTS

...In 1965 the United States exported to South Africa $438 million worth of goods, and imported only $225 million worth from that country, showing a favorable trade balance to our country of $213 million.

...With only six percent of Africa's population, the Union of South Africa turned out about 40 percent of the industrial production of the continent.

...South Africa produced 80 percent of Africa's steel, 90 percent of its gold, and 60 percent of its electricity.

...During the last five years the wages of native South Africans rose nearly 40 percent. Their skills are improving, their standards of living rising, their fields of employment and occupation widening.

...Over 12,000 black people own their own businesses, some bank as much as $3,000 a day. Three are reputed to be millionaires.

...No youth who can pass the matriculation examination need miss a university education if he wants it - regardless of his race or color.

...There are more than 2,800 native South Africans who are university graduates.

...In the Union of South Africa, 83 percent of the black children are in school. This is much higher than in any other African country.

...Virtually every black child is within walking distance of a primary school ....Nowhere in independent Africa do people, regardless of race or color, have as high a standard of living, education and health services, as in South Africa . . . About one million foreign black Africans work in South Africa. With great difficulty other millions are prevented from crossing the borders in search of the benefits to be found from living and working in South Africa. We Americans should keep in mind these facts about the Union of South Africa as we evaluate our nation's policies toward that country.

Interest Rates Defy Downward Pressure

NEW YORK (AP) — Intricate plans of the administration and the Federal Reserve Board to press down interest rates from their record highs of last summer are meeting with some success, lots of frustration and even outright failure.

This mixed picture is therefore causing concern among the nation's public and private money managers who remember with horror how rates got completely out of hand last year and rose to 40-year highs. These rates still are not in check.

This week some of last summer's highs were topped. Amazing as it may sound, long-term rates have been going opposite to hopes, efforts and forecasts. They are rising.

The simplest explanation is that these forecasts and efforts were based on the assumption that human beings would act and react in predictable ways. They haven't. Borrowing habits changed after last year's experience.

This failure of some federal money policies is illustrated by the whopping 6.10 per cent that a New Jersey utility with a very high credit rating, Public Service Electric & Gas Co., had to pay to borrow $75 million.

This rate is slightly higher than another utility paid at the peak of last year's money crisis. But since then the Federal Reserve has pumped plenty of funds into the market. Why should it be so expensive to borrow?

The answer lies in a change of viewpoint by many businessmen. Having been caught short last year, they are vowing it won't happen again. They are hoarding credit. They are anticipating distant needs. They are borrowing for long terms.

With some of these funds so acquired, the borrowers are doing something just as unusual. They are paying off their low-cost, short-term debts. They are, therefore, choosing a more expensive type of borrowing for the security of knowing they'll have the funds when they need them.

The short-term market, therefore, is in better shape. Money is plentiful, and rates are low. Savings banks have, in fact, been reinvesting much of their new funds in corporate bonds—in the long—term market.

Frustrations appear again, however, in the home mortgage market. Rates have been dropping somewhat and are under 6.40 per cent on a national average. But some analysts feel they might not go much lower for a while.

The housing market has been of great concern to the money men. Throughout this year the administration and the Federal Reserve have shown they are acutely aware that the high cost of mortgage money last year was the chief cause of a depression in the housing industry. And so they pumped in money to bring down rates.

Now that they have met with some success, they find their efforts have been offset to a degree by higher prices for houses. The result: forecasts of a housing boom remain forecasts. The boom has not begun.

Selecting Those Spuds

Size is one of the most important points to remember when selecting potatoes. It can make a difference in how long the potato takes to cook, how best to cook it, and how much it takes to make one serving.

The smaller the potato, the shorter the cooking time, of course. But when cooking spuds whole, all should be about the same size, so they will be done at the same time.

All sizes have certain favored uses. Large potatoes usually are preferred for baking, small ones for boiling whole. In both cases, with the skins left on, potatoes retain more of their good food value.

Medium-sized spuds are liked for all 'round use. One of these is generally considered one serving, which makes meal planning easier. And they are easy to handle when preparing.

The size of spuds makes a difference in how much you have to serve after cooking. U.S. Department of Agriculture home economists say a pound (or about 3 medium-sized potatoes will yield about 3 servings of boiled, baked, roasted, or steamed whole potatoes. If mashed, creamed, or hash-borwned, a pound of potatoes will give 3 to 4 servings. Or the same amount of raw spuds will make 4 servings of French fries.

This year's potato crop is particularly plentiful, according to USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service. So, shoppers have plenty of spuds to select from.

POTATO PLATTERS:

SPLIT PEA CHOWDER

Chunks of salt pork and diced potatoes in creamy split pea soup. Flavor with just a bit of garlic. Garnish with cooked frozen green peas.

POTATOES
ON THE HALF SHELL

Scoop out baked potatoes, being careful not to damage shell. Mash potatoes with butter, hot milk, and peanut butter. Season to taste. Fold in stiffly-beaten egg whites. Refill shells. Sprinkle with grated cheese, and bake in hot oven until golden brown.

PORK AND 'TATER SCALLOP

Uncooked sliced potatoes in onion-flavored white sauce. Top with inch-thick pork chops. Bake in covered casserole for about 45 minutes. Remove cover and continue baking until chops brown. Serve in casserole with sliced tomato garnish.

HOT POTATO SALAD

Create a mayonnaise white sauce. Combine with diced cooked potatoes, celery, green pepper, onions, and pimento. Place in casserole. Bake in moderate oven until thoroughly heated.

CREAMED POTATOES

TIRED OF WATER SHORTAGES? HOW ABOUT YOUR WELL?

"Drought continues. No relief in sight."

"Lawn sprinkling and car washing banned during water shortage. Violators will be fined."

"Water pollution endangers public health. Solution imperative, experts warn."

Do these headlines sound familiar? We see them regularly. Does this mean that America, the land of plenty, is running out of water? No, the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau says. There's plenty, but too often it's "mismanaged." Now, steps are being taken to reclaim polluted surface waters and enact laws to prevent further pollution.

More than 97 percent of the world's fresh water supply is underground, according to the Ground Water Resources Institute. More and more municipalities will turn to ground water Resources Institute. More water to augment their dwindling supplies in 1967. But that isn't all. Individual homeowners are having wells drilled to supplement the water they get from municipal systems and make them independent of the latter should water shortage hit.

At least 50,000 supplemental wells will be drilled in 1967. This is in addition to the nearly half-million individual water systems that will be installed for families that depend 100 percent on well water. In all, there are about 10 million such systems in the U.S. serving about one-fourth of the population. The complete home water system consists of the well, an electric pump, controls and a water tank.

For more information on having your own well, write to the Ground Water Resources Institute, 205 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. 60606. Send 15 cents in coin and ask for "How Water Wells Help You Solve Your Water Problems - Easily and Economically!"

PLAN NEW BATHROOM WITH CARE

If your summer remodeling plans call for updating an old bathroom or adding a new one, visit a plumbing contractor's showroom before you begin. Ask him to show you the latest products and to explain the differences in product quality to you. Better quality fixtures are stain and acid-resistant, retain their luster longer, are more efficient.

You can get ideas for arranging fixtures from a booklet titled "Modern Bathroom Plans" that includes 34 different layouts. It's available for 25 cents from the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau, 35 E. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. 60601.

WATER IN THE BEDROOM IS MAKING STRONG COMEBACK

Great grandmother had water in her bedroom and performed her morning toilet with the aid of a china bowl and pitcher. Then came the bathroom, and water moved out of the bedroom.

Now it's making a strong comeback, the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau points out, as bedroom vanity lavatories are growing increasingly popular, especially with mothers and their teenage daughters.

Manufacturers are making vanity cabinets to fit in with any bedroom decor. Countertops come in stain-resistant simulated wood or marble or in dozens of other finishes. The bowls themselves can be virtually any color or decorated with flower, fruit or other designs. Faucets are veritable jewels - shiny chrome, acrylic that sparkles like cut-crystal, even gold-plated. Shapes vary from high-style modern to dolphins, swans, merrimaids or what you will.

It's predicted that in a few years, the bedroom vanity lavatory will grow more and more elaborate, enhanced by such accessories as specially framed mirrors and lights. It will be the focal point of the bedroom, with the rest of the room planned around it.

HOOVER DAM

Stimulated into solving large-scale material and distribution problems by the nation's outstanding production record during World War I, American minds in the 1920s turned to finishing the job to be done at home. So that the Southwest region could develop economically through flood and silt control, irrigation, and power generation (and could thus support a larger population). President Hoover in 1928 authorized the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation to construct a giant dam in narrow Boulder Canyon separating Nevada and Arizona -- for the purpose of taming for the first time since the dawn of history the surging waters of the often unpredictable Colorado River. It took eight years to complete the building of the record-breaking 726-ft.-high dam, which is almost as high as the Woolworth Building. The structure was built with 3,245,612 cubic yards of concrete in the form of a graceful curve so that it could resist the water pressure behind it by its action as an arch, with the steep side walls of the gorge serving as abutments to carry the unprecedented thrust.

Interest Rates Defy Downward Pressure

NEW YORK (AP) — Intricate plans of the administration and the Federal Reserve Board to press down interest rates from their record highs of last summer are meeting with some success, lots of frustration and even outright failure.

This mixed picture is therefore causing concern among the nation's public and private money managers who remember with horror how rates got completely out of hand last year and rose to 40-year highs. These rates still are not in check.

This week some of last summer's highs were topped. Amazing as it may sound, long-term rates have been going opposite to hopes, efforts and forecasts. They are rising.

The simplest explanation is that these forecasts and efforts were based on the assumption that human beings would act and react in predictable ways. They haven't. Borrowing habits changed after last year's experience.

This failure of some federal money policies is illustrated by the whopping 6.10 per cent that a New Jersey utility with a very high credit rating, Public Service Electric & Gas Co., had to pay to borrow $75 million.

This rate is slightly higher than another utility paid at the peak of last year's money crisis. But since then the Federal Reserve has pumped plenty of funds into the market. Why should it be so expensive to borrow?

The answer lies in a change of viewpoint by many businessmen. Having been caught short last year, they are vowing it won't happen again. They are hoarding credit. They are anticipating distant needs. They are borrowing for long terms.

With some of these funds so acquired, the borrowers are doing something just as unusual. They are paying off their low-cost, short-term debts. They are, therefore, choosing a more expensive type of borrowing for the security of knowing they'll have the funds when they need them.

The short-term market, therefore, is in better shape. Money is plentiful, and rates are low. Savings banks have, in fact, been reinvesting much of their new funds in corporate bonds—in the long—term market.

Frustrations appear again, however, in the home mortgage market. Rates have been dropping somewhat and are under 6.40 per cent on a national average. But some analysts feel they might not go much lower for a while.

The housing market has been of great concern to the money men. Throughout this year the administration and the Federal Reserve have shown they are acutely aware that the high cost of mortgage money last year was the chief cause of a depression in the housing industry. And so they pumped in money to bring down rates.

Now that they have met with some success, they find their efforts have been offset to a degree by higher prices for houses. The result: forecasts of a housing boom remain forecasts. The boom has not begun.

Selecting Those Spuds

Size is one of the most important points to remember when selecting potatoes. It can make a difference in how long the potato takes to cook, how best to cook it, and how much it takes to make one serving.

The smaller the potato, the shorter the cooking time, of course. But when cooking spuds whole, all should be about the same size, so they will be done at the same time.

All sizes have certain favored uses. Large potatoes usually are preferred for baking, small ones for boiling whole. In both cases, with the skins left on, potatoes retain more of their good food value.

Medium-sized spuds are liked for all 'round use. One of these is generally considered one serving, which makes meal planning easier. And they are easy to handle when preparing.

The size of spuds makes a difference in how much you have to serve after cooking. U.S. Department of Agriculture home economists say a pound (or about 3 medium-sized potatoes will yield about 3 servings of boiled, baked, roasted, or steamed whole potatoes. If mashed, creamed, or hash-borwned, a pound of potatoes will give 3 to 4 servings. Or the same amount of raw spuds will make 4 servings of French fries.

This year's potato crop is particularly plentiful, according to USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service. So, shoppers have plenty of spuds to select from.

POTATO PLATTERS:

SPLIT PEA CHOWDER

Chunks of salt pork and diced potatoes in creamy split pea soup. Flavor with just a bit of garlic. Garnish with cooked frozen green peas.

POTATOES
ON THE HALF SHELL

Scoop out baked potatoes, being careful not to damage shell. Mash potatoes with butter, hot milk, and peanut butter. Season to taste. Fold in stiffly-beaten egg whites. Refill shells. Sprinkle with grated cheese, and bake in hot oven until golden brown.

PORK AND 'TATER SCALLOP

Uncooked sliced potatoes in onion-flavored white sauce. Top with inch-thick pork chops. Bake in covered casserole for about 45 minutes. Remove cover and continue baking until chops brown. Serve in casserole with sliced tomato garnish.

HOT POTATO SALAD

Create a mayonnaise white sauce. Combine with diced cooked potatoes, celery, green pepper, onions, and pimento. Place in casserole. Bake in moderate oven until thoroughly heated.

CREAMED POTATOES

Diced, sliced, or whole tiny potatoes, cooked. Combine with medium-thick white sauce. Add garlic bud. Heat. Remove garlic before serving.

LUCKY DOGS

TIRED OF WATER SHORTAGES? HOW ABOUT YOUR WELL?

"Drought continues. No relief in sight."

"Lawn sprinkling and car washing banned during water shortage. Violators will be fined."

"Water pollution endangers public health. Solution imperative, experts warn."

Do these headlines sound familiar? We see them regularly. Does this mean that America, the land of plenty, is running out of water? No, the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau says. There's plenty, but too often it's "mismanaged." Now, steps are being taken to reclaim polluted surface waters and enact laws to prevent further pollution.

More than 97 percent of the world's fresh water supply is underground, according to the Ground Water Resources Institute. More and more municipalities will turn to ground water Resources Institute. More water to augment their dwindling supplies in 1967. But that isn't all. Individual homeowners are having wells drilled to supplement the water they get from municipal systems and make them independent of the latter should water shortage hit.

At least 50,000 supplemental wells will be drilled in 1967. This is in addition to the nearly half-million individual water systems that will be installed for families that depend 100 percent on well water. In all, there are about 10 million such systems in the U.S. serving about one-fourth of the population. The complete home water system consists of the well, an electric pump, controls and a water tank.

For more information on having your own well, write to the Ground Water Resources Institute, 205 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. 60606. Send 15 cents in coin and ask for "How Water Wells Help You Solve Your Water Problems - Easily and Economically!"

PLAN NEW BATHROOM WITH CARE

If your summer remodeling plans call for updating an old bathroom or adding a new one, visit a plumbing contractor's showroom before you begin. Ask him to show you the latest products and to explain the differences in product quality to you. Better quality fixtures are stain and acid-resistant, retain their luster longer, are more efficient.

You can get ideas for arranging fixtures from a booklet titled "Modern Bathroom Plans" that includes 34 different layouts. It's available for 25 cents from the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau, 35 E. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. 60601.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — With state and local censorship virtually wiped out by court rulings, responsibility for determining the taste of movie entertainment in the United States rests largely in one man.

He is Liverpool-born Geoffrey Shurlock, 72, who administers the production code for the Motion Picture Association. Between 90 and 95 per cent of the movies seen in American theaters pass through his office. There they are measured for compliance with the industry's self-censorship code.

Shurlock, a brisk, smallish man, insists that "I'm just a paid employee, trying to apply the code which the producers have created."

With films turning more and more to realism in language and treatment of sex, Shurlock finds his office under continuing fire from industry and public critics.

"I think we are doing a good job of reflecting the taste of the American public," he says. "After all, the people are the final judges. They will generally accept what is reasonable and reject what is in bad taste. We watch very closely the reaction of the public to what appears on the screens.

"After all, what other good judgment is there except the general good sense of the public?"

Shurlock points proudly to the fact that the United States is the only country "in which censoring is entirely in the hands of those who make the films."

"In all other countries censorship is done to a greater or lesser degree by the government," he said. "Only England comes close to our system, but the government has some control because it subsidizes the film industry. Ours is the only unsubsidized film industry in the world."

Hollywood's self-censorship stemmed from scandals in the 1920s, when moralists assailed the industry and threatened to create censor boards in every state and city. A strict code of morality was created and enforced. Only last year was the code reduced to basic, generalized statements.

That was something Shurlock had been advocating for years. He also had advocated a classification system for age groups, as is done in most other countries. In the past year 14 movies have been passed by the code administration with the label, "suggested for mature audiences."

Fur can fly when the final film is presented for approval. Sometimes producers refuse to make suggested cuts. Then they can appeal to the directors of the Producers Association, joined by six theater operators and four independent producers. That is the court of last resort.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — With state and local censorship virtually wiped out by court rulings, responsibility for determining the taste of movie entertainment in the United States rests largely in one man.

He is Liverpool-born Geoffrey Shurlock, 72, who administers the production code for the Motion Picture Association. Between 90 and 95 per cent of the movies seen in American theaters pass through his office. There they are measured for compliance with the industry's self-censorship code.

Shurlock, a brisk, smallish man, insists that "I'm just a paid employee, trying to apply the code which the producers have created."

With films turning more and more to realism in language and treatment of sex, Shurlock finds his office under continuing fire from industry and public critics.

"I think we are doing a good job of reflecting the taste of the American public," he says. "After all, the people are the final judges. They will generally accept what is reasonable and reject what is in bad taste. We watch very closely the reaction of the public to what appears or the screens.

"After all, what other good judgment is there except the general good sense of the public?"

Shurlock points proudly to the fact that the United States is the only country "in which censoring is entirely in the hands of those who make the films."

"In all other countries censorship is done to a greater or lesser degree by the government," he said. "Only England comes close to our system, but the government has some control because it subsidizes the film industry. Ours is the only unsubsidized film industry in the world."

Hollywood's self-censorship stemmed from scandals in the 1920s, when moralists assailed the industry and threatened to create censor boards in every state and city. A strict code of morality was created and enforced. Only last year was the code reduced to basic, generalized statements.

That was something Shurlock had been advocating for years. He also had advocated a classification system for age groups, as is done in most other countries. In the past year 14 movies have been passed by the code administration with the label, "suggested for mature audiences."

Fur can fly when the final film is presented for approval. Sometimes producers refuse to make suggested cuts. Then they can appeal to the directors of the Producers Association, joined by six theater operators and four independent producers. That is the court of last resort.

Keeps me so busy and usually bent-ta
Wash up the footprints and bandage the wound.
But he is all boy - my sweet little son
And despite the destruction and me on the run
I'll treasure each moment and enjoy while I can.

Outside Counseling Can Patch Up Marriages

Dear Ann Landers: What can I do to get my mother to forgive my father? For five years my father was unfaithful but he has told Mom that he never loved the other woman, and he will not see her any more. Mom has asked Dad for a divorce, not because she doesn't love him, but because she thinks he would be happier if he were free. She blames herself for his unfaithfulness --- says if she had been the right kind of wife he wouldn't have strayed.

I don't think Dad really understands how Mom feels. Should I suggest that he be more affectionate and take her out more? Would that help?

We kids love both Mom and Dad and we hate to think of our family being busted up. Several of our friends have divorced parents and it is just rotten --- summers with one, weekends split up and nobody happy.

Please print some suggestions for children of parents who are having trouble. We need your help. --- IN A PANIC

Dear In: It's a sad state of affairs when kids have to act as mediators for battling parents.

If you feel that either or both Mom or Dad would be receptive to your advice, by all means offer it. In the meantime I am printing your letter so squabbling parents can see how they appear in the eyes of their children. I am adding my own plea that they get some outside counseling and learn how to live together.

Dear Ann Landers: I have been a reader of your column ever since I learned how to read. I am 13 years old now and I need your advice.

A schoolmate died last week and everyone was very sad about it. Several of us girls went to the funeral home to pay our last respects. One of the girls in the group took a camera along and made several pictures of the classmate in the casket. She has asked me if she should give a few of the pictures to the parents of the deceased. I don't know what to tell her. Please help. --- MISS M.D.

Dear Miss: My immediate reaction is a strongly negative one, but much to my surprise, in the past, I have received such a variety of opinions about photographing deceased people in caskets that I hesitate to say no. The girl who took the pictures should ask the parents if they would like the photographs.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 26, the mother of three children. It just so happens that I do not like coffee or tea. It's not a matter of religious conviction, I simply prefer milk or a glass of cold water.

It seems that whenever I go to a luncheon or a dinner, someone makes a point of my not drinking coffee or tea, and I end up looking like a freak. Yesterday I attended a church social and when I refused coffee and asked for milk or water, the woman said, "Any person who cannot enjoy a hot cup of coffee after a meal must be mentally disturbed."

How can I defend myself? --- PERSECUTED

Dear Pers: No one needs to give a reason for declining any beverage or food. Just ignore the clods and forgive them for their bad manners.

Do you feel ill at ease . . .out of it? Is everybody having a good time but you? Write for Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity," enclosing with your request 35¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

If You Were the Judge

Police Duty Bound to Protect Citizens' Property

BY Jack Strass L.L.D.

THE CASE OF THE VANISHING MANSION

McFuddle owned a once proud mansion that was vacated by its tenants. Shortly after they departed, the mansion began to depart also, piece by piece. Radiators disappeared, doors were removed and even bath tubs were cleaned out. Soon, the building was a broken-down shell of its former self. And, to add to poor McFuddle's befuddlement, he was given a summons for maintaining a public hazard, to wit: an abandoned and decrepit old building.

"You can't blame me for the condition of the building," McFuddle pleaded in court. "Trying to maintain it is like trying to swat a mosquito when you're sleeping. It's impossible. In fact, every time I find something missing I report it to the police but they can't find the culprits or do anything about it either. Soon the walls will walk away."

"Good!" answered the district attorney. "Then there won't be any more building and no more problem. But, in the meantime, the building belongs to McFuddle and he's responsible for the hazard."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you convict McFuddle of maintaining a public hazard?

This is how the judge ruled: No! The judge held that a city, through its police department, is duty bound to protect property; that, in this case, although the city's police department had all the ultramodern scientific crime detecting paraphernalia at its disposal, it was unable to find the reason for, or to prevent, the disappearance of so seemingly stable an object as a house Since the condition of McFuddle's building was due to the ineffectiveness of its own police department, concluded the judge, the city could not hold McFuddle responsible for the consequences of its own shortcomings.

Referee Rules Against Poultry Farmer Boycott

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Agriculture Department referee has recommended that three major poultry broiler concerns in Arkansas be ordered to desist from allegedly boycotting poultry farmers working to organize farmers for better prices.

The proposed order grew out of a formal complaint filed by the department against the three firms in 1965 under provisions of the Packers and Stockyards Act.

The three are Arkansas Valley Poultries Inc., of Little Rock; Ralston Purina Co., of St. Louis, Mo., and Tyson's Foods Inc., of Springdale, Ark.

A controversy over the complaint has been pending nearly two years and had found its way briefly into federal district court. Its ultimate conclusion could have widespread impact on farmers' efforts to strengthen their bargaining power through producer organizations.

The department contended, in its complaint, that the three concerns boycotted and blacklisted broiler producers active in producer organizational work. It claimed that the firms refused to continue to enter into producer agreements with these farmers.

Under the agreements, farmers furnished the land, brooder houses, utilities and other equipment for the production of broilers. The companies, it said, agreed to supply feed and other essentials and purchased the broilers for their own processing plants or for sale to other processors.

The controversy was aired at hearings which opened June 23, 1965, at Fort Smith, Ark., and ended Oct. 13, 1966, after interruptions. The recommended order was signed by the hearing referee, John J. Curry. It will be reviewed by the department's judicial officer, Thomas J. Flavin, before being issued finally.

The alleged discrimination cited by the department and testified to by farmers at the hearing figures in pressure for legislation now pending in Congress which would clearly outline farmers' rights to organize to negotiate for better prices and sales conditions without interference by processors and other buyers. This legislation has broad support of all major farm organizations and of the administration.

The Packers and Stockyards Act directs the department to police livestock and poultry markets against unfair, discriminatory and other practices which operate against the interests of producers.

PLANNING A NEW SCHOOL? MAKE SURE PLUMBING IS TOPS

New schools are going up all over the country at an unprecedented rate. If your district is planning one this summer, don't gloss over the importance of adequate piping and enough plumbing fixtures of top quality.

This advice comes from the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau, which points out that school plumbing takes a lot of hard wear, so you're really practicing economy when you buy the best.

Consider the installation of off-the-floor washroom equipment, the Bureau advises. It probably will cost more to install but will mean long-term savings in maintenance, since floors can be cleaned faster and more thoroughly. In these days of high-priced maintenance personnel, this is a factor that cannot be ignored, the Bureau notes.

Outside Counseling Can Patch Up Marriages

Dear Ann Landers: What can I do to get my mother to forgive my father? For five years my father was unfaithful but he has told Mom that he never loved the other woman, and he will not see her any more. Mom has asked Dad for a divorce, not because she doesn't love him, but because she thinks he would be happier if he were free. She blames herself for his unfaithfulness --- says if she had been the right kind of wife he wouldn't have strayed.

I don't think Dad really understands how Mom feels. Should I suggest that he be more affectionate and take her out more? Would that help?

We kids love both Mom and Dad and we hate to think of our family being busted up. Several of our friends have divorced parents and it is just rotten --- summers with one, weekends split up and nobody happy.

Please print some suggestions for children of parents who are having trouble. We need your help. --- IN A PANIC

Dear In: It's a sad state of affairs when kids have to act as mediators for battling parents.

If you feel that either or both Mom or Dad would be receptive to your advice, by all means offer it. In the meantime I am printing your letter so squabbling parents can see how they appear in the eyes of their children. I am adding my own plea that they get some outside counseling and learn how to live together.

Dear Ann Landers: I have been a reader of your column ever since I learned how to read. I am 13 years old now and I need your advice.

A schoolmate died last week and everyone was very sad about it. Several of us girls went to the funeral home to pay our last respects. One of the girls in the group took a camera along and made several pictures of the classmate in the casket. She has asked me if she should give a few of the pictures to the parents of the deceased. I don't know what to tell her. Please help. --- MISS M.D.

Dear Miss: My immediate reaction is a strongly negative one, but much to my surprise, in the past, I have received such a variety of opinions about photographing deceased people in caskets that I hesitate to say no. The girl who took the pictures should ask the parents if they would like the photographs.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 26, the mother of three children. It just so happens that I do not like coffee or tea. It's not a matter of religious conviction, I simply prefer milk or a glass of cold water.

It seems that whenever I go to a luncheon or a dinner, someone makes a point of my not drinking coffee or tea, and I end up looking like a freak. Yesterday I attended a church social and when I refused coffee and asked for milk or water, the woman said, "Any person who cannot enjoy a hot cup of coffee after a meal must be mentally disturbed."

How can I defend myself? --- PERSECUTED

Dear Pers: No one needs to give a reason for declining any beverage or food. Just ignore the clods and forgive them for their bad manners.

Do you feel ill at ease . . .out of it? Is everybody having a good time but you? Write for Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity," enclosing with your request 35¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

If You Were the Judge

Police Duty Bound to Protect Citizens' Property

BY Jack Strass L.L.D.

THE CASE OF THE VANISHING MANSION

McFuddle owned a once proud mansion that was vacated by its tenants. Shortly after they departed, the mansion began to depart also, piece by piece. Radiators disappeared, doors were removed and even bath tubs were cleaned out. Soon, the building was a broken-down shell of its former self. And, to add to poor McFuddle's befuddlement, he was given a summons for maintaining a public hazard, to wit: an abandoned and decrepit old building.

"You can't blame me for the condition of the building," McFuddle pleaded in court. "Trying to maintain it is like trying to swat a mosquito when you're sleeping. It's impossible. In fact, every time I find something missing I report it to the police but they can't find the culprits or do anything about it either. Soon the walls will walk away."

"Good!" answered the district attorney. "Then there won't be any more building and no more problem. But, in the meantime, the building belongs to McFuddle and he's responsible for the hazard."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you convict McFuddle of maintaining a public hazard?

This is how the judge ruled: No! The judge held that a city, through its police department, is duty bound to protect property; that, in this case, although the city's police department had all the ultramodern scientific crime detecting paraphernalia at its disposal, it was unable to find the reason for, or to prevent, the disappearance of so seemingly stable an object as a house Since the condition of McFuddle's building was due to the ineffectiveness of its own police department, concluded the judge, the city could not hold McFuddle responsible for the consequences of its own shortcomings.

Referee Rules Against Poultry Farmer Boycott

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Agriculture Department referee has recommended that three major poultry broiler concerns in Arkansas be ordered to desist from allegedly boycotting poultry farmers working to organize farmers for better prices.

The proposed order grew out of a formal complaint filed by the department against the three firms in 1965 under provisions of the Packers and Stockyards Act.

The three are Arkansas Valley Poultries Inc., of Little Rock; Ralston Purina Co., of St. Louis, Mo., and Tyson's Foods Inc., of Springdale, Ark.

A controversy over the complaint has been pending nearly two years and had found its way briefly into federal district court. Its ultimate conclusion could have widespread impact on farmers' efforts to strengthen their bargaining power through producer organizations.

The department contended, in its complaint, that the three concerns boycotted and blacklisted broiler producers active in producer organizational work. It claimed that the firms refused to continue to enter into producer agreements with these farmers.

Under the agreements, farmers furnished the land, brooder houses, utilities and other equipment for the production of broilers. The companies, it said, agreed to supply feed and other essentials and purchased the broilers for their own processing plants or for sale to other processors.

The controversy was aired at hearings which opened June 23, 1965, at Fort Smith, Ark., and ended Oct. 13, 1966, after interruptions. The recommended order was signed by the hearing referee, John J. Curry. It will be reviewed by the department's judicial officer, Thomas J. Flavin, before being issued finally.

The alleged discrimination cited by the department and testified to by farmers at the hearing figures in pressure for legislation now pending in Congress which would clearly outline farmers' rights to organize to negotiate for better prices and sales conditions without interference by processors and other buyers. This legislation has broad support of all major farm organizations and of the administration.

The Packers and Stockyards Act directs the department to police livestock and poultry markets against unfair, discriminatory and other practices which operate against the interests of producers.

soon but probably not before Friday. Johnson had a full schedule in Washington today, and it appeared that if even a brief courtesy meeting was arranged, it would be Friday or during the weekend.

In the General Assembly Wednesday, Israel quickly rejected Britain's warning not to claim all of Jerusalem as a prize of war.

British Foreign Secretary George Brown declared Israel would isolate itself from world opinion if it held onto Old Jerusalem wrested from Jordan. Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban replied that his government had expressed determination to see that Jerusalem would never again become a divided city and a war arena.

Flint Gets Skinned

NEW YORK (AP) — Actor James Coburn—known to movie buffs as Our Man Flint, the karate chopping nemesis of enemy spies—stands ready for his scene. Lights! Camera! Action:

Flint takes off up McDougal Street in Greenwich Village as the cameras grind and two Chinese agents pound in pursuit. The only question is how our hero will befuddle his foes.

Or is it? Enter Patrolmen Melvin Schwartz and David Mahan, unaware that the fleeing Flint is only filming a scene. Schwartz reaches out an arm and—CRASH! Cut! Cut! Cut!

A police sergeant assigned to the film scene Wednesday night rushes up with the city's apologies to Coburn. The startled Schwartz had assumed he was stopping some mischief.

Coburn, 39, suffered two small cuts on his face, and a Paramount Pictures spokesman said the filming probably would be delayed a day to let the star's wounds heal.

The lecturer addressing a group of parents was expounding on the evils of televison and its contribution to juvenile delinquency. "You turn on your set and what happens?" he challenged. "The worst kind of violence and crime, the most unspeakable degeneracy, brutality . . ."

"Businessmen have traditionally relied heavily upon intuition and experience. These are still vital. But now administrators must extend themselves even further because they must explain their operations patiently and logically to a machine. . . To command these new tools, or, at the very least, a general understanding of how they function is indispensable to the professional manager of tomorrow. The time when folklore and hunches and guesses will suffice is past."

OSLO, Norway (AP)— Crown Prince Harald, 30, of Norway has been picked by the Norwegian Yachting Federation to represent Norway in the World 5.5-meter Yachting Championships at Nassau, Bahama, in November.

Redistricting Plan Soundly Defeated

Only eight Democrats voted for it as it went down 8-26.

They were: Young, Earl R. Blackwell of Hillsboro, Jasper Brancato of Kansas City, John E. Downs of St. Joseph, John J. Johnson of Sappington, Lawrence Lee of St. Louis, Edward Linehan of St. Louis and John P. Ryan of Kansas City.

Young said his bill was very similar to the original Senate committee version. He predicted if it were approved, a House-Senate conference committee would have no trouble in achieving the 431,981 population norm and still protect all 10 incumbent congressmen.

Redistricting was the first bill brought up by Sen. Omer H. Avery, D-Troy, Senate reapportionment chairman.

As soon as Young's plan was defeated the Senate turned to a battle over a rule change which in the future would prevent the offering of a substitute bill such as Young's to a House-amended bill.

His tentative bill would split Negro wards and precincts among the three St. Louis and St. Louis County Districts and put his own Airport Township back into the Democratic 1st District instead of the Republican 2nd, as in the House bill.

Other outstate districts would be unchanged from the House version, which made the 6th of northwestern Missouri and the 8th District "Swing" districts in a Republican year.

Rusk Makes Call On Russian Premier

UNITED NATIONS (AP)— Secretary of State Dean Rusk paid an unannounced call at the Soviet U.N. mission headquarters today, perhaps to work out final details on a Big Two summit meeting.

The final decision is up to the two chiefs -- and with time running out a formal announcement was expected today.

Flint Gets Skinned

Flint takes off up McDougal Street in Greenwich Village as the cameras grind and two Chinese agents pound in pursuit. The only question is how our hero will befuddle his foes.

Or is it? Enter Patrolmen Melvin Schwartz and David Mahan, unaware that the fleeing Flint is only filming a scene. Schwartz reaches out an arm and—CRASH! Cut! Cut! Cut!

A police sergeant assigned to the film scene Wednesday night rushes up with the city's apologies to Coburn. The startled Schwartz had assumed he was stopping some mischief.

Coburn, 39, suffered two small cuts on his face, and a Paramount Pictures spokesman said the filming probably would be delayed a day to let the star's wounds heal.

The lecturer addressing a group of parents was expounding on the evils of televison and its contribution to juvenile delinquency. "You turn on your set and what happens?" he challenged. "The worst kind of violence and crime, the most unspeakable degeneracy, brutality . . ."

"Businessmen have traditionally relied heavily upon intuition and experience. These are still vital. But now administrators must extend themselves even further because they must explain their operations patiently and logically to a machine... To command these new tools, or, at the very least, a general understanding of how they function is indispensable to the professional manager of tomorrow. The time when folklore and hunches and guesses will suffice is past."

OSLO, Norway (AP)— Crown Prince Harald, 30, of Norway has been picked by the Norwegian Yachting Federation to represent Norway in the World 5.5-meter Yachting Championships at Nassau, Bahama, in November.

Redistricting Plan Soundly Defeated

Only eight Democrats voted for it as it went down 8-26.

They were: Young, Earl R. Blackwell of Hillsboro, Jasper Brancato of Kansas City, John E. Downs of St. Joseph, John J. Johnson of Sappington, Lawrence Lee of St. Louis, Edward Linehan of St. Louis and John P. Ryan of Kansas City.

Young said his bill was very similar to the original Senate committee version. He predicted if it were approved, a House-Senate conference committee would have no trouble in achieving the 431,981 population norm and still protect all 10 incumbent congressmen.

Redistricting was the first bill brought up by Sen. Omer H. Avery, D-Troy, Senate reapportionment chairman.

As soon as Young's plan was defeated the Senate turned to a battle over a rule change which in the future would prevent the offering of a substitute bill such as Young's to a House-amended bill.

His tentative bill would split Negro wards and precincts among the three St. Louis and St. Louis County Districts and put his own Airport Township back into the Democratic 1st District instead of the Republican 2nd, as in the House bill.

Other outstate districts would be unchanged from the House version, which made the 6th of northwestern Missouri and the 8th District "Swing" districts in a Republican year.

Rusk Makes Call On Russian Premier

The final decision is up to the two chiefs -- and with time running out a formal announcement was expected today.

In our parish a 2nd grader was sad because his student teacher was leaving. "I'm going to take her picture," he told one of the Sisters. "I'm going to keep on looking and blinking and looking and blinking until I have her picture in my mind, and I'll keep it there forever."
